ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — It is a time of celebration, and a time of action.

State dignitaries turned out in force Wednesday during Ag Progress Days to provide some groundbreaking news: Pennsylvania leads the nation in ag preservation. But a Farm Bill approaches, and farmers must make their voices heard.

The state's "Growing Greener" program, what state leaders believe is the largest environmental investment in Pennsylvania history, helped to preserve 467 farms, more than 53,000 acres since January 2000, the program's start.

"It took eight years to preserve the first 100,000 acres," Ridge told hundreds of guests at the beginning of the Government and Industry Lunch hosted by the College of Agricultural Sciences in the Special Events Building at Ag Progress.

Conservation Practices For Lanes, Woodlots Demonstrated At Ag Progress

DAVE LEFEVER

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Visitors to Ag Progress Days this week had opportunities to learn about a variety of agricultural and woodland sustainability practices.

Besides seminars on basic conservation ag methods, landowners and others also took tours that demonstrated practices such as building and maintaining farm lanes and managing woodlots.

Woody Colbert, coordinator of the State Conservation Commission (SCC) Dirt and Gravel Road Pollution Prevention Program, said that some of the principles that work best when it comes to road construction were employed by the Romans centuries ago.

One of the ancient principles rediscovered recently is that road surfaces in wet areas last longer if they are underlaid with a "separation fabric" to prevent fine clay particles from being drawn by water up into the surface layer. Clay particles in the water make a slippery fluid at the base stones of the surface layer and cause it to deteriorate, leading to potholes.

According to Colbert, materials used by the Romans for laying under road surfaces included burlap and straw, but today a geosynthetic petroleum-based fabric is used for essentially the same purpose.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat and corn bids closed lower but soybean bids moved sharply higher with weather conditions pulling bids in both directions. Wheat steady to 3 cents lower. Corn 2 to 5 cents lower. Sorghum 4 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 8 cents higher.

Spring wheat harvest continued to pressure wheat bids lower. However, some support was seen due to light overnight export demand.

Corn bids slipped lower for the second consecutive day after rains fell across much of the Corn Belt overnight and today. More moisture is forecast for the Midwest. Sharp advances in soybean bids stemmed from less rainfall than expected overnight. Taiwan's bean purchase offered light support.

EXPORT SALES: PURCHASER COMMODITY TONNAGE DELIVERY DATE Jordan GSM-102 Hard Red Winter Wheat 50,000 Sep Taiwan Soybeans 54,000 Nov-Dec

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

ST. BARTHOLOMEW, AUG. 24

DOVES AND BEARS

On August 25, 1985, Samantha Smith, the schoolgirl who wrote a letter about peace to Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov, died in an airplane crash in Auburn, Maine. Samantha's letter, written in 1982 when she was 10, said, "Congratulations on your new job. I have been worrying about Russia and the United States getting into a nuclear war." Andropov's response included an invitation to see for herself that "in the Soviet Union everyone is for peace and friendship among peoples." The exchange began a series of peaceful visits and spurred other student exchanges. Today, in Augusta, Maine, there is a life-size statue of Smith releasing a dove, while a bear (the symbol of Maine and the Soviet Union) embraces her.

I cease not to advocate peace; even though unjust, it is better than the most just war.

–Cicero (106–43 B.C.)

TIP OF THE WEEK

For best drying, stack firewood with the ends toward the prevailing winds.

ROASTED SUMMER VEGETABLES

4 large unpeeled potatoes, cut into chunks
1 red onion, cut into wedges
3 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 teaspoon salt, plus to taste
pepper, to taste
1 tablespoon minced fresh thyme or rosemary
1 cup baby carrots, trimmed
1/2 pound pattypan or other squash slices
4 peppers, red, yellow, or green, sliced
2 lemons, sliced

Preheat oven to 425°F. In 13x9 pan, toss potatoes and onion in 1 tablespoon olive oil, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, and herbs. Roast 15 minutes. Add carrots, squash, peppers, and 2 tablespoons olive oil. Add salt and pepper to taste and half the lemon slices. Roast 45 minutes more, turning vegetables until tender. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 6

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

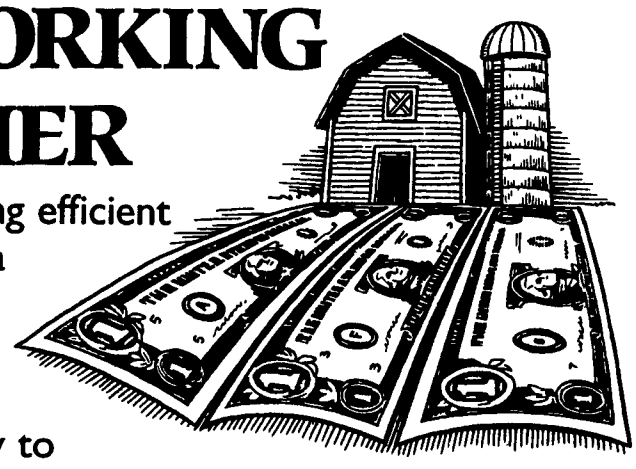
FARMING, FINANCING AND WORKING TOGETHER



Remember when being efficient was all it took to be a successful farmer? With some help from mother nature, being efficient is still the key to successful farming. And that, by itself, is a tough job.

Today's farmer has to know financing and marketing as well as production. And today, as in the past, The Ephrata National Bank is here to help.

We've been financing local farming since 1881 and plan to for years to come.

Next time you need some honest advice on financing your farming operation, see your friends at The Ephrata National Bank.

OPINION

CAFO Issues And Farmers' Faith

In the May 2001 "Penn State Dairy Digest," Robert Graves, of agricultural, biological, and engineering extension, speaks about how the proposed Concentrated Animal Feeding Operation (CAFO) regulations will impact most state dairy farms within the next five years.

His article, "This CAFO Stuff Is Serious," brings home two major issues: the existing state CAFO regulations that could apply to a farm with 180 mature cows and associated replacements and proposed revisions that could directly impact farms with 200 milking cows, 300 heifers, or 300 veal calves.

These regulations can't be avoided — we can't just think it happens only to the "big guys," noted Graves.

The existing state rules indicate that all farms with more than 1,000 AEUs (or Animal Equivalent Units, and an AEU equals 1,000 pounds of body weight) are required to have a state CAFO permit. Farms with more than 300 AEUs (approximately 180 cows with replacements) are required to have a permit if they are a CAO (or "concentrated animal operation" under the Nutrient Management Act). A farm in the 300 AEU+ category in a special protection watershed is required to have a permit.

If you live in one of those watersheds, do you know whether it is High Quality or Exception Value watershed? How do you find out? Where do you go for help?

Graves makes it clear about expansion. If you are near or more than the 180-milking-cows level, find out what your status is. "It is your responsibility to know if these regulations apply to you," Graves noted. "The fines for noncompliance are real and can be large."

What is particularly scary: "You may also be vulnerable to citizen-initiated lawsuits under provisions of the Clean Water Act," noted Graves (emphasis ours).

It's awfully difficult for some to make a living at farming, and these regulations don't help. The sad fact is, how many regulations can the farmer take before he simply throws up his hands and says, "who cares?"

Either these processes have to be simplified to the point where they have real meaning on a large scale, or so many farmers will simply "lose the faith," as it were, and become so alienated that the rules could defy the very purpose for which they're written: to protect our precious resources.

We need more discussion. The guides and outlines for conservation of soil, decades ago, were solid, made sense, and are enforceable. There were few ways to exploit technical loopholes.

For the rulemakers: Don't destroy farmers' faith in rule making and the importance of protecting our resources. Make their concerns count for all regulations. And allow them to keep the faith in your law-making abilities.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

I have sent copies of an original mailing I received addressing a major issue facing the pork-producing family farms, asking for your support by publishing an article that heightens the awareness of the status of the pork "checkoff" issue to your readers.

Similar to other industries, the "checkoff" was initiated in 1986 to promote pork and increase producers' profitability. After 12 years, "anti-tax activists" claim the tax primarily benefited "larger producers." Therefore, Ag Secretary Glickman called for a national referendum to decide if pork producers wanted the "checkoff."

According to the vote, the tax

To Be Aware Of Potential Problems With Drought-Stressed Forages

Recent rains have brought some relief to the drought-stressed areas of the state. However, for many it is too late to recover and now the challenge is to use the drought-stressed forage without causing problems with high nitrate levels in the rations.

In addition to drought, high soil levels of nitrogen from heavy manure use contribute to the risk of high nitrate levels in forage crops in many parts of Pennsylvania.

The first step to avoiding problems with drought stressed corn is to avoid harvest for the first few days after a drought-ending rain. Nitrate levels are the highest for the first 3-7 days after such a rain. The second step to reduce the risk of nitrate problems in your feed is too ensile the entire crop. The ensiling process reduces about half of the nitrates in the crop to ammonia, which can be utilized by the rumen bacteria. Avoid the temptation to feed some of the drought-stressed crop as greenchop even if your feed supplies are tight.

A nitrate test on the silage should be conducted if you suspect you may have high nitrate levels. If nitrate levels exceed 0.45-0.75 percent nitrate ion (NO3) or 0.10-0.17 percent nitrate nitrogen (NO3-N) on a dry matter basis, test other forages in the ration as well, including legume hay and haylage. Under drought stress the nitrate levels in these crops can be elevated as well.

Reasonably high nitrate forage may still be fed in limited amounts if the level of nitrate in the total ration dry matter (forage plus concentrate) is not over 0.40 percent NO3- or 0.09 percent NO3-N. When calculating the total nitrate intake, include the contribution from water if the water contains more than 44 ppm NO3 or 10 ppm NO3-N. Suspect forages or those known to contain high nitrate levels should be introduced slowly into the diet. Another strategy to avoid problems is to dilute problem forages with other stored feed.

To Walk Your Corn Fields To Assess Yield Potential

Some fields of drought-stricken corn still have the potential to have a reasonable yield while others have already suffered too much damage. It is important to determine the situation in your fields while you still have time to seek alternative markets for the crop as forage.

Since feed supplies have been reduced by the drought, the demand for purchased silage will be greater than in other seasons with better growing conditions.

Make sure you walk into the fields to see what the situation is in the middle of the fields. A windshield survey along the field edges leaves you vulnerable to discovering after it is too late that you should have harvested the field for silage. If you move quickly, you still have time to seek alternative markets for your crop if needed.

To Plant A Fall Garden

Planting your garden is a common rite of spring for most families, but there are many things you can grow in the fall to provide some homegrown nutrition as well.

According to Pete Ferretti, extension vegetable specialist, some varieties of collards, endive, escarole, kale, spinach, and cauliflower do very well in cooler weather.

"With the very hardy ones, a lot of times you could have it for Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Years, and those are the most fun times."

In order to avoid disease and insect problems, Ferretti advises that you should avoid planting in the same area where a related variety grew earlier in the season. For more information on varieties, consult the "Pennsylvania Vegetable Variety Guide," available from your Penn State Cooperative Extension county office.

Quote of the Week:

NO MATTER WHAT YOU CALL IT

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 5.
Devotional Reading:
Mark 12:1-9.

Many years ago we visited Naples, Italy. Seeing that we were about to go outside and walk around the city streets, the hotel manager felt it imperative that he warn us about the driving habits of Neapolitan drivers. "You must understand," he said forcefully, "in Naples, green does not necessarily mean green and red does not necessarily mean red." It didn't take us long to observe for ourselves that local drivers were largely unresponsive to the usual understanding of traffic lights.

When green no longer means green and red no longer signifies red, walking or driving the streets of such a city is especially nerve-wracking and dangerous. In fact, when the meanings of familiar words are changed, it can be very stressful to us and dangerous to human relationships. Politicians, entrepreneurs and advertisers who say one thing and mean another contribute to a general sense of cynicism and distrust.

Nowhere is this more of a concern than with the various terms which we use for "good" and "evil."

The moral tone of a society is greatly compromised when we get to that point where we hold still for people who, as Isaiah put it, "call evil good and good evil" (Is. 5:20). When this distinction is blurred, the moral fiber of a society crumbles.

Wild Grapes!

This song with which Isaiah begins is a touching analogy of God's relationship with the people of Israel. Comparing his election of Israel to the planting of a vineyard, the Lord tells of all that he had done to make it a fruitful endeavor.

Like a hard-working farm laborer, God had figuratively "digged it and cleared it of stones, and planted it with choice vines" (5:2). He did all this in expectation of the vine's fruitfulness. Yes, "he looked for it to yield grapes, but it yielded wild grapes."

Many of Isaiah's contemporaries probably could not understand him. They saw themselves as faithful worshippers of God, paying their tithes, making their sacrifices, and attending the holy days. They probably assumed that their lives were "good" in God's sight.

But they were so used to calling "evil good and good evil," that they no longer could distinguish between the two.

So what does that have to do with us today? Do you really need help to make the connection? Do you not see that same blasphemy in our own society, calling evil good and good evil — and living accordingly? Like the people of Judah and Israel, are we not his "pleasant planting?" Might he not say equally of us, "What more was there to do for my vineyard, that I have not done in it?" (5:4)

What God Looks For

Once again it is a matter of people not realizing — or not wanting to — what it is that God wants from us. "He looked for justice, but behold, bloodshed; for righteousness, but behold a cry!" (5:7).

(This is a play on words, for the Hebrew for "justice," mishap, is close to the word for "bloodshed," mishap; while "righteousness," cedhagah, is close to "a cry," ceaqah.) Isaiah makes it crystal clear that greed and avariciousness are "evil." "Woe to those who join house to house, who add field to field, until there is no more room" (5:8).

Riotous, intemperate living, arrogance and conceit, insobriety, and those who "acquit the guilty for a bribe and deprive the innocent of his right!" No matter what they may call it, this kind of living is evil, not the good life.

The result of calling evil good and good evil and living accordingly? The judgment of God and a terrible calamity will fall upon. "And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard, I will remove its hedge, and it shall be devoured; I will break down its wall, and it shall be trampled down" (5:11).

Twenty-five-hundred-plus years ago that message came as a shock to the people of Israel and Judah. It should be no less discomforting for us today.

USDA Releases Two New Direct Marketing Publications

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture this week issued two new publications designed to help agricultural producers market their products directly to consumers.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service has published a new edition of its 1998 publication, the "Farmer Direct Marketing Bibliography." The 2001 edition contains more than 70 new entries and three new categories of published information - Farm to School, Internet Marketing, and Appropriate Technology Transfer for Rural Areas. The bibliography contains references from numerous sources including private industry, academia, and state and federal governments.

AMS has also published a related publication, the "National Directory of Farmers Market and Direct Marketing Associations 2001."

The new directory lists 41 local, state, regional, and national farmers market and direct marketing associations operating in the United States. These associations offer benefits and services to farm direct marketers including member and consumer directories, conferences, workshops, tours, newsletters, certification, insurance, and government liaisons. The directory lists each association's contact information, organizational structure, benefits and services, and geographical area.

The "Farmer Direct Marketing Bibliography 2001" and "National Directory of Farmers Market and Direct Marketing Associations 2001" are available at www.ams.usda.gov/directmarketing. Both publications will be regularly updated online.

For more information or to obtain a copy of either publication, contact Jennifer-Claire Klotz, USDA Stop 0269, 1400 Independence Ave. SW, Washington DC 20250-0269; tel. 202-690-4077; fax 202-690-0031; or e-mail claire.klotz@usda.gov.

IT'S NOT JUST A BUSINESS

IT'S A WAY OF LIFE!

Mid-Atlantic AgriSystems has been a proud sponsor of local 4-H for years, and this year will be no different! Once again they purchased this year's Reserve Champion Steer, Buster, shown by Robert Turner III, from Cecil County. But ask Scott Bristow, co-owner of Mid-Atlantic, what his proudest moment was at this year's Cecil County Fair, and he'll be sure to tell you about his daughter Kristina. Kristina, president of Rising Sun Milk Squirters 4-H Club, was named Cecil County Farm Queen for 2001-2002! While Kristina is a pretty girl, it's her knowledge and appreciation for the Ag industry, and no doubt, her rich heritage that won her the distinguished title. Congratulations Kristina! And congratulations to all involved in the local 4-H! Mid Atlantic AgriSystems is proud to support such honorable folks!

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Aug. 10, 2001

Heat Wave Pressures
Milk Prices

- Temperatures for the nation in 90s and 100s.
- Heat and humidity are affecting milk output.
- Cheese and butter prices firmer.
- Class III futures way up!

Dairy producers looking for a sign to lock in fall Class III futures prices found a clear one today. September through December 2001 futures shot up $0.65-$0.75 per CWT today. September Class III futures rose to $15.75 per CWT, and December Class III futures rose to $13.40 per CWT.

Class IV prices are weaker, ranging from $15 in August to $13.25 by December.

The market may be reacting to a heat wave that has raised temperatures from coast to coast up into the 90s-100s. Sustained temperatures at these levels coupled with high humidity results in less feed consumption and lower milk output. It could also reduce milk output the rest of the year if cows are stressed enough.

For those looking to lock in milk prices, these are very good prices. There is still concern in the market that consumption may be soft this year because of a weaker national economy. While fuel prices are now lower and inflation under control, the economy is barely growing and many companies are laying people off. And besides, the heat wave is showing signs of subsiding.

USDA reports that week-to-week milk production declines of 10-percent are common. And, fat and protein tests are lower than normal. This has resulted in increased demand for condensed skim and nonfat dry milk to improve cheese vat yields.

Block cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange rose from $1.67 per pound Aug. 6-9 to $1.72 by Friday, Aug. 10. Barrel cheese prices weakened from $1.6275 per pound Monday, Aug. 6 to $1.5975 Aug. 8-9, and then rallied to $1.65 Friday, Aug. 10.

There was only one carload of cheese that traded the entire week. Barrel and block prices rose Friday on bids only.

Grade AA butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange rose from $2 per pound on Monday to $2.01 per pound on Wednesday and Friday. Twenty-five carloads of butter traded hands this week. USDA reports that cream availability is low because of the heat wave gripping most of the country. Demand for butter, however, must be limited due to high retail butter prices. Inventories of butter are reported to be even with a year ago.

I had the opportunity to visit the Chicago Mercantile Exchange this week. Mike Downes, a commodity broker with Downes-O'Neill (http://www.dairy.nu/), took me on a personal tour of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Mike has been in the commodity futures business a number of years and introduced me to the floor traders, locals, and exchange staff. We watched Class III futures trade, as well as cash markets for butter and cheese. It was a fascinating process. I would highly recommend anyone with an interest in the dairy markets to visit the exchange the next time they are in Chicago.

Finally, this forecaster, like others in the dairy business, is both humbled and amazed at how high Class III cash and futures prices have climbed this year. This is especially interesting after such a poor showing most of last year. Like more forecasters, you hate to be off by $3 per CWT! It shows how hard it is to forecast milk prices these days.

I'm not the only economist having trouble with forecasting, it turns out. I recently read an article in Investor's Business Daily with the following headline, "Is It A Recession? The 'Experts' Won't Know Until We're Out From Under It." (pg. A20, Wednesday, Aug. 8, 2001). There are a lot more economists forecasting the health of the U.S. economy than there are forecasting dairy. It seems that not one of them can tell us whether or not we are experiencing a recession. That's enough to give "Experts" (that is, economists) a bad name!

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

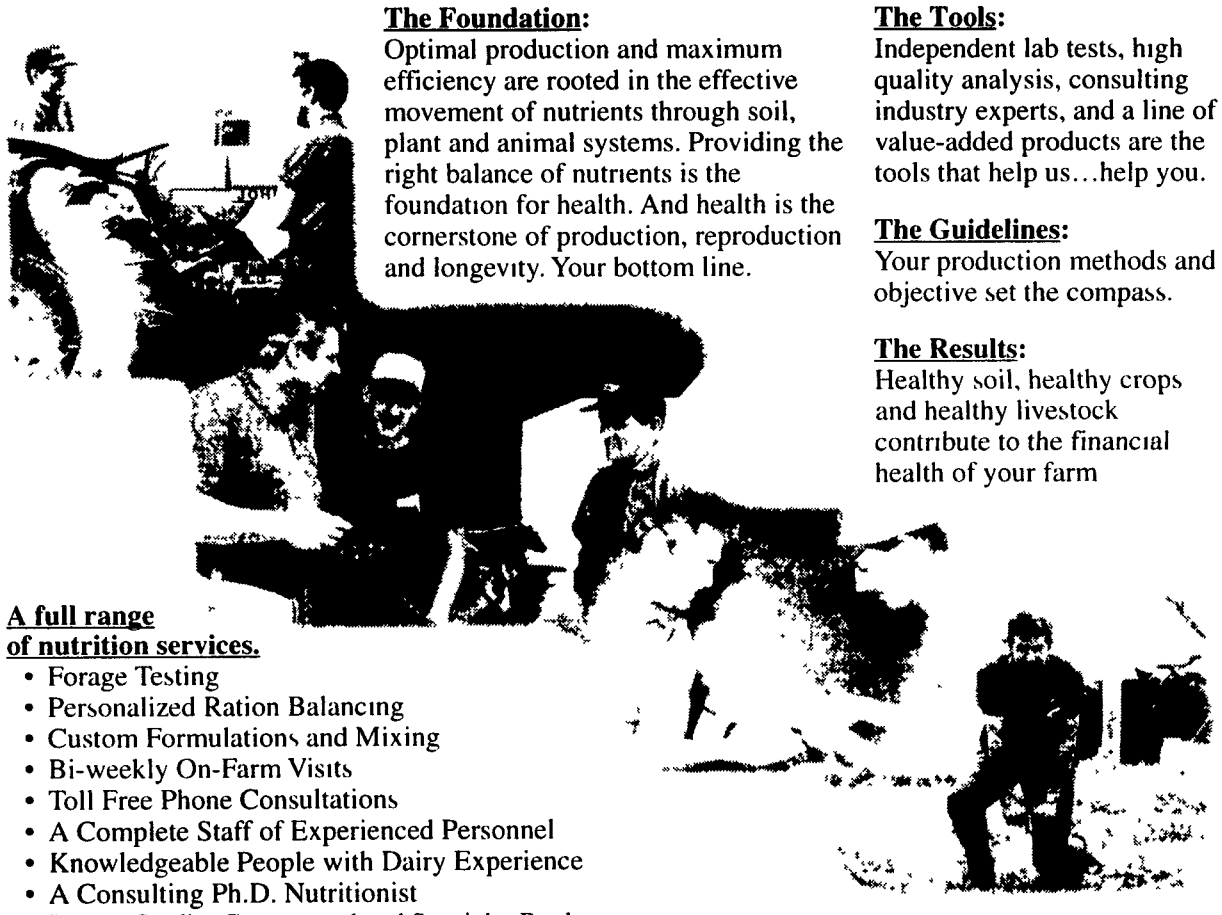
The Healthy Choice... From The Ground Up

"We look at the whole picture..."



The Foundation:
Optimal production and maximum efficiency are rooted in the effective movement of nutrients through soil, plant and animal systems. Providing the right balance of nutrients is the foundation for health. And health is the cornerstone of production, reproduction and longevity. Your bottom line.

The Tools:
Independent lab tests, high quality analysis, consulting industry experts, and a line of value-added products are the tools that help us...help you.

The Guidelines:
Your production methods and objective set the compass.

The Results:
Healthy soil, healthy crops and healthy livestock contribute to the financial health of your farm

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Aug. 10, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week ending Aug. 10, 2001. Receipts: 152,300, last week 168,800, year ago 155,700. Compared to last week; feeder cattle prices were mostly lower, but uneven as to how much. Yearling steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 lower in slow country trading. However, salebarn yearling sales were steady to firm with slightly higher prices on the lighter-weight 600-700 lb cattle that will finish soon after the first of the year. Calf prices were not as fortunate with trends quoted by the USDA's Livestock and Grain Market Service as much as 4.00 lower, especially in the Southeast. Markets from south Texas to Florida have hit the skip in demand, between Summer grazing and when the Southwestern buyers send in orders to get ready for winter wheat. Some relief from the hot temperatures blew in from the northwest this week, but considerable rain is needed across the Plains to repair depleted pastures. It's already too late for many ranchers who are having to sell early and others who will not be able to last until their Fall contracts mature.

Direct feedlot sales continue to slide with live sales 1.00 lower this week at 69.00, dressed sales were 2.00- 3.00 lower from 109.00-111.00. Several deliveries were tendered this week against the August CME Live Cattle Futures, which are trading near a 2.00 premium to cash. The timing is good for hedged feeders to deliver and in-turn long positions can take live delivery and gamble by going back on feed for a few weeks. Also, Fall and Winter fat cattle futures are trading in the mid to upper 70's and cattle feeders are keeping a sharp eye on current hedging opportunities. Even though feeder prices have been falling over the past few weeks, the market looks stable down the road, with just a little more than dollar separating CME Feeder Cattle Futures prices all the way through next Spring. This week's reported feeder supply included 37 percent over 600 lbs.

Carriage Driving: Physically Involving Confidence-Builder

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — "They are doing something their peers and siblings don't do," said 19-year volunteer program member Linda Golden. "They're driving a horse. This gives them an enormous sense of accomplishing something other people can't, or haven't."

On Wednesday at Ag Progress Days, Linda Golden, Greencastle, was providing commentary and answering questions during a special Franklin County 4-H Therapeutic Riding Center demonstration in the equine arena at Ag Progress.

Misty Owens, 25, daughter of Ann and Bill Owens, Boonsboro, Md., was at the halter of Daisy, a 13-year-old drafthorse, driving a carriage around safety marker cones. It looked easy, but for Misty, driving the horse between the cones required not only an "easygoing, solid, dependable horse," said Golden, but the confidence and patience of a true rider.

To Misty, in her own words, the ability to drive a carriage through the rigors established by a groundbreaking, 19-year-old program provides "an enormous sense of accomplishment in a world where we don't get a lot of that."

Driving the horse requires hand dexterity and balance. Misty, according to Golden, also uses extensive upper body muscles. The work with the riding program, Golden noted, "has built Misty's confidence."

Also participating in the riding demonstration Wednesday was Trudy Baker, 29, daughter of Bill and Barbara Baker, Shippensburg. Trudy guided Daisy confidently through the course.

The program is the only free program in the state staffed entirely by volunteers, according to Golden. Fifty students are enrolled in the program, with another 50 on the waiting list. The area used to train riders is in Chambersburg, on the old county farm next to the extension center in the outdoor arena.

Golden, who has been a 4-H leader 28 years, said the therapeutic program began in the spring of 1982. Through a grant, Summit Health donated the carriage, which cost about $4,000. The program has had legislative help and aid from private corporations.

The program includes 18 horses and operates from April through October each year. Volunteers donate time, depending on their schedule, to train disadvantaged riders.

The program was spearheaded by Bob Kessler, formerly a 4-H agent and now county extension director. Barn manager of the program is Susan Rotz.

For riders, the therapy is physical as well as emotional. Golden attributed a quote to Winston Churchill: "There is something about the outside of the horse that is good for the inside of a man." But the program believes horse programs are good for all of a man, Golden said.

For 4-H riders, she said, "Their handicap disappears."

Books and magazines of interest to Lancaster Farming readers

FLORA, Gardens and Plants In Art and Literature, by Edward Lucie-Smith. Watson-Guptill Publications, 2001, 368 pp., $19.95. ISBN 0-8230-1840-7

If you are looking for that near-perfect coffee-table book, or you want to show a collection of some fine artwork to guests for supper, this could be what you're looking for.

FLORA shows the many ways in which art is used to perpetuate the beauty of gardens, or gardens as artwork themselves, or "flora" as inspiration for artists throughout the centuries.

On page 7, in the introduction, the author notes: "Throughout history, a carefully cultivated garden has symbolized the control that the human race has learned to exercise over its surroundings. It shows that humans have the ability to control an unpredictable universe in some small way, by shaping the natural space around them with their own original ideas and designs."

From descriptions of how greenhouses were born on pages 179-181 to the fascination with still-life paintings and drawings in the latter part of the book to the movement of gardens from the noblesse into the commoner's garden — it's all here.

Only caveat about the book — page 212 is repeated on page 214 in this edition. But that is a small, insubstantial mark against what is an extraordinary tome. It's colorful and put together with love and grace. For the gardener, FLORA readily finds a home on the shelf.

In the Sept. 15 issue, Lancaster Farming has scheduled the fall 2001 Foraging Around, the quarterly newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council. That issue of Foraging Around is dedicated to the families who strive to make grass-based farming work. Also included will be news and information important to the grazier and forage grower.

Lamb Skillathon Selects Champions At Ag Progress

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Champions of the annual Lamb Skillathon and Lamb Show at Ag Progress were announced late Wednesday afternoon.

Supreme champions of the combined events included Kim Langhans, Denise Hardisky, David Neagley, and Molly Enos.

Reserve overall champions were Dana Hardisky, Deidra Smith, and George Peters.

Showmanship judge was Keith Bryan, Penn State instructor. Steve Taylor, farm manager of Lyn-Lee Farm in State College, was type judge. Fred Rudy, Charles Itle, and several Penn State specialists helped coordinate the show.

Handing out ribbons was Deidra Smith, Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen.

Forty-six youth participated in the skillathon. The purpose is to promote the educational aspects of livestock production, which is measured by tests in identifying equipment, identifying feedstuffs, identifying meat cuts, and a knowlege quiz on quality assurance and one on general management.

The event is sponsored by the College of Agricultural Sciences and Ag Progress Days. It is conducted by faculty and staff from the Department of Dairy and Animal Science and members of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Scholarship Foundation. Proceeds from the entry fees go to the scholarship foundation, which this year was $400.

Winners in each age group will receive a saving bond for $200 and the runner-up receives a $100 bond.

No-Till Vegetable Transplanter To Be Demonstrated In Chester County

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Thanks to a new piece of equipment, farmers in Southeastern Pennsylvania can transplant vegetable plants with minimal disturbance of the ground.

Traditionally, vegetable farmers have been limited to plowing, leveling fields and then finally planting the vegetable plants. With this new equipment, no-till vegetable transplanter, farmers can make a slice in the soil and place the vegetable plants in the ground all in one pass while leaving the ground cover relatively undisturbed.

On Thursday, Aug. 30 at 6 p.m. at the Peter Flynn Farm in Westtown Township, Chester County, the new style of vegetable planter will be demonstrated to local farmers and other interested individuals.

Farmers will have the opportunity to test the new equipment and make arrangements to use it on their own vegetable farms.

The Southeastern Pennsylvania Resource Conservation and Development (SEPA RC&D) Council purchased the no-till vegetable transplanter and is making it available to farmers for free.

According to Arthur B. Holland, chairman of the SEPA RC&D, "We wanted to give farmers the opportunity to try this new equipment and see how beneficial it can be."

SEPA RC&D was able to purchase the no-till vegetable transplanter thanks to grants from the PA DEP Growing Greener Grant Center and the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service. The transplanter was specially made and one of three in the Eastern United States. It is patterned after Steve Groff's of Cedar Meadow Farm, Lancaster County.

"Using no-till," said Holland, "to transplant late season vegetables is one best ways to protect the fields from those summer cloud bursts and also retain moisture because of the protective mulch left on the surface of the field."

The Peter Flynn Farm is located at near the intersection of Westtown Road and Route 926 in Westtown Township, Chester County. Signs will be posted along the roads directing people to the demonstration.

For more information about the demonstration or SEPA RC&D, please contact their office at 824 Main Street, Pennsburg, PA or by calling (215) 541-7930.

Rodale Schedules Field Day

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A Rodale Institute Field Day and Workshop is scheduled Thursday, Aug. 23, from 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. here at The Rodale Institute.

The event will be conducted at The Rodale Institute Experimental Farm, 611 Siegfriedale Road, Kutztown.

It is co-sponsored by Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and USDA Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems.

Free admission, mileage reimbursement, and lunch to the first 100 registered participants. Preregistration is required. Walk-ins must register upon arrival.

Highlights include soil management for improved water quality, livestock/nutrient management for improved water quality, cover crops and rotations, transition to organic, marketing techniques, and farm equipment tour.

For more information, call (610) 683-1432, fax: (610) 683-8548, or e-mail: info@rodaleinst.org. Website is www.rodaleinstitute.org.

FEEDING MANAGEMENT STARTS WITH PLANTING THE RIGHT CROPS

Tim Beck
Regional Dairy
Program Coordinator

Tim Beck

Feeding management that provides choices to the dairy producer and nutritionist requires advanced planning. Having the right forages available in sufficient amounts at the right time, stored in an acceptable way, is a constant challenge to producers. An approach that may help producers accomplish this goal is to start at the end of the process and work backward.

Forage and grain crops are frequently produced as feed for the dairy herd, so it makes sense to start by projecting a complete feeding plan, including all cattle groups, for the next two to three years. Be sure to include young stock and dry cows in the plan and have your nutritionist formulate the rations you use to make these calculations to be sure forage feeding rates are sound.

A planning tool to make this process easier is the spreadsheet "Dairy Farm Feed Cost Control." While this tool may help identify ways to reduce feed costs, it is also a powerful planning tool to match forage production to the needs of the herd. Download this spreadsheet at http://www.das.psu.edu/teamdairy/costcontrol/.

The software will help you estimate the storage capacity of existing structures and account for storage and feeding losses. The spreadsheet helps the planner look at the supply of "the big three" nutrients: crude protein, neutral detergent fiber, and NEL (energy) for the rations planned.

Using this approach, the producer will quickly learn the projected acreage and yields required to produce the grain and forage crops needed to feed the herd. Comparing this information to historical yields and available acreage and combining it with crop rotation plans, storage capacity considerations and equipment availability, the producer can determine the "right crops" to plant and in what amounts. When cow numbers are to be increased, the producer needs to begin building feed inventory at least two years before the planned expansion occurs. It's desirable to always have some surplus fermented silage on hand, stored so that it can be easily fed at all times.

Many larger management issues affect this planning process. These include: what feedstuffs should be grown on the farm and what should be purchased? What feedstuffs are easiest to purchase, transport, and store? Do cropping plans allow for emergency crop production such as summer annuals when needed? What crops are best adapted to the soils and climate on the farm? How can nutrients from manure best be utilized?

The producer's nutrient management plan heavily influences cropping decisions to make best use of the nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium present in the farm's soils. Harvesting whole plant silages reduces potassium levels, but has little impact on nitrogen or phosphorus levels. Dry cow forages are best grown on low potassium soils. Penn State has many agronomy resources available to help producers develop sound nutrient management plans.

Other important crop issues include the labor availability of the operation, minimizing the use of pesticides through IPM practices and minimizing soil erosion. Much useful information on these topics is available in Agronomy Facts 57 "Crop Rotation Planning for Dairy Farms." Download a copy at http://www.agronomy.psu.edu/Extension/Facts/AgFacts.htm or request a copy from the local county extension office.

For optimum dairy herd performance, a producer needs to control the feedstuffs available to the herd. While many variables influence how forage supply ultimately works out, having a well-thought-out forage plan that considers animal needs, soils and climate, labor availability, pesticide use, nutrient management, and soil erosion control is the first step toward taking control of this important management issue. For additional information on these topics, contact Tim Beck at (717) 840-7408 or e-mail tbeck@psu.edu.

Dairy PLUS

A new booklet will appear in the Sept. 22 issue, just in time for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg.

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus is scheduled to include dairy industry news and information never seen before in the paper, including expanded DHIA reports, information about dairy herd expansion, nontraditional dairy marketing, and a calendar of events strictly for dairy producers.

Montgomery County Honors Outstanding 4-H'er, Names Ambassadors

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Outstanding 4-H'ers were honored during opening ceremonies here late last week at the Montgomery County 4-H Fair.

Richard Ferraioli Jr., who plans to enroll in Hofstra University to study dramatic arts, was honored as Outstanding 4-H Member by the Montgomery County 4-H Cabinet Advisory Board.

The 18-year-old son of Madelyn and Richard Ferraioli, Royersford, also received the Matthew Bailey Memorial Scholarship in the amount of $500 at the ceremony. Presenting the award was State Rep. John A. Lawless (R-150th).

Richard, a Spring-Ford High School graduate, has a career in 4-H spanning a decade. President of the Furry Friends 4-H, a rabbit and cavy club, Richard noted that he has been helping to promote a "theater club" in 4-H and a "theater day camp," he said.

The theater and day camp experiences are something he wants to combine out of love. He has been an actor in about 45 high school plays and directed, also.

He plans to attend Hofstra University to receive a bachelor's in fine arts degree.

Richard's favorite 4-H experience was as camp counselor. He's enjoyed participating in day camp since he was 13. He also served two years ago as 4-H ambassador and attended the Pennsylvania Cooperative Council meetings at state and national levels.

Richard is a teen leader in the 4-H Rabbit and Cavy Club and active in the "Have Animals, Will Travel" community service program.

Ambassadors for the past year were also honored. They were Matt and twin brother Ryan Kadwill, sons of Nancy and Richard Kadwill, Collegeville. Nancy is an extension agent in the county who serves as 4-H coordinator.

Matt, 18, has spent a decade as a 4-H member. He's a senior at St. Pius X Catholic School, where he is active on stage crew and the soccer team. He has participated in several 4-H activities.

Ryan, also at St. Pius X, plans to major in history at Penn State because he "enjoys the subject," he said. That's in response to his involvement, along with his brother, as Civil War re-enactors. Their regiment recently participated in a re-enactment in Leesburg, Va., two weeks ago.

Ryan also enjoys stage crew and played junior varsity soccer at St. Pius X.

Matt and Ryan have served as 4-H day camp counselors, attended 4-H State Capitol Day, were selected to the Leadership Development Academy, and attended the regional 4-H Leadership Congress.

All three 4-H'ers honored at the fair have been in 4-H Teen Council and attended the state 4-H Achievement Days. There, Ryan and Matt recently placed first in the state with their team demonstration, on "Echoes of Glory, the Civil War Musician."

Matt plans to enroll in the Coast Guard Academy. This draws from his love of sailing and his "favorite" spot, he said — Sunset Beach, N.C., above Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Montgomery County Selects Champion Lambs

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Wendell Landis, 16, exhibited champion lamb and Kelly Gehman won reserve here late last week at the Montgomery County 4-H Roundup.

Wendell, 16, son of Robert and Joni Landis, Salford, won his first champion at the roundup with a Hampshire wether.

Wendell, a junior at Christopher Dock Mennonite High School, purchased the 110-pound lamb from his grandfather, Warren Landis of Franconia.

Kelly Gehman, 11, daughter of Sue and Bob Gehman, Quakertown, won reserve with "Lilly," a Dorset spring ewe lamb. Kelly said she liked the name, and this is her first champion. She is a member of Green Pastures 4-H Sheep Club and purchased the lamb from a cousin, Bethany Tuhacek, Harleysville.

Northumberland Conservation District Schedules Twilight Meetings

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The Northumberland County Conservation District and the Penn State Cooperative Extension are sponsoring two Twilight Meetings for the farmers of Northumberland County on Aug. 28 and Sept. 11.

The Aug. 28 meeting will be conducted at the Wolfe Powerline Dairy near Montandon. The meeting set for Sept. 11 will take place at Mike Percoskie's rotational grazing beef farm near Herndon. Both meetings will begin with a tour of the facilities given by the host farmer. A barbecued dinner will be served to all guests. For reservations, please call (570) 286-7114, ext. 4.

The meetings will have speakers covering topics including a Farm Service Agency Program Update, Pesticide Record Keeping, Niche Markets, a Natural Resource Conservation Service Program Update, and strategies for Fly/Maggot Control.

The August meeting will include a speaker on Biosecurity and Odor Control and guests are invited to watch the evening milking.

The September meeting will include a speaker on the Human Health Benefits of Grass-fed Livestock.

Private pesticide applicators should bring their applicator's license to receive 1 Core and 1 Category credit towards their pesticide certification renewal. They must be present for the entire program.

There is no charge to attend either meeting. For directions and to make reservation for the dinner, call the Northumberland County Conservation District at (570) 286-7114, ext. 4. Reservations need to be made by Aug. 21 for the meeting at the Wolfe Powerline Dairy and by Sept. 4 for the meeting at Mike Percoskie's.

West End Fair Junior Livestock Sale Announces Results

LAURELTON (Union Co.) — The 23rd annual Union County West End Fair Junior Livestock Sale was conducted in Laurelton recently. Fifty-nine different members of several Union County 4-H Clubs and the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter sold animals at the sale.

A total of 118 lots containing eight rabbit meat pens, 10 steers, 39 market hogs, and 61 market lambs were sold.

Forty-eight buyers supported the youth by purchasing animals at the 76th annual Union County West End Fair. This year's sale grossed more than $43,100 which broke the previous record. Bryan Imes of Port Royal served as the auctioneer at the sale.

The grand champion market steer was purchased by Robert Hamm for the Country Cupboard Restaurant, Lewisburg. A bid of $2 per pound was accepted for the 1,285-pound Angus steer, owned by Rhonda Hook. Rhonda is the daughter of Steven and Wanda Hook and is a member of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter.

The 1,315-pound reserve champion market steer was purchased by Sue Iddlings for The Carriage Corner Restaurant and Idding's Quarry for $1.35 per pound. Adam Wolfe was the owner and is a member of the Kelly-ite 4-H Club. The Lewisburg native is the son of Dennis and Anna Wolfe.

Other steers were sold at an average price of $.99 per pound.

The champion market Hog was sold for $7 per pound and was purchased by Ken Fetteroth for Keystone Show Pigs. The 253-pound crossbred hog was owned by Trista Smith of Millmont. The FFA member will be a senior at the Mifflinburg Area High School this fall and is the daughter of Terry Smith.

Courtney Benner was the owner of the 244-pound Hampshire Duroc crossbred reserve champion. It was purchased by Dennis Keeger for the West Milton State Bank at $6 per pound.

The average sale price for the other 37 hogs was $1.70 per pound.

The grand champion market lamb was purchased by the Mifflinburg Bank and Trust Company for $7 a pound. The 126-pound lamb was owned by Tristan Roupp of Mifflinburg. Tristan is a member of the Mifflinburg FFA Chapter and is the son of Richard and Cindy Roupp.

A 118-pound lamb owned by Shauna Wolfe of Mifflinburg was named the reserve champion. It was sold to the West Milton State Bank for $2 a pound. The Mifflinburg FFA graduate is the daughter of William and Jean Wolfe.

The average sale price for the nonchampion lambs was $1.35.

Cornell Marketing Program Aims For Selling Goats Per Pound

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Northeast Sheep and Goat Marketing Program at Cornell University has approached many of the major meat goat associations in the east to join in support for an effort to encourage major livestock sales organizations to begin marketing meat goats by the pound rather than by the head.

A suggested resolution to that effect was forwarded to these associations and they were encouraged to communicate on this issue with their membership.

Associations contacted include: Empire State Meat Goat Association; Lower Shore Goat Producers Association (Maryland); Virginia Meat Goat Association; Tennessee Valley Goat Association; Georgia Meat Goat Association; and South Carolina Meat Goat Association.

Half of the meat goats slaughtered in the country under Federal Inspection are slaughtered in northeast slaughter facilities and many of these pass through livestock markets in the region.

Most of these markets sell goats by the head to processors and retailers who must then sell their product by the pound.

Additionally, market reports from the sale barns do not present prices in a method which will allow for comparison.

As a result, a move to pricing by the pound will allow processors and retailers to more easily estimate their costs. It will provide market reporters with prices that are comparable and give producers a clearer understanding of what their livestock are worth, where the premium markets might be and what type, size or condition sells best.

This is an issue that will require all producers to join together and express strongly their concern. It also is an opportunity for producers to express their economic power by supporting those institutions which do make the change to a fairer more understandable method of pricing our product. And finally, it is an issue which can help to organize an industry that is in its infancy, but growing rapidly and with a strong consumer base.

If you are not a member of a goat organization, give consideration to seeking one out. If none exist in your area, this is a time to seek out like minded producers and organize one. The groups listed above all have Websites and are accessible through the Maryland Small Ruminant Page (www.sheepandgoat.com) or at www.sheepgoat-marketing.org.

The Northeast Sheep and Goat Marketing Program was established to improve the ability of farmers to market their sheep and goats.

The program is funded through a grant from the USDA.

The grant funds were made available as a result of a petition filed by the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) et al. to slow the flow of cheap imported lamb into the U.S. and are intended to improve the competitive position of the domestic industry.

Members of the program can be reached by telephone at (607) 255-2850 or by e-mail at rjm55@cornell.edu.

York Conservation District Recognizes Farms

YORK (York Co.) — At its annual awards picnic on July 31, the York County Conservation District honored three of York County's farms.

The Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award for northern York County was awarded to Cedar Hill Farm. Owned and operated by Jim and Brenda Eisenhour, the farm is a family operation with their children and grandchildren all contributing. They raise beef, swine and poultry, and farm about 4,000 acres of cropland in the Wellsville area.

Their 4,000 acres are covered by conservation plans. There is a voluntary approved nutrient management plan on the operation as well. With manure from three different types of animals, Jim Jr. must carefully manage what crops receive what type of manure and when.

The home beef operation is in the Chesapeake Bay Program. A barnlot improvement project was completed there in 2001.

Cedar Hill's 627 acres are in the Ag Land Preservation Program and the Eisenhours have encouraged their neighbors to also participate. The Eisenhours have implemented conservation crop rotations, conservation tillage, contour farming and contour stripcropping, and diversions and waterways on their cropland.

Poultry has been a part of their operation for 21 years with beef cows and calves on rental farms for 20 years before expanding into the steer business in 1994. The Eisenhours have been involved in raising beef cattle for 25 years through 4-H, where Jim and Brenda have been beef leaders for 25 years. Daughters Susan and Sandy are involved with 4-H meat judging and the grandchildren show dairy and beef animals.

The family is involved in the Pennsylvania Angus Association and South Central Cattleman's Association, where Brenda and Jim have served as directors. In 2000 the farm received the Outstanding Beef Producers Award. Son-in-law Terry is a director with the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council.

Jim and Brenda Eisenhour, son Jim Jr., and daughter-in-law Gloria with the Outstanding Conservation Farmer Award.

In the southern end of York County, Roy, better known as "Butch" Jackson, owner of Sky Blue Farms near Felton, received the Conservation Farmer of the Year Award.

Jackson has been farming in York County his entire life. Prior to 1975, he farmed with his father until going out on his own. In 1980 he purchased his father's farm operation. He and his wife Lisa have been cooperators with the conservation district and have worked regularly with the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

On his 2,500 acres of owned and rented farms Jackson practices soil conservation by using no-till almost exclusively. In addition, he follows contour farming or contour stripcropping on most of his cropland.

He is also careful to install grassed waterways where concentrated flow occurs. Two years ago he purchased a large "pan," or scraper, so that he can construct his own waterways, even on rental land without depending on USDA cost-sharing, although he still constructs them to NRCS size and specifications.

On his own initiative, Jackson requested recommendations on fencing his cattle out of a stream, and is on the waiting list for DEP's program to install fencing and a livestock crossing to help protect the water quality.

Last fall he seeded a rye cover crop in order to provide additional erosion control on fields where he had harvested soybeans. Other local farmers noticed this effort and mentioned to NRCS that they were watching to see what the results would be.

Jackson is experimenting with cutting back on commercial fertilizer application through more efficient use of applied manure. With the help of his son Andy, who is a vital part of Sky Blu Farms' operation, his fields will soon have computerized mapping that will allow precision application of fertilizer and lime using the Global Positioning System.

The Jackson's are an excellent role model for conservation farming in York County.

The York County Conservation District has announced John Shearer Jr. as their 2001 Clean Water Farm Award recipient.

Shearer began farming in 1952 and at age 19 bought his first tractor and was farming 100-200 acres. From the beginning, though, Shearer has always maintained that "we should keep the ground on the field where it belongs" and from that belief his long career as an environmental steward began.

In 1952 when Shearer was farming rented ground, which was severely eroding into a nearby stream. Shearer convinced the landowner to allow him to contact the local SCS technician and soon the land was being farmed on the contour with diversions and waterways being implemented.

On his home farm, Shearer has 100 percent of his conservation plan implemented, which included installing a spring development and stream bank fencing to keep the cattle out of the stream. He has also taken on projects, ignoring the expense because it was the right thing to do. Shearer has fixed a huge gully with rock, which was more expensive than other alternatives. At his own cost, he has fenced his cattle out of the woods. He also follows nutrient management and soil test recommendations when applying nutrients.

Shearer has conservation plans on all the land he rents and uses no-till and cover crops on most of his land. When asked about all the work he has put into his conservation practices, he said, "I'm not sorry I did it. I think it should have been done long before it was."

Shearer takes soil tests regularly and follows the recommendations regarding fertilizer, pesticide, herbicide, and manure applications. He also follows proper nutrient management techniques and has his barn lot in very good shape. John has even offered his farm to be used for conservation training.

John, his wife Shirley and son Thomas, have shown that farming can be done with both the bottom line and the environment in mind.

Roy Jackson his wife Lisa and son Andy and daughter-in-law Meghan with the Conservation Farm of the Year Award.

USDA Announces New Confidentiality Guidelines For Livestock Mandatory Reporting Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA announced Aug. 3 new confidentiality guidelines for the Livestock Mandatory Reporting Program which will increase the number of reports available while protecting the identity of market participants. These changes will become effective Aug. 20.

The new "3/70/20" confidentiality guideline will require the following three conditions:

- At least three reporting entities need to provide data at least 50 percent of the time over the most recent 60-day time period.
- No single reporting entity may provide more than 70 percent of the data for a report over the most recent 60-day time period.
- No single reporting entity may be the sole reporting entity for an individual report more than 20 percent of the time over the most recent 60-day time period.

The notice is available on AMS's Website and will be published in a future issue of the Federal Register. For additional information, contact John Van Dyke, Chief, Livestock and Grain Market News, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 2619, 1400 Independence Ave. SW, Washington, D.C. 20090-2619; telephone (202) 720-6231; fax (202) 690-3732; or e-mail john:vandyke@usda.gov.

Tompkins County N.Y. Farm City Day Aug. 25

ITHACA, N.Y. — The fourth annual Tompkins County Farm City Day will be Saturday, Aug. 25, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Melon Foundation, corner of Route 34B and Fenner Road in Lansing, N.Y.

The host farm, owned by Laurie and Rob Todd, is a diverse enterprise specializing in melons both unusual and familiar. Also found on the farm is an orchard, berry patches and an assortment of vegetable and flower beds.

Farm City Day is sponsored by the County's Agriculture and Farmland Protection Board and provides the non-farming public with an opportunity to learn about area agriculture while visiting a working farm. Especially popular are the guided wagon ride farm tours, the sheep and Border Collie demonstration, and the animal exhibit.

New this year, and sure to be popular with young and old alike, will be the watermelon seed spittin' contest. Farm City Day also features an auction offering an array of local goods and services to benefit the County Ag in the Classroom program.

The event is sponsored in conjunction with Cornell Cooperative Extension of Tompkins County and area agriculture businesses and organizations. For questions and more information, contact Cooperative Extension at (607) 272-2292.

Lazarus Takes Market Show, Miller Wins Breeds At Kutztown

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A variety of breeds turned out for exhibition during this week's Kutztown Fair's sheep show.

Eight rams and 12 ewes competed for supreme champion honors in the breed show. Amanda Miller's animals earned the top prize for both ewe and ram classes.

In the ring during champion ram selection, judge Lee Wagner, Easton, noted the quality of the eight rams that topped their respective breed classes. Three of the rams, said Wagner, were in "serious contention," for supreme champion honors.

"When I select a supreme champion I look for the animal that is closest to the ideal for each breed," said Wagner. Amanda's winning ram combined soundness, style, and balance, according to the judge.

Twelve ewes won their classes to move on to compete for the grand champion honor. Miller's Shropshire ewe won the supreme champion ewe title.

The daughter of Ronald and Joan Miller, Bernville, Amanda has been around sheep all of her life at the family's 50-sheep farm.

A 4-H and FFA participant, she has nine years of experience in the show ring. This fall Amanda will be a sophomore at Tulpehocken High School.

Also during Kutztown Fair Miller earned grand champion fitter and grand champion showmanship honors, besides a second place in her class in the blocking and grooming competition. Additionally she exhibited the champion lightweight market sheep.

Cathy Levan, new Berks County Sheep and Wool Queen, earned the reserve champion showman placing. Levan, Hamburg, was crowned at the recent Reading Fair.

Lorissa Lazarus, Breinigsville, took home grand champion market lamb placing. The lamb was first named champion middleweight. "This is an honest kind of lamb that combines balance and thickness," said Wagner.

Also during the fair, in the swine show Lorissa gathered the supreme champion gilt placing with her Yorkshire February gilt.

Meat, muscle condition, and extension marked the reserve champion market sheep exhibited by Shelby Rarick, 9, Fleetwood.

She also exhibited the grand champion pair of market lambs.

Although she has exhibited animals since she was three years old, this year is Shelby's first year of 4-H.

Her experience paid off in the showmanship classes, where she earned a first place. She was also first in her class in the sheep fitting competition and reserve champion fitter.

Miller Reviews Beef Show At Plainfield Farmers' Fair

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

BANGOR (Northampton Co.) — Judge Ron Miller, Bernville, Fair Fund Administrator for Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) recently reviewed the entries of the open steer show at the Plainfield Farmers' Fair.

Miller selected the medium weight class winner named Sprocket exhibited by Gwen Wagner as the champion market steer of the show. Reserve champion market steer honors went to Jennifer Hower with "Sunrise Sunny," the second place winner of the medium weight class.

York 4-H Dairy Winners Named

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A York County homebred cow continued a winning streak when she was named the York 4-H dairy roundup supreme champion.

Woodbine Rudolph Ellie, a senior 3-year-old exhibited by Christi Knight, Airville, won the supreme champion title over a parade of breed champions lined up as the show's grand finale. Judges Jessica Fritz and Gus Swartzbeck, both from Maryland, singled out the tall, framey Holstein as their top winner at annual roundup event conducted at the York Expo Center.

Rudolph carries an Ex-90 classification score and is milking over 100 pounds a month into her third lactation. She earned junior All-Pennsylvania honors as a milking yearling and was Honorable Mention All-Pennsylvania last year as a senior 2-year-old for her 15-year-old owner Rudolph is a great granddaughter of the All-Time American Ella cow developed by the Knight family's Woodbine Farms at Airville.

Best animal bred and owned champion at the show was Jacob Hushon's stylish Brown Swiss fall yearling, Brothers Three Wisper. The Airville 4-H'er earlier won junior champion honors in the Brown Swiss breed categories with the tall and dairy heifer.

In the Ayrshire breed show, Susan Richardson took both senior and junior champion titles with homebreds from the family's Fawn Valley farm at Fawn Grove. Fawn Valley Soldier, Richardson's junior 3-year-old, headed up the cow classes and was named best bred and owned. Reserve senior and grand champion was Fordville Mandy Ruger's, the senior 2-year-old exhibited by Jamie Welsh, East Berlin.

Fawn Valley Billy, first-place fall calf, was junior champion for Richardson, with her second-placing fall calf in the reserve junior champion spot.

Senior and grand champion of the Brown Swiss show was the junior 2-year-old exhibited by Lisa Jones, Airville, Stone Fence Jetway Evie. A herdmate, Stone Fence Emorys, earned the reserve senior and grand honors for the Airville 4-H'er.

Jacob Hushon's spring yearling and best owner-breeder animal overall, Brothers Three Wisper, topped the Brown Swiss heifer classes. In the runner-up spot was the second place spring yearling, Top Acres Coll Party, exhibited by Joseph Hushon.

Guernsey honors were split by sisters Terri and Kelly Johnson, York. Senior and grand champion was Rutter Bros Perfectos, the aged cow exhibited by Terri Johnson. Kelly Johnson took the reserve senior and grand rosettes with her senior 2-year-old, Rutter Bros Lords Eager.

Both top junior animals were winter calves exhibited by Terri Johnson. Rutter Bros Royal Oaks took the junior champion title and was selected the best bred and owned in the Guernsey breed show. Johnson's Rutter Bros Logics was the reserve junior champion winner.

Both heifer champion awards went to Amanda Thompson. Springfield Flyer Prestige, a fall calf, was the junior champion, over her spring yearling penmate Julie-K Declo Delight.

A small Milking Shorthorn category included only heifer entries, with the winter yearling exhibited by Carlyn Crowl, Delta, earning the junior and grand champion awards. Carlyn exhibited the reserve junior and grand designee as well, a winter calf Joy-El K-Schie Laurel.

Champion overall showman was veteran 4-H and open class Brown Swiss exhibitor Jacob Hushon, 17, Delta. Showman winners by age class included Christopher Kilgore, 7, Airville, cloverbud category, novice winner Lydia Eddinger, 12, New Freedom, Layne Shaffer, 9, Thomasville in the 8-10 age category, Trisha Knight, 12, Airville, in the 11-13 age group, and Christina Knight, 15, Airville, in the 14-19 age group.

Berks And Chester County Conservation Districts To Host Ag Days

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an effort to educate municipal officials about the ever changing face of agriculture, Chester and Berks County Conservation Districts will be hosting Ag Days for all township officials and their families. Ag Days is a fresh look at the changing family farm and how it affects local municipalities. The programs are free and include a family dinner, children's activities and a program on "Agricultural Growth in the New Millennium" which offers tools for township officials to deal with agriculture in local communities.

The Chester County program will be Aug. 21, from 5:30-8 p.m., at the Brandywine Valley Association Myrick Environmental Center in West Chester. The Berks County program will be Aug. 31, from 5-8 p.m., at Blue Falls Grove in Leesport.

The feature topic includes a presentation on Agricultural Law — Zoning, Farmland Preservation, Nutrient Management, and Local Ordinances by Christine Kellett, professor at the Penn State Dickinson Agricultural Law and Research Center. In addition, the conservation district will present Environmentally Responsible Farm Operations and Their Connection to Nutrient Management and Conservation Plans. A panel consisting of farmers, municipal officials, and agency representatives will provide further agricultural and environmental information.

For more information and registration for the Berks County program, please contact John Ravert at the Berks County Conservation District, (610) 372-4657. For information and registration for the Chester County program, please contact Scott Lackey at the Chester County Conservation District, (610) 696-5126.

Conservation Practices For Lanes

Colbert said that dirt and gravel road construction and maintenance should follow nature's principles as much as possible, instead of trying to strong-arm natural forces in the process.

"Our fallacy is to believe we can overpower nature," he said.

The SCC program dirt and gravel road program was initiated in 1997 to help local municipalities fix problems with dirt and gravel roads while preventing runoff of sediment into waterways, but the concepts and materials promoted by the program also have many applications for rural properties.

One the problems with many farm lanes is that water has been washing them out for decades or even centuries, creating a situation in which "now the lane is the ditch," Colbert said.

The first thing that needs to be done in those cases is to raise the level of the lane by hauling in fill — with no clay in it and preferably containing stones for stability.

"One of our favorite things to find is free fill," Colbert said of the necessity of raising road beds to help them shed water.

After the lane or road level is raised with fill, separation fabric may or may not be laid depending on whether environmental conditions will pose a problem with water and clay eroding the surface from underneath.

The "driving surface aggregate" recommended by the SCC for the top layer of road contains a higher percentage of fine rock particles than is required for most roadways, as well as having tight specifications for other grades of stone in the mix.

A resin obtained from the residue of Pennsylvania-type oil is applied to the road surface as a binder. According to Colbert, the resin meets SCC requirements as it is environmentally safer than the asphalt binders used in other road surfaces.

Colbert's program teaches how to build diversions to intercept water before it reaches roadways or, in some cases, to channel the water across the roadway without eroding it.

Many water diversion systems try to get rainwater off the land as quickly as possible by channeling it into streams, but Colbert recommends a different approach.

"We say hold the water on your farm and let it soak in," he said.

Colbert said the process of building durable roads and lanes includes paying attention to how and where water flows in natural systems.

"We copy what we see is stable in Mother Nature," he said.

Michael Silsbee, director of Penn State's Center for Dirt and Gravel Road Studies, said that the $5 million in annual funding for the program goes directly to the SCC independent of the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

Each county conservation district is allocated a portion of the funds according to miles of unpaved roads in the county, Silsbee said. $4 million of the funds go to the conservation districts; the remainder go to the Bureau of Forestry for maintaining state forest roads.

A survey conducted two years ago identified about 9,500 "hotspots" that need attention on Pennsylvania's unpaved roads, Silsbee said. He estimated between 25 and 45 years will be needed to correct them

"The long term goal is to get (counties and municipalities) to use other funds," he said.

Forest Stewardship

Visitors on a forest tour gathered practical ideas on how to make decisions that demonstrate good stewardship of the many resources found in a woodlot.

About 40 acres of woodland onsite are managed by Penn State forestry professor James Findley and his students with goals of harvesting timber to pay for management practices, producing firewood, creating wildlife habitat, and supporting educational programs.

During the hour-long tour, Findley pointed out examples within the complex woodlot ecosystem that call for stewardship decisions on the part of the landowner.

"You always have to make a decision about what you want today and what you want tomorrow," he said.

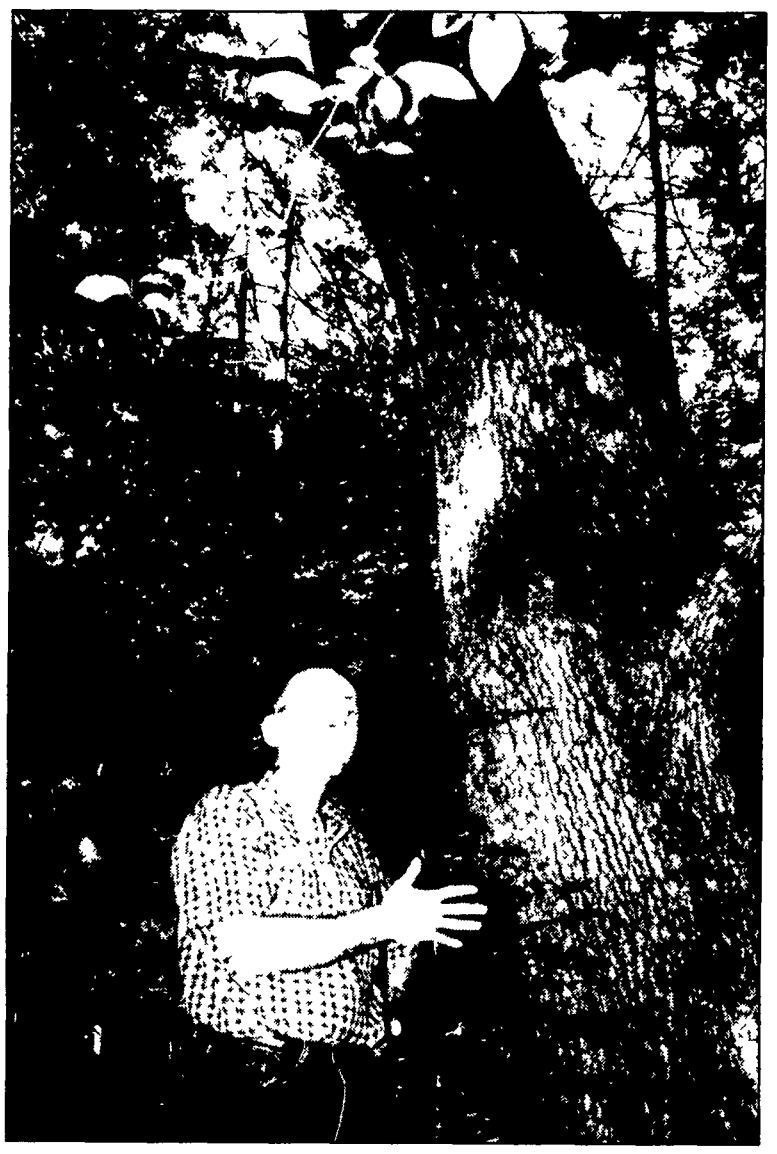
One example that illustrated that tension was of grapevines competing for sunlight with a young red oak tree. The grapevines provide habitat for a variety of wildlife but inhibit the growth of the oak tree. In deciding whether or not to let the grapevine grow, the landowner first has to decide, in this case, whether to manage in favor of wildlife or future timber from the oak tree.

The same kind of question applied to the whole woodlot can allow for both present wildlife habitat and future timber, but good stewardship requires hard thinking about that balance, Findley pointed out.

"Constantly we have to think about trade-offs," he said.

Landowners harvesting trees for timber need to ask two crucial questions: What are they leaving as a residual stand and what are they leaving for regeneration? A portion of the money from timber sales "should go back into answering those questions," he said.

Many landowners take the view, "'I own this land and pay the taxes. I want to maximize my profits,'" Findley said.



James Findley, Penn State forestry professor, conducted woodlot tours for visitors at Ag Progress Days. In practicing forest stewardship, "You always have to make a decision about what you want today and what you want tomorrow," Findley said.

According to Findley, a common practice threatening Pennsylvania forests is that of diameter-limit cuts, where all timber trees larger than a specified diameter are cut from an area "regardless of where it is or what trees are nearby."

"We're making some lousy decisions right now," he said. "We have to have human manipulation of the process, but we have to do better."

Findley and R.D. Hixon of the Pennsylvania Game Commission pointed out area where young trees had been browsed by deer.

Young trees and seedlings in woodlands with dense deer populations can be browsed so heavily that regeneration of the forest is threatened.

One of the primary benefits of extending the deer hunting season is "to allow the forests of Pennsylvania to recover," Hixon said.

Also included in the tour were examples of corridors that increase wildlife diversity by promoting varying vegetation heights and creating travel lanes for wildlife.

How far will government control go? This issue affects all of us. We need to standup for democracy and the right to vote. Can you help!

Morrison Cove Two-Day Show Ends With A Jersey Supreme

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — The open Morrisons Cove Dairy Show ended with a nine-year-old Jersey being named supreme champion while a Holstein took reserve honors.

Both of these outstanding dairy cows are products of the descendants of animals owned by the John W. Fisher family. Hence, they appropriately received the John W. Fisher award.

"It took us ten years to have the family receive the award," says Keith Fisher. The Fisher family of New Enterprise had turned out in droves to receive the honor.

Sue Bets Holsteins was named Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor.

Naming the supreme champion ended a two-day event for judge Dale Wack of Harmony.

The show opened with the colored breeds.

Two aged cows owned by Alan Brant received all champion honors.

Nick Burket showed the grand champion Brown Swiss. Reserve honors went to Smantha Foster.

Grand champion Guernsey was a three-year-old owned by Beth Anne Clark while reserve honors went to Aaron Gable with an aged cow.

Ashley and Kristen Fisher earned senior and grand champion honors in Jersey competition. Hard Core Farm took reserve ribbons.

Holstein competition ended the two-day event with grand champion honors going to Madison Fisher. Reserve black and white honors went to Ernest Bert Jr.

4-H, FFA Show Kick Off Dairy Week At Morrison Cove

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — The weather was pleasant and skies remained clear for the annual Morrisons Cove Dairy Show held at the Morrisons Cove Memorial Park in Martinsburg.

A variety of events for young people such as a youth calf dressing contest, youth dairy judging contest, the Southwest District Junior Dairy Show and an Open Horse Show accompanied the primary goal of the event which is dairy competition.

The following winners were selected for the 4-H and FFA events.

Judge Dan Carroll of Oldwick, New Jersey was the judge throughout the week. Blair County colored breed champion was a Guernsey owned by Mary Morrow. The Bob Hetrick Award for the best owned and bred went to Erin Shaw for a 3-year-old Holstein.

The supreme champion award went to Erin Shaw for a Holstein and Aaron Gable took home the reserve supreme award for an aged cow.

Erin Shaw took the senior reserve senior and grand champion awards in the Holstein division. Ernest Bert Jr. had reserve grand champion. The best own and bred was also shown by Shaw.

In the Ayrshire competition, Jason Mowry took home the reserve and grand champion titles for a 2- and 5-year-old respectively. Mowry was also the senior and reserve senior champ. Best bred and owned was shown by Leah McCutcheon.

Edna Schilling showed a 3-year-old, which emerged as grand champion of the Milking Shorthorns. Reserve also went to Schilling for a spring calf. She also took home reserve titles.

Nicholas Burket took home the Brown Swiss grand champion award with a 5-year old cow. Reserve went to Edna Schilling. The same applied to the senior and reserve senior champs. Best owned and bred was shown by Nicholas Burket.

Aaron Gable took home all top awards in Guernsey competition. Best bred and owned went to Corrine Snare with a spring calf.

Lebanon County Youth Places In National Shorthorn Show

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — Nate Tice from Lebanon, son of Tom and Debbie Tice, participated in the 2001 National Junior Shorthorn Shows and Youth Conference conducted in Springfield, Ohio, June 24-30. In the bred and owned show, Tice exhibited the reserve grand champion female — Elmer's Rodeo Stuff in the junior show.

Four hundred ninety-five cattle were exhibited by junior members from across the nation, resulting in one of the most competitive national junior Shorthorn shows ever.

Highlighted shows during the two-day cattle show event included a bred and owned heifer show, cow/calf pairs, an appendix heifer and steer show, as well as a purebred steer show, and finishing up the week was the purebred heifer show.

Variety, Quality At Reading Fair Beef Show

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "There was good variety and quality of breeds here," said Reading Fair Beef Show judge Brian Kreider. "It's good to see a lot of interest in different breeds."

The market class also had exceptionally good quality, said Kreider. Additionally, he said, the exhibitors were well-trained.

Kreider, Lebanon, a Penn State graduate, was a member of the livestock judging team while he attended college and now coaches the Lebanon County livestock judging team, a team that recently won at the 4-H "State Days" in Penn State. He judges between four and seven beef and swine shows in the area each year.

In the breed show, Matt Manbeck's Angus heifer, "Weaverland Bessie Exotic," from Weaverland Valley Farms, New Holland, took home grand champion honors.

Matt plans to take the heifer on to Kutztown and Denver fairs, besides Eastern National, KILE, and Farm Show competitions.

The son of Herman and Connie Manbeck, Womelsdorf, he has been showing since he was eight years old.

He won reserve champion fitter and reserve champion showman honors in the beef classes. Earlier in fair week Matt took home reserve grand champion market hog honors.

Shelby Rarick and Simmental "Hoku," named for a pop singer, took home reserve champion placing .

Shelby, 9, Bernville, was introduced to the show ring at age three by her mother, Kenianne. She plans to exhibit her animals at Kutztown, Allentown, and Oley fairs.

The Raricks have 17 head of Simmental and Shorthorn cattle on their farm.

Shelby was also in the ring showing sheep during the fair. Two of Shelby's four sheep took home grand and reserve champion market lamb honors.

In addition to taking home ribbons in the breed and market beef shows, Shelby also won first place in the junior showmanship division and second place in the junior fitting competition in beef classes.

In the market steer weight classes, Rarick's 1,165-pound steer, "Golden Boy," won the light heavyweight division before he was named grand champion market steer. Rarick purchased the animal from a Shorthorn operation in Virginia.

In his second year of 4-H and second year in the show ring, Clay Brubaker, 10, with "Fearly," clinched reserve champion placing after winning the heavy heavyweight division. "Fearly," a March calf from a beef cattle operation in Maryland, weighed 1,240 pounds.

Clay is the son of Ken and Ginger Brubaker, Womelsdorf, owners of Brubaker Angus @ Forge Hollow Farm. The family owns 35 brood cows

He has been showing animals for two years.

Like many of the exhibitors at the fair, Brubaker rinsed "Fearly" twice daily, put the animal under fans to promote hair growth, and brushed and applied hair conditioner to "Fearly" daily to prepare the steer for the show ring — work that took 1-1.5 hours per day.

Brubaker also garnered a first-place finish in the junior fitting class and a second in the junior showmanship class.

With approximately 20 ewes at home, Brubaker also showed four of his favorites at the fair, where he had the champion Dorset ram and champion Hampshire ewe.

He prefers to show cattle, however, because "they're easier to work with and they listen to me better."

Clay Brubaker, 10, Womelsdorf, and "Fearly" won reserve champion market steer. Shelby Rarick, 9, and Shorthorn "Golden Boy" clinched grand champion honors.

Lamb Market Report For August

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Speculation and reaction to unclear or unavailable market information appears to have driven lamb prices in the opposite direction of industry wide expectations the past several months.

From 1994 through 2000, there has been only one year (1996) where lamb prices did not peak in the May-through-August period. Given the very tight supplies coming into 2001, most expected prices to peak in the late spring through mid-summer months again.

However, slaughter lamb prices in 2001 actually dropped by at least 15 percent from the end of May through the end of June.

A drop in price of this magnitude usually signals a jump in the quantity of lamb available, a drop in demand or some combination of the two.In the United States, sheep slaughter in June was between 9 and 12 percent below that of 2000. However, weights have pushed meat production within 5 percent of a year ago with estimates of some weeks in June being above a year ago.

If meat production were equal to a year ago, and nothing else had changed, it should be reasonable to expect lamb meat prices to be similar to those of 2000. However, lamb carcass prices in June appeared to average between 14 and 27 percent below those of 2000.

It is possible that planning based on contradictory and confusing information played a significant role. As early as January, USDA reported 7 percent more lambs available for market while industry insiders claimed the number was significantly overstated and should be closer to 10 to 15 percent below a year ago.

Plans were made assuming that there were 10 to 15 percent fewer lambs available to the market.

Feedlots and packers stockpiled lambs for May through August, when prices have been highest and supplies tightest six of the previous seven years. Retailers planned on reducing their offerings or finding supplies from alternative sources for May through August.

How long the current situation will last depends on what is the primary economic driver behind recent price levels.

If the primary factor is the industry underestimation of supplies and the resulting planned reduction in offerings or acquiring supplies from alternative sources by retailers, it will depend on how badly the industry underestimated lamb availability.

Independent observers indicate that there are very high numbers of old crop lambs in feedlots for this time of the year. Rough estimations indicate the backlog could be cleared as early as late-July to as late as mid-fall.

Kutztown Fair Announces Goat Show Results

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Jill Neiman and Gwen Powers topped their classes to take home grand champion titles for their animals at Kutztown Fair's recent goat show.

Jill Neiman's Alpine, "Doodle," won the best doe in show title for Neiman, a nine-year show ring veteran and grand champion dairy goat showman. The homebred animal is one of 18 Alpines at Neiman's farm in Fleetwood. She plans to show the goat, champion at the recent Reading Fair, at the upcoming Allentown Fair.

Neiman was introduced to the Alpine breed by her sister, who sold Neiman the goats.

Besides goats, Neiman also exhibits Jersey cattle, Oxford sheep, and one beef steer.

Her second year in the show ring yielded results for Gwen Powers, 13, the champion market goat showman. Gwen picked her animal, "Calvin," from a herd of 30 goats at home. She is the daughter of Ken and Eleanor Powers, Bethel, of Ken-El Acres.

"Calvin" joined herdmate "Hobbes" in the show ring. "Calvin," at 60 pounds, was the heaviest goat exhibited. His level top, meaty loin, and long body combined to make him champion.

She has exhibited her animals at Reading Fair and plans to show at the upcoming Berks County Roundup.

Innes Reed won reserve champion market goat placing. Full results follow:

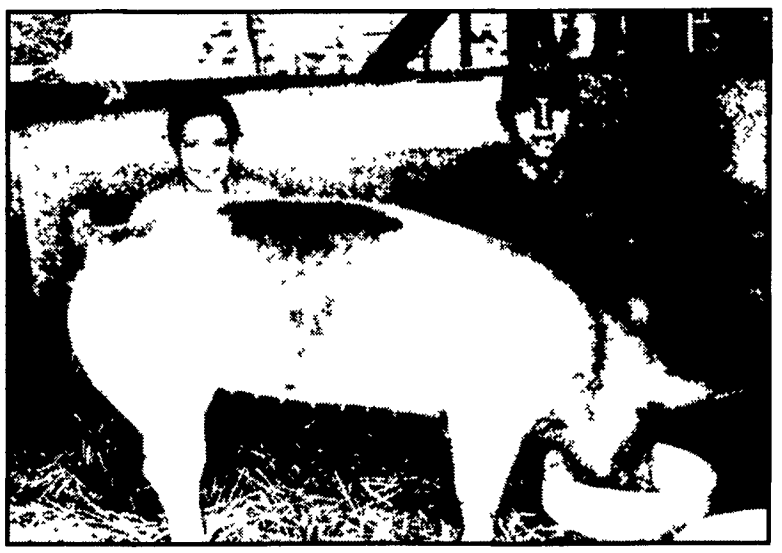
Manbeck Cousins Corner Kutztown Market Swine Show



Stacey and Matt Manbeck took home grand and reserve champion market hog honors, respectively.

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Cousins Stacey and Matt Manbeck took home grand and reserve champion market swine show at this week's Kutztown Fair.

Stacey, 11, and "Cattalena" rose to the top of the heavyweight class before garnering grand champion honors.

She is the daughter of Norman and Karen Manbeck. In the swine fitting competition, Stacey took home a first place finish.

"Cattalena," also exhibited at Reading Fair, is part of the family's 20 head of swine. Stacey owns four of her own hogs and picked out the piglet when it was two months old as her own.

Stacey also exhibits dairy beef.

Matt Manbeck, 17, Womelsdorf, took home reserve grand champion market hog honors. He received the same placing at the recent Reading Fair.

The son of Herman and Connie Manbeck, he gained experience on the family's 200-sow farrow-to-finish unit.

Manbeck drew on his eight years of experience in the show ring to win the grand champion swine showman placing. He also exhibits beef cattle at area fairs.

In the swine breed show, Lorissa Lazarus' Yorkshire won the February gilt class before moving on to be named grand champion and then supreme champion gilt.

Governor's School

students from across Pennsylvania participated in the 16th Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences conducted here in June and July.

Students from Lancaster County who attended the school returned home energized about what they learned and the people they met there.

Derick Bollinger of Manheim Central, Morgan Forney of Hempfield, Andrew Herr of Penn Manor, and Philip Shirk of Lancaster Mennonite were among the local scholars who engaged in five intensive weeks of instruction and hands-on research in topics related to agriculture, science, and the environment.

Several of the students pointed out aspects of the Governor's School that they hadn't anticipated.

Andrew Herr, who lives on the Millersville crop farm of his parents Allan and Amelia Herr and works on a neighboring dairy farm, said he was surprised to find that only about a quarter of the students at the school came from farms, with a large part of them coming from urban and suburban areas.

"I'd never been around city people before," he said.

During the five weeks, Herr said, he came to see that the future of agriculture is open to people of various backgrounds.

"I learned it doesn't really matter where you come from, if you have an interest in agriculture you can do anything you want," he said.

As part of his chosen project at the school, Herr developed educational materials on agricultural issues to distribute to the public.

One of the topics on which he wants to educate people is the business of raising veal calves.

Herr prepared brochures that focus on the viewpoints of both producers and (anti-veal) activists and include background information to "explain to people what the veal industry is about."

"The only way the public will learn about it is through exposure," he said.

Herr will be a junior at Penn Manor this fall. He plans to study animal science in college to become a veterinarian.

As part of the Governor's School, Herr had the chance to meet animal science professors and visit the New Bolton Animal Hospital near Penn University, experiences that helped confirm his desire to pursue animal science.

"I'm really excited about being a vet," he said.

Philip Shirk was one of the many students at the school who didn't grow up on a farm, yet find themselves drawn to agriculture.

He is the son of Maynard and Alice Shirk of Highville, near Conestoga.

As an avid science and ag student at Lancaster Mennonite, Shirk said his first interests are forestry and genetics. When he found out about the opportunity to apply for the Governor's School, he did not need much convincing.

"I saw a poster (about the program) at school and it looked like fun," he said.

As part of his successful application process, Shirk wrote an essay on "hemlock woolly adelgids" — small insects that attach to hemlock trees and threaten their life.

One of Shirk's many experiences at the Governor's School was an opportunity to study renewable fuels as alternatives to petroleum. These included products extracted from the agricultural crops of corn, kenaf, and industrial hemp.

"I learned that (the crops) can be used for an awful lot of different things," Shirk said.

Shirk said part of his and other students work at the school included composing "fact sheets" on environmental topics that will be distributed to county extension offices.

Derick Bollinger said that when his school guidance counselor first suggested he apply for the Governor's School, he wasn't sure about the idea of taking five weeks out of his summer routine.

"I live on a farm and we have work that needs to be done," he said. The Manheim native said he had also been feeling pressure to take a summer job.

The guidance counselor "kept pushing" him and Bollinger said he was glad he finally applied.

(Turn to Page A37)

Morgan Forney, right, with academic project coordinator Rob Goodling in the medieval garden on Penn State campus. Forney studied the chaste tree, used historically for medicinal purposes.

Andrew Herr of Penn Manor developed materials to educate the public about the veal industry.

Dairy Of Distinction Families Gather

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — A group of 2001 Dairy of Distinction winners and their families attended a recognition ceremony Tuesday at Ag Progress Days. Eighteen farms across Pennsylvania were selected earlier this year for exemplifying a positive image of the dairy industry.

"You should be very proud of yourselves for what you've accomplished," Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Melinda Wolfe told the group.

Joining Dairy of Distinction fanilies for the photo are Wolfe, holding sign, and alternate Dairy Princesses Emily Cloninger and Heidi Miller.

Philip Shirk wrote an essay on "woolly adelgids," aphids that threaten Pennsylvania's state tree, as part of his application for the Governor's School.

Leader In Farmland Preservation

"It only took four years to reach 200,000. Clearly, this important milestone couldn't have been reached so quickly without the cooperation of the state's farm families, the hard work of state and county farmland preservation officials, and the members of the General Assembly who supported our $650 million 'Growing Greener' initiative — Pennsylvania's largest-ever investment in our environment."

Ridge spoke about the seriousness of protecting agricultural land and "preserving the proud and productive heritage of Pennsylvania's 50,000 farm families."

That initiative protects more than 100 acres of farmland every day for Pennsylvania's quality of life and farmland "we all enjoy," he said.

When he arrived, Ridge personally greeted families who had their farms preserved under the initiative. Since 1989, the state has protected 1,660 farms, totaling 201,027 acres in 51 counties. Seventy-one percent of the farmland preserved since 1989 was protected during the Ridge Administration.

Last year, Ridge noted, was a recordbreaking year in farmland preservation, with more than 33,000 acres and 283 farms preserved — the most farms preserved during any year since Pennsylvania's farmland-preservation program began.

Ridge said the challenge will be "to continue that trend," he said. "To keep the heritage and tradition alive, we have to have farmland preservation."

In a release, it was noted the Growing Greener program was launched at the 2000 Farm Show, a challenge to farmland preservation boards to protect 100 farms in 100 days — from Farm Show to Earth Day in April. And it worked — 101 farms were preserved from January to April, totaling 12,400 acres.

Fifty-one counties participate in the farmland preservation program. Since 1999, funding for the program has grown 150 percent to about $71 million a year, as a result of the Growing Greener initiative. Since January 2000, 467 farms and 53,380 acres were preserved.

Ridge also noted the commitment the administration continues to have for the Farm Show, with the announcement of the $67 million expansion and renovation project, with a target completion date of December 2002, in time for the 2003 Farm Show.

Also, Ridge spoke about the persistent drought, and that he "hopes someone prays for a little rain — it's getting dry out here," he said. In the northwest part of the state, it is the driest they've seen since 1915.

Graham B. Spanier, president of Penn State, spoke about the record number of exhibitors at Ag Progress Days this year, what he calls "tangible proof of Pennsylvania's commitment to its economic well-being."

For agriculture, these continue to be challenging times. Spanier said he read in a newspaper recently an observation: "We have a surplus of simple answers and a shortage of simple problems." Protecting the environment while ensuring the economic vitality of the state requires work on a statewide and global scale.

He mentioned the development of the planned 400-acre arboretum at Penn State, an integrated teaching and research facility west of campus, near Park Avenue and the Mt. Nittany Expressway.

Robert Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, asked visitors to Ag Progress to take a tour of the Pasto Agricultural Museum and to think that, in 50 years, the state-of-the-art equipment they see on display now on the showgrounds will be logged into that museum. Progress continues at a rapid pace.

He also mentioned that now is the time to contact legislators on the proposed Farm Bill of 2002, which has "room for much discussion," Steele said.

"If you're not thinking about the Farm Bill, you ought to be," he told hundreds of visitors. "You should take a very, very active role in this, because we're talking about your future."

USDA Names Members To New U.S.A. Blueberry Council

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced the appointment of nine producer members and alternates to serve initial terms of office on the new U.S.A. Blueberry Council.

Newly appointed regional members and alternates with terms beginning immediately and ending Dec. 31, 2003 are: Region 1: David M. Brazelton of Lowell, Ore., member, and R. Verne Gingerich of Canby, Ore., alternate; Region 2: Ronald E. Bodtke of Grand Junction, Mich., member, and John E. Nelson of Granger, Ind., alternate; Region 3: Arthur J. Galletta of Hammonton, N.J., member, and Paul J. Macrie III of Hammonton, N.J., alternate; and Region 4: W. Russell Bell of Bristol, Ga., member, and Luis M. Monterde of Purvis, Miss., alternate.

Newly appointed state members and alternates with terms beginning immediately and ending Dec. 31, 2004 are: Donnie H. Morris of Baxley, Ga., member, and D. Adair Chambers of Homerville, Ga., alternate; Beverlee E. R. DeJong of Holland, Mich., member, and Robert S. Carini of West Olive, Mich., alternate; Tim Wetherbee of Hammonton, N.J., member, and Dennis G. Doyle of New Lisbon, N.J., alternate; Hensen P. Barnes of White Lake, N.C., member, and H. Neil Moore of Ivanhoe, N.C., alternate; and Mark D. Hurst of Sheridan, Ore., member, and Douglas A. Krahmer of St. Paul, Ore., alternate.

The U.S.A. Blueberry Council will administer the Blueberry Promotion, Research, and Consumer Information Order under the supervision of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. The order, which became effective July 17, 2000, authorizes the council to conduct a coordinated program of promotion, research, and consumer and industry information in order to maintain and expand the market for cultivated blueberries. Assessment obligations under the program began Jan. 1.

Junior Angus Leaders Meet In Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Nearly 125 junior Angus members and advisers that represented 25 state junior Angus associations met August 2-5 in Nashville, Tenn., for the 2001 LEAD (Leaders Engaged in Angus Development) Conference.

The conference, "A Cut Above the Rest," provided the opportunity to the attendees to learn more about the beef industry, enhance leadership and personal development skills, and experience some of Nashville's cultural heritage.

During the four-day event, Stewart and Casey Kennedy, Edmond, Okla., encouraged the group to set goals and work hard to achieve them. Stewart explained the S.M.A.R.T. goal setting method, setting goals that are Specific; Measurable; Achievable; Realistic; and Trackable.

"A good idea is worth one dollar," Stewart told the group. "Planning to make the idea happen is worth a million dollars."

Joe Elliott, an Angus breeder and sixth generation farmer from Adams, Tenn., talked about the future of the Angus industry and challenged the junior members to make a difference by being learners and educators. He encouraged them to educate those not involved in agriculture of the importance of the industry.

Scott Johnson, American Angus Association director of the Angus Information Management Software (AIMS), described a variety of Association programs including AIMS, the Beef Record Service (BRS), and resources on the Angus Web site, www.angus.org. He also discussed current beef industry issues such as electronic and national animal identification, ultrasound body composition and DNA.

Finally, the group had the opportunity to learn how to positively promote the beef industry and discover how the American Angus Association promotes its services and membership. Shelia Stannard, assistant director of communications and public relations, outlined a simple process to keep the public informed and aware of how to promote the industry in a positive image.

One day of tours provided the group the opportunity to see Nashville. A tour of the Hermitage, home of President Andrew Jackson, began the day. The group also cruised the Cumberland River aboard the General Jackson and experienced some of Nashville's great country music heritage at the Grand Ole Opry.

The LEAD Conference is an annual event planned for junior Angus members 14-21 years old, and sponsored by the National Junior Angus Association and the American Angus Association. To learn more about the NJAA or to become a member, log on to www.angus.org or call (816) 383-5100.

Beef Demand Jumps Five Percent

Denver, Colo. — Despite continued attention on foreign animal diseases and increasing pressure on the U.S. economy, consumer beef demand increased five percentage points the second quarter of 2001, as compared to the second quarter of 2000, research shows.

The increase was announced Friday by Dan Hammond, a beef producer from American Falls, Idaho, and chairman of the Cattlemen's Beef Board.

Beef demand has now increased for 10 of the past 12 quarters, according to Hammond. Prior to the increase, demand had been on the decline for nearly two decades.

"We're pleased that despite the pressures put on our industry, we've been able to turn the tide and get beef demand rolling in the right direction," Hammond said. "Consumer demand is obviously of critical importance to beef producers."

According to Cattle-Fax, an independent market analysis organization, the increase in demand the last few years has added $100 per head to the price of fed cattle and $16-18/cwt to the price of a 500-pound steer. Cattle Fax says consumers are now spending more for beef — in a time of record total meat production.

The Beef Board administers the $1-per-head beef checkoff program, which works to increase consumer demand through its promotion, information and research programs. Hammond said his organization has been a catalyst in moving beef demand in the right direction.

The son of Eugene and Carol Bollinger, Derick said he has been around farm animals all his life and is a long-time 4-H showman. As one thoroughly experienced in handling farm animals, Bollinger chose to write on the topic of how to treat animals humanely for his Governor's School application.

Bollinger said his time at the school broadened his scope of understanding.

"We did things that I didn't even think were part of agriculture," he said. These included learning about topics such as resource management, conservation, and composting.

Bollinger said he also learned from the urban students at the school, as the program directors tried to match students from the city with rural ones.

"My (project) partner was from Philadelphia. He said he was never on a farm or did anything with animals."

But the urban kids "knew more than I did about computers and genetics," Bollinger acknowledged.

As a student from a high school with no agriculture program, Morgan Forney was thrilled at the opportunity to participate in the Governor's School.

With plans on becoming an agricultural engineer, the rising Hempfield senior already purchased an antique Farmall A tractor this spring and is working at restoring it.

For his Governor's School project, Forney researched medicinal plants located in the medieval garden on the Penn State campus.

"I love it," he said, while taking a short break during the fourth week of the school. "I don't want it to end."

Morgan is the son of Shane and Cathleen Forney of Columbia.

Governor's School Director Dr. Marianne Fivek summed up the energy and enthusiasm of the 64 students.

"It's a very ambitious, positive group," she said. "It's been a great summer."

According to Fivek, preparing youth for a future in agriculture sciences is a crucial challenge.

"There continues to be a shortage of qualified individuals (to fill food and ag science positions,)" she said.

Governor's School programs are offered to eligible Pennsylvania high school students each summer in various areas of study. They are sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education and Penn State University.

Corn Silage Whole-Plant Dry Down Rates[a]

Glenn A. Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent, Lancaster, Pa.

Weather conditions have varied considerably this summer, and the condition of the corn crop is just as variable. As growers attempt to estimate the moisture content of their corn and plan their harvesting schedule, they can be fooled by the appearance of the crop. Extension Agents in the Capital Region are monitoring and reporting whole-plant corn dry down rates at Penn State's Field Research Farm at Landisville Moisture levels, crop conditions and estimated days to harvest are shown in the table. Soluble sugar contents will be reported later. In the weeks prior to August 4th, the weather had been very dry, but since then, corn dry down rates have been slowed by recent rains.

Ag Progress Plants Dreams, Flourishes With Fun

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The young, the old, the farmer, the consumer — all brackets of society attended Ag Progress Days this week.

"I come every year to see what's new and dream," said Daniel Brandt. He and his wife Rebekah are dairy farmers from Annville.

His comments were echoed again and again by visitors expressing their reasons for attending the annual event conducted on 200 acres at the Russell Larson Agriculture Research Center and sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Taking a day off to attend Ag Progress is priority for the Daniel and Lori Bomgardner family despite the inconvenience of juggling schedules to keep their dairy operation running smoothly at home. The Bomgardners operate a dairy in York County. On Tuesday the two oldest daughters remained at home to milk the cows while their parents and four younger children immersed themselves in all the opportunities to explore Ag Progress.

"The kids must sit on every tractor," Bomgardner said.

The daughters who stayed at home didn't want to miss Ag Progress, so on Wednesday they accompanied their grandparents to the event while their family resumed farming duties.

Since Fred and Linda Seldomridge sold their dairy and crop farm, they said they have more time to enjoy Ag Progress.

"I like to meet people that I have worked with and see the new machinery," Seldomridge said. He brought along his son Brent and his wife Spring and grandchildren Victoria, 6, and Grant, 4.

"After 10 years, he's moving back to the farm," Seldomridge said of his son.

The three generations said they saw plenty of things of interest.

Another three-generational family were also excited about all Ag Progress has to offer. Grandma Mildred Hemming from Pleasantville said that she came along with her sons and grandchildren.

Although her sons are no longer farming, they like to come every year and see what's new.

"You can't take the farming out of them," Mildred said.

Of the machinery equipment, Don Powell, retiree from ag business, said, "It's incredible to see what's happening. Some are too big to be believed."

It's been 13 years since Roger and Kathy Duman had attended Ag Progress. Former farmers, the Dumans from Cambria County said they came for a good time and to see what's new. "Machinery has changed so much, we need to ask what it is," Roger said.

Dave and Florence Prah, Fayette County, were grateful for the opportunity to have experts identify weeds and tell them how to get rid of them.

"I had what I thought was a peculiar weed growing on my land. I brought it here, and they identified it as purslane, and told me how to kill it," Prah said.

Five-year-old Jamie Reitz brought a weed from his family's farm and was quite proud that he stumped the experts.

"They don't know what it is," he said. He is the son of Everett and Jamie, Emeryville. Daughter Casey, 8, also entered a weed in the giant weed contest.

Ag Progress isn't only for farmers and ag industry. It's to educate the nonfarming community. To help them realize that farmers are building a better environment while caring for their animals and land. It's to help consumers realize the hard work and the research behind producing food that is the safest in the world. Many of the activities are designed to be fun and to educate at the same time.

Daniel and Lori Bomgardner, dairy farmers from York County, come every year to Ag Progress. Their two oldest daughters stayed home to milk, but they also attend Ag Progress by traveling with their grandparents the following day when their parents resume milking duties. With the Bomgardners are their children Rebekah, 4; Katie, 7; Justin, 10; and Nathan, 9.

Grandma Mildred Hemming accompanies sons Ward and Doug, his wife Brandie, and grandchildren, Troy, 2; Josh, 12; Justin, 7; Jonathan, 4; and Caitie, 5. Grandma said, "Our sons grew up on a farm. Although they no longer farm, you can't take the farmer out of them. They still want to come and see all the new things."

Retired from agriculture but not from learning are Don Powell, Strasburg, and Dave Hill, Lancaster. "Some things are too big to be believed," Powell said of the massive tractors.

Dairy farmers Don and Melissa Bailey, Uniontown, pull daughter Katie around the grounds in search of new equipment.

The petting zoo entertains Benjamen Anders, 15 months. He is the son of Randy and Lisa Anders, Bellaire, Md.

Start Planning For Safe School Lunches

Are you dreading the thought of packing school lunches again this fall? Here are some hints to make them more appealing.

Packed lunches should have three ingredients: nutrition, taste and safety.

When considering nutrition:

— Include at least one fruit and vegetable. For vegetables, try carrot or celery sticks, cherry or grape tomatoes, or bell pepper strips.

— Include fruits and vegetables your children enjoy. Fresh produce is always a good choice, but also consider small pop-top cans of pineapple, peaches and other fruits.

Pardon the juice dropping off my elbow.

It's just that we're celebrating August. Which is officially — at our house, anyway, a 31-day marathon of eating our way through Messy Munchin' Month.

Messy Munchin' Month lets us revel in mouth-watering, direct-from-the-patch foods, which the shipped stuff can't even come close to approximating in taste. And, as usual, the bout of extreme heat has pushed our stretched-out plantings of all these goodies into ripening within a short time frame.

We start with the ultimate in finger-linkin', juice drippin', butter-lathered, steamy-hot sweet corn. If your mouth isn't watering by now...back up and read that again. Sweet corn, at its absolute best, should go from the patch to the table in about a half-hour. If you happen to have a patch right behind your house, as we are blessed with particular crop-rotation season, that's doable. As an alternative, cultivate your nearest fresh produce grower and get corn just pulled from the stalk.

After one of those recent sweltering evenings of milking, when the fans blew 95-degree air over us and the steamy, sticky cows, which had hunted any damp spot in search of relief (and dragged their tails across our faces to prove it), a couple of ears of corn proved perfect to appease late-day hunger pangs. Microwaved in their husk for a couple of minutes and twirled over a stick of butter, they are the ultimate fast food.

Sure, they are messy. Announce that you are celebrating Messy Munchin' Mouth.

By their side, slice or chunk up a couple of bright-red, fully-ripened, fresh-from-the-stalk tomatoes. Sprinkle on a dab of salt and pepper, maybe a bit of Italian seasoning. Low calorie, high nutrition, great-tasting, minimal-effort health food. (Minimal effort if you don't count the digging, planting, weeding, mulching.) If you don't have even a single stalk of your own, repeat the directions given above for getting corn.

Now, on to dessert.

We'll start with peaches. Red-blushed skins, fragrant aroma, just gently "giving" to a slight finger pressure. Sliced, diced, tucked into a pie shell, smothered with a cobbler-top, or with fresh vanilla ice cream for a peach sundae. Or, as another fast, finger food, fuzz rinsed off and munched into like an apple. The epitome of messy munchin'.

Watch out for that juice dropping off your elbow.

For variety, we alternate with cantaloupe, all these little netted orbs coming ready at the same time in the garden regardless of how carefully I space out the plantings. So we have cantaloupe with breakfast, cantaloupe for post-milking snack, cantaloupe at lunch, and if there's any handy, as a bedtime snack.

One hill of what was supposed to be honeydew turned out to be a cantaloupe cousin of some sort, ripening with a yellowish-smooth skin over the sweetened, green-fleshed melon imaginable. Their yield, though skimpy, was positively luscious.

Hope I can figure out what they were so I could plant more next year.

Not to forget the watermelons, both the small, round deep-green-skinned, Sugar Baby variety and, my favorite gourmet "yellow fellows." We gobble watermelon from the time it becomes seasonally-priced at the supermarket right on through the summer. Our homegrowns, refrigerator-sized, baby reds and yellows always ripen just in time to add their juicy sweetness to the bountiful buffets of Messy Munchin' Month.

Often the messiest part of August, though, is the kitchen, overrun with kettles, pots, canning equipment, freezer containers, food mill, as we hustle to squirrel away some of this tasty stuff. After about third trip to pitch hulls, skins, peels, cobs and seeds out into the field for recycling on a recent day, "messy munchin' took on a whole new meaning.

The baskets, buckets and boxes of garden and market fresh things do keep the kitchen busier during this time of the year, especially noticeable on some of these August "dog days" when we'd rather not do the kitchen thing at all. But then we realize how quickly summer is slipping by — and that schools are about to gear up — and decide that the biggest downside of August is not that it's messy.

It's just too short.

— Avoid juice drinks or punch with a lot of added sugar. Look for "100 percent fruit juice" on labels.

— Avoid prepackaged cheese-and-crackers or similar treats — they are generally high in fat and calories. Check the label. Small packs of chips are often better choices, if your child can afford the calories.

Kids also insist that lunches be tasty:

Vary sandwich breads. Whole-grain bread, kaiser rolls, hamburger buns or bagels are good alternatives to plain white bread, if your child enjoys that variety.

— Wrap tomatoes and lettuce for a sandwich separately so the bread doesn't get soggy.

— Include a favorite pasta salad or hot soup in an insulated wide-mouth container.

For safety's sake, make sure perishable items stay cold until the time your child eats lunch. If lunch is packed at 7:30 a.m. and lunchtime is at noon, the lunch could sit at room temperature far longer than the two hours food safety specialists recommend. To reduce risk:

— Use an insulated lunch box or bag and include a frozen gel pack to keep the contents cool.

— Pack a frozen juice box with the lunch. It will thaw by the time lunch rolls around and will keep other items cool.

— Lunch-meat sandwiches can be frozen overnight and should thaw by lunchtime. Freezing tuna salad or other similar spreads isn't a good idea, though, because mayonnaise doesn't freeze well.

Also, rinse fruits and vegetables before packing the lunch so they don't cross-contaminate other items. And, don't re-use paper bags. Food particles — and any germs with them — can't be wiped out. See other safe-lunch tips in "Quick Tips To Packing A Safe Lunch" at http://www.fightbac.org/school—press.cfm.

Fresh Corn Draws Crowds To Produce Stand

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — When the Reiff Produce stand opens at 10 a.m., there are already cars full of hungry customers, mouths watering, waiting for the fresh sweet corn.

The busy route 220 highway is a great location and a nice diversion from the hectic schedules of passersby. Sweet scents of fresh fruit or the more earthy smell of new potatoes get the taste buds stirring. One look at the just picked corn and customers are ready for the butter and salt.

"I feel sorry for all those people who don't know what good corn really tastes like," said Ann Reiff, who along with her husband, Norman, owns and operates Reiff's Produce and Greenhouses in New Enterprise.

"There are a lot of people who don't realize you have to eat corn within a few hours of being picked if you want the best flavor."

The Reiffs have about 25 acres of their Morrison's Cove farm in produce. "We raise strawberries, squash, tomatoes, beets, beans, onions, potatoes, canaloupe, peppers, and of course, corn," Ann said. "Strawberries and corn are our biggest sellers."

They also buy fruit from other growers to sell at their stands.

Ann and her daughters raise bedding plants and create beautiful hanging baskets and other container arrangements to add color and variety to the two produce stands. One is located near their New Enterprise farm and the other near the turnpike interchange in Bedford.

During the summer, they sell cut flowers.

"The only complaint we have had about our flowers is several of our hanging baskets were stolen from front porches of customers. I'm really sorry to think that anyone would stoop to stealing flowers," she said.

They have a green house for the bedding plants and for hot house tomatoes, which they sell until the field tomatoes are ripe for picking.

Once the Reiffs discovered the demand for fresh sweet corn, Norman planted it every two weeks beginning in the early spring. This assures a good crop until Labor Day.

"We use a sugary variety," Ann explains, "and it has a wonderful flavor.

"We depend a lot on the weather and, this year, we have had a nice amount of rain and just hope we continue to have showers throughout August."

To prevent the first crop of young plants from freezing, the Reiffs keep them under clear plastic until warmer weather arrives. "We actually create a corn greenhouse," Ann says.

She said this her family's first experience with retailing. "We started with the local produce auction and advanced into our own produce stands. It has been trial and error. We depend a lot on word of mouth. When someone gets good strawberries or nice flowers at a reasonable price or mouth-melting corn, they like to tell their friends about it, and that is our main source of advertisement."

The Reiffs also do some newspaper advertising and have had refrigerator magnets created to keep their name before customers.

"We open on weekends beginning with Mother's Day," Ann said. After school is over and strawberries are ready, the stand is open full time.

She said, "During corn season, it takes our whole family to keep ahead of the work."

The Reiffs have two daughters and two sons who work on the farm. They hire extra help during the produce season.

In addition to the produce the Reiff farm has 100 head of milking cows managed by the sons.

"We have no trouble sleeping at night," Ann said with a laugh.

Folks are ready to buy when the Reiff's open for business at 10 a.m.

Snyder County Historical Society Conducts Tours, Lecture

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — The Snyder County Historical Society continues its lecture series on Sept. 2. The History and Art of Beekeeping presented by local beekeeper Steven March, will be conducted at 2 p.m. at the Snyder County Historical Society Building, 30 E. Market Street, Middleburg.

March is the owner and operator of Moosewood Apiaries of Beaver Springs. March has been a beekeeper for more than 20 years and is a member of the American Beekeeping Federation, the Pennsylvania State Beekeepers Association, and is a lifetime member of the Snyder County Historical Society. He specializes in the production of cut comb, chunk, and extracted honey; as well as beeswax and the removal of bees and honeybee swarms.

The presentation will cover the history of beekeeping from approximately 9000 B.C. to the present. Beekeeping equipment and other beekeeping related items will be on display and available for inspection. March will also demonstrate and discuss different beekeeping methods and techniques used throughout the world. The presentation will be an interactive event with audience participation and discussion.

Free weekly tours each Sunday continue at the society building from 1:30-5 p.m. now through the month of September. For more information about the programs at the society building, call (570) 837-6191 on Thursday or Friday from 10 a.m.-3:30 p.m. when the library is open for historical research.

Making Toys is Not Child's Play

Soon we will be celebrating Labor Day, and in our fast-moving world, that means the holidays are just around the corner.

Perhaps you, or your booster/auxiliary group, have begun to think about ways to raise money through the fall, and those thoughts have centered around sewing stuffed bunnies, teddy bears, or dolls. You've identified the patterns, shopped for the fabric and fiberfill, and even begun to develop an idea of a reasonable price tag. But is it time to begin creating an inventory? Did you remember to get the bunnies, teddy bears, and dolls registered?

According to Pennsylvania law, all stuffed toys and bedding made to be sold, donated or given as charitable gifts in the state need to be registered with the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, Division of Bedding & Upholstery. Proof of the registration is a tag that is sewn onto each stuffed item (like the "do not remove under penalty of law" tags on pillows). The presence of the tag certifies to the customer that the item is made of all new materials and that the item should not contain any hazardous chemicals or materials.

To begin the registration process, you need to complete a form LIBU-35, Application for Pennsylvania Toy Registration. A copy of this can be gotten by calling (717) 787-6848, or by accessing the internet at http://www.dli.state.pa.us/landi/lib/landi/pdf_bois_libu-35.pdf.

If you have Acrobat Reader installed on your computer, you will be able to see and print a copy of the form. You will provide information concerning your plans to start a business (or the intent to produce the items for a fund raiser) and to describe the items you will make.

The back of the form includes an affidavit that the sample item you send with the registration is a true representative sample of the toys you will be making; this part will need to be notarized. In most cases, a $25 fee and a sample of your product must be sent with the registration form.

In some cases, people plan to make the stuffed items for a one-time bazaar or as a hobby (and they do not anticipate receiving more than $1,000, gross, in sales each year).

If this describes your plans, what you are doing is defined by the regulations as a leisure pursuit and you will not need to pay the $25. You will, however, still need to turn in the LIBU-35 and sample(s) of your toy(s). The sample toy that you send should represent all of the stuffed items in the line that you will be making.

If you plan to make animals using several types of fur, button, and painted eyes, etc., your sample should contain all possible elements. One example of each variation that you plan is all that is needed. This sample will not be returned to you — it will be analyzed and destroyed. The stuffing material and paint will be tested; the item will be burn-tested. In short, it will be taken apart and totally evaluated to make sure that it is made of new and safe materials.

After the test has been run and your item(s) approved, you will be given a certificate of registration that has your registration number on it. This number must appear on tags that you place on every stuffed item sold. Since this is an annual registration, about 30 days prior to the expiration date, you will receive a renewal form in the mail.

At that time, you will need to pay your annual fee of $25 to continue legally selling your stuffed toys. If you change the way your toy is made as time goes on, you will need to notify the Division of Bedding & Upholstery and the process starts again to update your registration.

Many people to whom I talk about this law tell me that they have seen numerous toys without registration numbers or tags at craft shows, shops, etc. People, unaware of the guidelines, are regularly selling such items.

Ignorance of the law is not a valid excuse. It is important to make sure your toys are registered. Most shopkeepers will not buy or hold on consignment any items that are not registered. Customers may look for the tag as an assurance of the safety of an item. While state inspectors have busy schedules, they do attend craft shows, too, to make sure that the items for sale are registered.

The penalties for selling unregistered items are rather stiff — toy makers found violating the law will have their toys confiscated, have to appear before a district justice, and pay a fine of $300 to $500 for each offense, or serve 30 to 60 days in prison. Although we should not be concerned with punishment, but rather compliance for the public good, thinking of the matter in these terms makes the $25 per year registration seem a small thing.

Of course, the most important reason for complying is because the law says we must register — set up to protect the consumer and to protect the toy makers who do things correctly. Making money with crafts, legally, can be a profitable, as well as rewarding endeavor — a goal well worth pursuing!

For more detailed information, the Stuffed Toy Registration Law can be found at: http://www.dli.state.pa.us/landi/lib/landi/laws-regulations_bois_act372.pdf

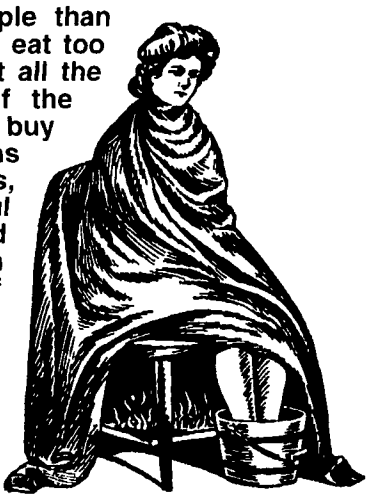
Why Be Sick And Tired?

America has more sick people than most countries, because they eat too much cooked food which lost all the enzymes and up to 80% of the nutrition. Most food you buy contains harmful toxins because they use weed killers, insecticides and many harmful chemicals in growing it, and then more chemicals in processing to increase shelf life. But there is a solution to the problem.



Be Healthy And Energetic?

May doctors and people are now using a new and safer way to remove toxins and poisons from the body, clean out the arteries and develop a strong immune system so it can fight off diseases with amazing results, without any drugs. This program supplies the immune system with killer cells, memory and suppresser cells activity and training, which is like manpower and equipment to any army. It provides the immune system with all natural, organically grown fruit, grain and vegetables" which is like good food and ammunition to an army.

Over 40 million dollars were spent in research, and over 3000 sheets of scientific documented studies by doctors supports many positive clinical experiences, and backs up the patented process in providing proven products. The cost is considerable less than drugs, chelation, radiation, chemotherapy and operations. It does NOT interfere with medication. There are now viruses that can not be stopped with antibiotics, but these all natural products are producing excellent results with supervision from doctors.

Over 3000 Doctors Have Already Switched

They have switched from drugs to alternative medicine in order to help people recover from cancer, heart attacks, arthritis diabetes, lupus, fibromyalgia, allergies, fatigue and many other health problems without any side effects. We make no health claims. We work with doctors in giving the body all natural food grade products it needs to heal itself. There is also a Prevention Program to help you from getting sick. "An ounce of prevention costs far less, and is so much better than a pound of cure" (doctor and hospital bills). Which would you prefer, $149 a year to help prevent a heart attack, or a $50,000 by pass operation? The choice is yours. Let us try to help you prevent health problems.

Best Pickling Picks To Preserve Garden Produce

Peter Piper isn't the only one picking pickled peppers. According to Alltrista, marketer of Ball brand home canning products, more than 14.5 million Americans, representing 22 percent of households, are canning and pickling. People of all ages are joining in the fun of this healthy, hearty, hometime hobby.

Although Babylonians discovered pickling as a means to preserve food centuries ago, the process continues to fit contemporary needs. Here are some new and old pickling picks to preserve summer's goodness.

CANDIED DILL PICKLES

Wash and cut the cucumbers into sticks. Pour boiling water over them just to cover but do not cook. Let stand about four hours. Drain and pack solidly into clean jars with a head of dill in the bottom of jar. Make a solution of the following:

- 3¼ cups vinegar
- 6 cups sugar
- 3 tablespoons salt
- 4½ teaspoon celery seed
- 4½ teaspoon tumeric
- ¼ teaspoon mustard seed

Pour boiling hot water over cucumbers in the jars. Top with another head of dill and seal. Process in boiling waterbath for five minutes.

These are very good. I like to use the cucumbers about the diameter of a quarter.

Remsen, N.Y.

OLD-TIME MINCEMEAT

- 8 quarts green tomatoes, coarsely ground or chopped fine
- Cold water
- ¼ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup frozen concentrated apple juice
- 2 tablespoons cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons cloves
- 2 tablespoons allspice
- 1 tablespoon nutmeg
- ½ pound candied citron, chopped

Drain tomatoes and replace juice with cold water. Bring to a boil; drain off. Repeat 2 to 3 times, adding the same amount of cold water each time, until tomatoes are clear. Add vinegar, apple juice, and spices. Cook slowly about two hours. Add citron. Cook slowly two hours or more or until tomates are about the color of raisins. Makes about 5 quarts mincemeat. Preserve by freezing or canning.

EASY DILL PICKLES

Soak pickles in cold water overnight. In morning, cut pickles into strips (don't make strips too thin) and put in jars with one or two head dill in bottom of jars. Put one or two pieces onion in jars and one or two pieces celery in jar with pickle strips. Pour the following brine over pickles and cold pack until pickles change color. The following brine makes about 10 quarts.

Brine:

- 2 quarts vinegar
- 2 quarts water
- 3 cups sugar
- ⅓ cup salt

Combine ingredients, bring to a boil and pour over pickles and bring to a boil until pickles change color.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

- 3 pounds (3-4-inch) pickling cucumbers
- 4 medium onions, thinly sliced
- ½ cup pickling salt
- 6 cups water
- 3 cups apple cider vinegar
- 2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons mustard seed
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 teaspoon tumeric

Wash cucumbers and remove blossom end. Cut into ¼-inch slices and measure 10 cups. In a large bowl, combine cucumbers, onion, salt, and water. Mix well. Cover and let stand 2 hours. In 6-8-quart saucepot, combine vinegar and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Drain vegetables and rinse well. Add vegetables to vinegar mixture. Bring to a boil. Immediately fill hot, sterilized pint jars, leaving ½-inch headspace. Carefully run a nonmetallic utensil down inside of jars to remove trapped air bubbles. Wipe jar tops and threads clean. Place hot lids on jars and screw bands on firmly. Process in boiling water canner for 10 mintues. Makes 4-5 pints.

Heinz Co.

CANTALOUPE PICKLES

- 4 cantaloupes (9-10 pounds), quartered, seeds, rind removed
- 3 cups granulated sugar
- 3 cups apple cider
- 1½ cups apple juice
- 6 3-inch cinnamon sticks, broken
- 2 tablespoons whole cloves
- 5 thin slices fresh ginger root

Cut cantaloupe into 1-inch cubes. In a 6-8-quart saucepot, combine sugar, vinegar, and apple juice. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Tie spices in spice bag or cheesecloth. Add spice bag to syrup and boil 10 minutes. Add melon, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove spice bag. Immediately fill hot, sterilized pint or half-pint jars with mixture, leaving ½-inch headspace. Carefully run a nonmetallic utensil down inside of jars to remove trapped air bubbles. Wipe jars tops and threads clean. Place hot lids on jars and screw bands on firmly. Process in boiling water canner 10 minutes for pints and 5 minutes for half-pints. Makes 6-7 pints or 12-14 half-pints.

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND

- 5 pounds watermelon rind
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced, seeded
- 2 tablespoons whole allspice
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh ginger root
- 4 (3-inch) sticks cinnamon, broken
- 4 cups granulated sugar
- 2 cups distilled white vinegar
- 1 cup water

Remove all pink flesh and dark green rind from watermelon rind. Cut into 1-inch squares or diamonds. Measure rind to equal 10 cups. Blanch rind in boiling water for 8-10 minutes or just until a fork can slightly pierce the rind. Do not overcook. Cool in ice water. Drain well. Place rind and lemon slices in 6-8-quart nonmetallic container. Tie allspice, ginger root, and cinnamon in spice bag or cheesecloth. In 6-8-quart saucepot saucepot, combine sugar, vinegar, water, and spice bag. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Pour syrup over watermelon and lemon; stir. Cover and let stand in a cool place 12-18 hours, stirring 2-3 times. Remove lemon. In 6-8-quart saucepan, bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 40-50 minutes or until rind is transparent, stirring occasionally. Remove spice bag. Immediately fill hot pint or half-pint jars with mixture, leaving ½-inch headspace. Carefully run a nonmetalic utensil down inside of jars to remove trapped air bubbles. Wipe jar tops and threads clean. Place hot lids on jars and screw bands on firmly. Process in boiling water canner 15 minutes for pints and 10 minutes for half-pints. Makes 3-4 pints or 6-8 half-pints.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions received in the office.

Pickles

Vines are running with pickles and cucumbers, almost faster than they can be picked. Always use fresh picked, tender, crisp fruits and vegetables that are free of blemishes for pickling. Use cucumbers that are a recommended pickling variety. Do not expect good quality pickles if immature or "slicing" variety cucumbers are used. "Burpless" cucumbers are a slicing variety.

Use unwaxed cucumbers for pickling. The pickling liquid cannot penetrate waxed cucumbers.

Prepare produce for pickling within 24 hours of harvesting. If produce is not used immediately store in a refrigerator. Cucumbers deteriorate quickly at room temperature.

Wash thoroughly in cold water; remove all blossoms and stems as they may be a source of enzymes that cause soft pickles. Do not use any cucumbers that show even the slightest evidence of mold.

Do I have to use pickling salt to make pickles?

Canning or pickling salt contains neither additives to prevent caking of salt in humid weather, or iodine. Forms of silicates added to table salt to control caking may contribute to cloudy brine. Iodine may delay the desirable growth of fermentation bacteria needed to make refrigerator or genuine dills. Table salt is all right if other salt is unavailable.

Kosher salt may be used. Flake salt varies in density and is not recommended for making pickles.

When should dill be harvested?

Fresh dill should be picked as soon as the flowers begin to open. A mixture of dried dill seed and dill weed can be substituted for fresh dill.

Are there any problems using hard water to make pickles?

The use of hard water in fermenting cucumbers may interfere with the formation of lactic acid and prevent quick-process pickles form curing properly. Soft water from a water softener is not recommended, as its minerals will reduce the quality of your final product. Distilled water may be used.

For additional information on preserving pickles contact your local Cooperative Extension office and ask for the Let's Preserve Pickles publication.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 9:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. Call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd. Rm. 1, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Feedsack Expert, Quilt Historian To Appear At Bird-in-Hand

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster Co.) — "For many women with a rural background, looking at the feedsack exhibit and historical quilts at the Hometowne Heritage Days will be a trip down memory lane. Feedsacks played an integral role in the fabrics of our history as well as in the history of fabric. In fact, they clothed Americans in the early 1900s!"

The quote is from Jane Clark Stapel, a feedsack expert known as the Bag Lady. Stapel, joined by fabric identification expert and quilt historian Gloria Hall, will kick off the Bird-in-Hand Hometowne Heritage Days Celebration during the grand opening ceremony on Sept. 7 at 10 a.m. Joining these "material girls" will be members of the Feedsack Club, the fourth grade class at Hinkletown Mennonite Elementary School, and residents from the Landis Home as they "tie off" the final panels in an "International Feedsack Quilt."

The International Feedsack Quilt, with a theme of "Reaching Into the Past to Preserve the Future," is being made exclusively for a special intergenerational and educational project in cooperation with the Hinkletown Mennonite Elementary and the Landis Home. The commemorative quilt, created from 80 feedsack swatches donated from around the world that are signed with the name and location and date of all participants, will be displayed throughout Hometowne Heritage Days then auctioned off via the Website www.members.aol.com/baglady111. The auction will close at the April 2002 Feedsack Club Annual Conference. The winner will receive the quilt as well as a certificate of authenticity and history of the quilt. To view the progress of the quilt as it is being created, visit the Website at www.members.aol.com/baglady111/kidsblockproject.html.

According to Heritage Days Planning Committee Chairman John Smucker, Stapel and Hall will share the history of fabrics. Stapel will bring her trunk show — a traveling exhibit with colorful dresses, aprons, quilts and bonnets all created from feedsacks — and will recount humorous anecdotes of her association with feedsacks. Hall, who will provide quilt appraisals for a nominal fee, will bring a few of her favorite quilts. Appraisals, available both written or oral, are by appointment only.

"The importance of feedsacks and quilts in our American Heritage complements the theme of this year's Hometowne Heritage Days, "Renewing Old Memories and Creating New," said Smucker."

With that theme in mind, Bird-in-Hand representative Nancy Hess, a feedsack collector herself, has worked with Harriet Douples fourth grade class and the Landis Home to create The Grandpal Project, an intergenerational/educational service project. The students, who will meet their grandpal for the first time at the ceremony, will wear feedsack clothing and tie off the quilt, while the grandpals share memories. The children will later write about the experience. Other projects completed by the students for the program will be on display for the weekend.

With more than 800 members worldwide, the Feedsack Club is devoted to collecting and researching the fabric bags. Stapel publishes a bimonthly newsletter, Switches and Swatches, focusing on the collectible sacks and acting as forum for members who want to buy, sell, and trade the feedsacks. She is currently working with Hess to accumulate stories for a future book. Visitors to Hometowne Heritage Days are encouraged to visit the feedsack booth and share tales for use in the book.

Bird-in-Hand Hometowne Heritage Days will also feature local craftsmen and artisans, a Pennsylvania Dutch Food Fair with hands-on demonstrations of the traditional dishes, and a quilting bee.

Special events scheduled for the weekend are a free bluegrass concert with the Lykins Valley Bluegrass Band, on Friday at 6 p.m. and Saturday, the Eastern Lancaster County Sertoma Club 28th Annual Country Auction will start at 9 a.m. The Sertoma Club will also have a chicken barbecue on Friday, 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. and on Saturday, starting at 11 a.m. The club will serve breakfast on Saturday morning at 7 a.m.

Other activities include a cornfield maze, a petting zoo, a performing pig act, horse-drawn wagon rides, and the second annual Bird-in-Hand Open, played at the Waters Edge Mini Golf Course.

The Bird-in-Hand Hometowne Heritage Days is organized by the Bird-in-Hand Corporation and underwritten by Hometowne Heritage Bank. Other sponsors are Turkey Hill, Sauder's Eggs, and WIOV. The event will be conducted in Bird-in-Hand on Rt. 340 (Old Philadelphia Pike), across from the Bird-in-Hand Family Inn.

The festival is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 7, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 8, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Rt. 340 in Bird-in-Hand in Lancaster County. Sunday evening of festival weekend will conclude with an old-fashioned hymn sing at 7 p.m.

For more information call (717) 768-8272 or visit the Website at www.bird-in-hand.com/events.

Maryland Extension Creates Forest/Wildlife Website

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Have you ever considered developing a forest stewardship plan, harvesting forest products, creating a riparian buffer, becoming a forest wildlife volunteer, taking a forestry correspondence course or managing your property for wildlife?

Well, information about these and many other natural resource activities and topics can be found on a new University of Maryland Cooperative Extension "Forestry and Wildlife Education" Website: http://www.naturalresources.umd.edu.

Designed for forest and farm landowners, natural resource professionals, educators, public officials and environmentally concerned citizens, the site contains a wealth of information on managing forest, wildlife and related water resources. Forestry and wildlife training opportunities for youth and adults; a forestry newsletter called Branching Out; a calendar of educational events; and lists of state foresters, county extension offices and useful publications...and more...are just a 'point and click' away.

"The beauty of this Website is that it combines numerous resources on a variety of forest- and wildlife-related topics in one place," says Jonathan Kays, extension regional natural resources specialist. "Chances are, you'll find a link to the information you're looking for without having to conduct a time-consuming search in many different places."

Sauer's Herbal Cures Book Signing At Ephrata Cloister

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Colonial Americans seeking relief from aches and pains rarely turned to doctors. Most medical care was found in the home, or in the home garden to be more precise. Small remedy books offered advice on various herbs and their particular characteristics that could provide everything from a soothing nerve tonic to hair dye.

One of the most popular and influential of these works among the Pennsylvania Germans was the serial publication of Germantown printer Christopher Sauer. Now for the first time in two centuries, the herbal advice offered to Sauer's readers is available in a new English edition as Sauer's Herbal Cures, translated and annotated by noted food historian William Woys Weaver. The Museum Store at Ephrata Cloister is sponsoring a book signing by Weaver on Saturday, Sept. 8 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Ephrata Cloister is located in Ephrata Borough, Lancaster County, on Route 322 at the intersection with Route 272. The historic site is open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. For more information call (717) 733-6600.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Notice: Several readers write that they have problems accessing this address. The common mistake is that readers are substituting an "i" for the lowercase "l (L)" needed in two places. If you are having problems reaching this address, please check to make sure you are typing a lowercase "l (L)" in both places and not a lower or uppercase "i" or "I."

QUESTION — David Simpler, Elkton, Md., writes that in the 1950s, his family ate watermelon rind preserves. As he recalls they went to town once a week for salt, sugar, flour, and a newspaper. His 25-cent allowance bought a Coke and an ice cream cone. He would like the recipe for watermelon rind preserves.

QUESTION — Judy McCall, Keymar, Md., had a chocolate cake recipe that used chocolate chips for frosting. She lost it and asks if anyone has the recipe to share.

QUESTION — Mike Cannon, Montgomery Co., wants a recipe for baked lima beans that taste similar to that served at Shady Maple, East Earl. Cannon writes the beans are without a doubt the best he has ever tasted and is worth the trip just for the beans.

QUESTION — Velma Waltemayer, Red Lion, wants to know how to use salsify or oyster root. Velma remembers that during her childhood, her mother made sandwiches with salsify.

QUESTION — Shirley Seifert wants a recipe for canning or preserving garlic.

QUESTION — A reader wants a recipe for breaded deep fried cauliflower similar to that served at Shady Maple Restaurant.

QUESTION — Mrs. King, Christiana, wants to know where mincemeat can be purchased that tastes similar to the homemade variety that contains apples, vinegar, sugar, and salt. She does not want raisins in it.

QUESTION — A Hamburg reader requests a recipe for honey dipped chicken that tastes similar to that served in restaurants.

QUESTION — Cindy Donahue-Varsaci, Beverly, N.J., requestes recipes for baking canned cakes in a jar. We have printed many of these in the past, so readers send in your favorites.

QUESTION — Bethany Keeney, Seven Valleys, wants a recipe for baked macaroni made with Cheez Whiz.

ANSWER — Retired dairy farmer Don Waryanka, Irwin, wrote that at the York Farmer's Market, he ordered a creamy macaroni dish that was served with stewed tomatoes. That was two years ago, but he has never forgotten how tasty it was. He requested the recipe. Thanks to Janet Spangler, York Springs, who sent a recipe that she writes can be made with or without the sausage.

Creamy Bow Ties With Sausage And Tomatoes

2 teaspoons olive oil
1 pound sweet Italian sausage, crumbled
½ teaspoon dried red pepper flakes
½ cup diced onions
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 can Italian plum tomatoes, drained, coarsely chopped
1½ cups whipping cream
½ teaspoon salt
12-ounces bow tie pasta
3 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Fresh parsley

Heat oil in heavy large skillet over medium heat. Add sausage and pepper flakes. Cook until sausage is no longer pink, stirring frequently, about seven minutes. Add onion and garlic to skillet and cook until onion is tender and sausage is light brown, stirring occasionally, about seven minutes. Add tomatoes, cream and salt. Simmer until mixture thickens slightly, about 4 minutes. Cook pasta in large pot of boiling, salted water until tender but still firm to bite, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Drain. Serve on a plate or pasta bowl with cream mixture. Top with fresh grated parmesan cheese and parsley. Makes four servings.

ANSWER — Donna Good, Etters, wanted a recipe for cooking sausage in brown gravy. Thanks to C. Alleman, Hummelstown, for sending in simple instructions.

Sausage With Brown Gravy

In large, deep skillet, brown sausage. Make sure it doesn't burn, brown on one side, add a little water and flip sausage over to the other side. Let cook dry and brown again, adding more water, cook sausage until tender. Thicken with flour or cornstarch as you do to make your favorite gravy.

ANSWER — A Somerset reader wanted a recipe to make black forest cake. Here is one that a Montgomery reader sent in that is different than the one printed in last week's column.

Black Forest Cake

Chocolate cake layer:
2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup cocoa
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ cup oil
½ cup hot water

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl. In another bowl, whisk eggs, milk, and oil. Add to dry ingredients, mix well. Add hot water and heat. Pour into two 8-inch prepared round cake pans.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Cool 2-3 minutes. Remove from pans and cool completely. When cool, slice layers in half horizontally into four layers. Prepare cream filling.

Cream and Cherry Filling:
3 ounces cream cheese
2 cups confectioners' sugar
16-ounces whipped cream topping
1 can cherry pie filling
Sliced almonds

Combine cream cheese and confectioners' sugar until smooth. Fold in whipped topping.

Assemble as follows: Place bottom half of one layer on cake plate. Slide strips of waxed paper under edge of cake. Spread layers with one cup cream mixture. Place top half of layer over cream. Spread with half the cherry pie filling. Place bottom half of second layer over cherries. Spread about one cup cream on top. Place remaining layer over cream. Insert 3-4 bamboo skewers down through all layers to prevent sliding. Leave skewers in until just before serving. Spread cream generously around sides. With spatula, place scallops of cream around top edge forming a ridge to hold cherry filling in place. Fill center with remaining cherry filling. Garnish sides with sliced almonds if desired. Gently remove waxed paper strips. Refrigerate cake 4-6 hours before serving. Remove skewers. Any leftovers will keep well 3-4 days in refrigeration.

ANSWER — Thanks to Mrs. Paul Zimmerman, Newville, for sending the recipe that had been requested by Henry Smith Jr.

Pumpkin Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 cup mashed pumpkin
1 cup sugar
½ cup vegetable oil
1 egg
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon milk
1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup nuts (optional)
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon salt

Mix and dissolve baking soda in milk. Blend well. Bake at 350 degrees. Makes a very moist cookie, may add more flour if needed.

ANSWER — Dauphin County Dairy Princess Holly Miller sends in a seasonal recipe that is popular this time of the year.

Fried Tomatoes

5 firm, ripe tomatoes
½ cup flour
3 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup milk
½ cup grated cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut tomatoes about ½-inch thick and pat with flour. Fry in hot oil, seasoning with sugar, salt and pepper. Place on a large platter and dot with grated cheese. Cover with foil to melt cheese. Pour heated milk over tomatoes. Serves 6.

ANSWER — Elaine Young, Pitman, wanted recipes for making homemade yogurt. In addition to those already printed, here are different answers that show there is more than one way to make a recipe.

Homemade Yogurt

Heat one gallon milk in 1 cup sugar to 180 degrees. Cool to 130 degrees. While milk is cooling, soak 2 tablespoons plain gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Stir in small amount of cooled milk to ½ cup plain yogurt and stir in remaining milk. Add softened gelatin and 2 tablespoons vanilla or desired flavoring. Pour into quart jars, put lids on and place in ice chest with 115 degree water for 5 hours. Water should surround jars to within ½-¾-inch of tops. The longer the yogurt remains in the ice chest, the more sour the yogurt will taste.

You may freeze some of the yogurt to use as a starter the next time.

Yogurt In Automatic Yogurt Maker

Scald:
3 cups raw, whole milk
Add:
½ tablespoon plain gelatin that was soaked in ¼ cup water
½ cup powdered milk
Cool to 110 degrees, add:
½ cup plain yogurt
Incubate 4-6 hours in automatic 5-cup yogurt maker.

Yogurt In a Crockpot

Turn crockpot on low. In a saucepan heat the following to 190 degrees:
2 quarts milk
½ cup powdered milk
2 packages plain gelatin

Put pan of milk in cold water until it cools to 110-120 degrees. Add:
½ cup active culture plain yogurt.

Stir and pour into crockpot. Do not disturb for four hours. When four hours are up, distribute yogurt into smaller containers and refrigerate. May add vanilla, sugar, or fruits to taste. We like to add 1 teaspoon strawberry freezer jam per cup just before serving.

Ruth Shirk
Lebanon

Homemade Yogurt

¼ cup plain yogurt
¼ cup non-fat dry milk
1 quart whole or 2 percent milk

Sterilize a quart jar or a couple of smaller jars in boiling water.

In saucepan, stir the dry milk into the whole milk until dissolved and heat to 180 degrees. Without a thermometer, you can gauge the temperature by watching when bubbles start forming around edges. The milk is scalded at this point. If a skin forms on top, just stir it in. The point of scalding is to kill any bacteria that may be in the milk.

Let cool until 120 degrees. A thermometer is too much fuss for me; I test the easy and just as reliable way by putting my little finger (clean, of course) into the milk, and if I can count to 10 and I'm not burned, it's cool enough. The cooling down is necessary because hot milk would kill the bacteria that you are about to add.

Put yogurt into small bowl and add ½ cup warm milk. Stir until dissolved. Pour this mixture back into the saucepan of warm milk and stir until thoroughly mixed. You need to buy plain yogurt that is labeled "active cultures" or "live cultures" on the container. Most do, but some manufacturers pasteurize the product after it's in the container to lengthen shelf life, so check the label. You need the live bacteria to turn the milk into yogurt.

Pour the mixture into the saucepan into the sterilized jars. You can cover the jar with a clean cloth, set it on a baking sheet and put it into an unheated oven for 6-8 hours. I fill an "Igloo" cooler with warm water (little finger test, or 120 degrees) to a depth of just below the necks of whatever jars I'm using, don't cover the jars completely. Close the cooler lid and let sit 6-8 hours or overnight. You can also set them on top of the refrigerator with a cloth cover. The idea is to provide a draft-free environment with access to oxygen so the bacteria can reproduce efficiently.

Homemade yogurt tends to be slightly sweeter than purchased yogurt and is a little less solid. Adding more dry milk to the mixture will make the end result more solid, if that is what you like.

You can also make with without dry milk, but it's on the thin side when mixed with fruit, but fine for baking and making smoothies. The lower the percentage of fat in the milk, the longer it will take to set, and the longer it sets, the more tart it becomes. Your homemade yogurt will provide the starter culture for the next batch. It's easy to make and doesn't require much attention or time. I usually heat up the milk and sterilize jars when I'm washing dinner dishes, and by the time that I'm done, the yogurt is in the cooler. In the morning, I put lids on the jars and put them in the refrigerator.

Dairy PLUS

Booklet Features

Bonus Dairy Coverage

For Producers

Issue Date: Saturday, September 22

Deadline: August 31

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus to reach out to more than 100,000 readers in Northeast and Mid-Atlantic

Booklet will feature bonus dairy news, information

As milk production reaches new heights, dairy producers are not only looking for the latest news on expansion of herd or facilities, but for ways to get the most out of their equipment dollar.

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus Booklet will focus on large-scale producers who either are looking toward herd expansion, constructing new facilities or farm renovation, or looking for other ways to market their milk.

Dairy Plus will feature news about dairying never before published in the Northeast's largest weekly farm newspaper. That includes the latest information on business partnering, nontraditional dairy marketing (including goat and sheep milk production, cheesemaking, and ice cream), and news from milk cooperatives and processors.

The booklet will include dairy farm features, additional DHIA information new to Lancaster Farming, business hirings and expansion, and regulatory news information.

A big part of the booklet will be news and information about nutrient management, a key issue with dairies.

Included in Dairy Plus will be columns about the latest in dairy management written by Penn State experts and a farm calendar of events.

Includes:

- Dairy Herd and Facility Expansion
- Dairy Farm Feature
- Penn State Dairy Management Team Report
- Nutrient Management Update
- Dairy Business News
- Dairy Calendar of Events
- Extensive DHIA Reports

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We've had our vacation and what a busy one it was. For a week we not only ate, slept, and talked, but we visited many tourist attractions.

Our family rented two large houses that had room for some 20 people. They were located in a gated community of 4,200 houses — a small city built around a lake. The younger children played in the sand and water most everyday.

We took turns cooking for our small crowd and we certainly had delicious meals. One night we had homemade ice cream and another night four big blueberry pies as we had picked a lot one afternoon.

One night we went to a baseball game in Scranton. We had played miniature golf in the afternoon. We always had a big discussion as we tried to decide who would go in which car. The New Jersey family ran home two times from the Pocono Mountains to attend a soccer game.

I went up and down so many steps as our house had 19 steps to the front door. Then we had a basement bedroom which meant many more steps, and we had to climb over a "child's gate" as one member of the group is only 10 months old. The oldest grandchild, 21, was not able to come as he has a job in North Carolina.

One day, two cars drove to Steamtown National Historic Site in Scranton. Here we boarded a large steam train for a 26 mile excursion. The grandchildren enjoyed the ride. A boat was included with our rented house and my husband took some children out on the lake. We also had an hour ride on large Lake Wallenpaupack.

When I got home, I found tomatoes, old green beans, and big cucumbers in my garden despite the very dry conditions.

Keep Kitchen Safe For Aging Parents

Most people think of the kitchen as a dangerous place only for young children. But as people age, their vision, reflex time, physical strength and mobility can all change. The hazards in a kitchen can increase as its users become older.

You can decrease those risks, though. Here are a few ideas:

— Make sure there's enough lighting. Put the highest-watt bulbs you can in lighting fixtures, and consider installing extra fixtures in dark areas. Pay special attention to work areas. Bright lighting can help your parents make sure the area is clean, makes it easier to read instructions on food labels and household cleaners, and allows easier food-handling.

— Test knives and can openers to make sure their cutting edges are sharp, dull edges cause more accidents than sharp ones. Make sure the handles are tightly attached on knives and other cutting instruments. If your parents' gripping power has weakened, purchase kitchen implements specially designed for people with arthritis or similar conditions.

— Take a good look at hot pads, pot holders and oven mitts. If they appear worn, replace them with high-quality items that can be kept near the stove as meals are prepared. Decreased reaction time and mobility that often accompany aging intensifies the threat of burns.

— Food-borne illness is much more of a risk for the elderly than younger people. Remind your parents that bacteria thrives between temperatures of 40 degrees and 140 degrees, so perishable food left at room temperature for two hours or more should be thrown out. Help them keep the refrigerator, as well as countertops and other kitchen areas, clean.

For more ideas on kitchen safety, read, "Keeping You and Your Food Safe," part of the Senior Series fact sheets from Ohio State University Extension, available at Ohio's county Extension offices and online at http://ohioline.osu.edu/ss-fact/0162.html.

Kids' Stuff At Ag Progress

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

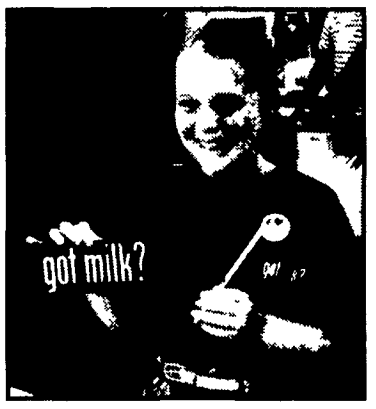
ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Thousands of kids attended Ag Progress Days conducted near Penn State this week.

It's the biggest outdoor agricultural fair in the East. In addition to animals and tractors, Ag Progress offers lots of activities to help kids learn about food, farming, health, and much more.

The event is for both the farming and nonfarming community. But in many cases, kids such as

Do you recognize any of these kids photographed at Ag Progress?

Janice Burkholder, 12, found 25 things that were unsafe on the farm display set up to teach farm safety.

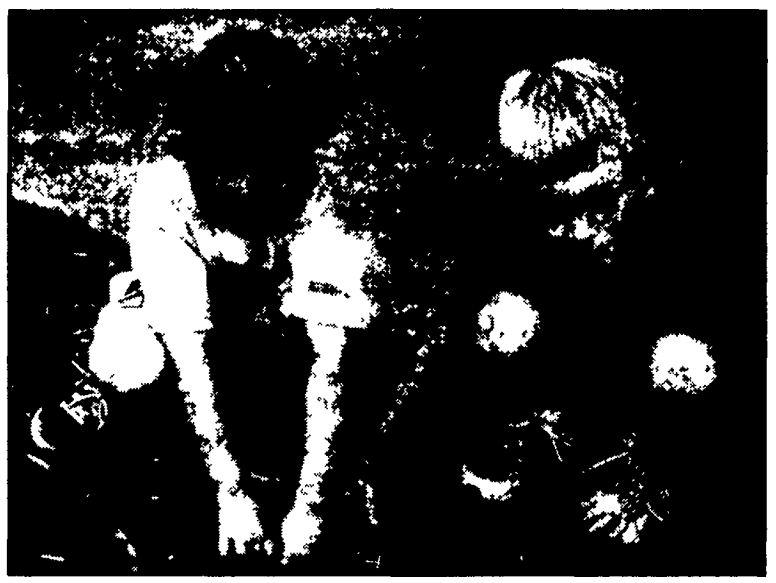


Aileen Fuller, 11, hands out "got milk" stickers, pencils, magnets, notepads, and bumper stickers for American Dairy Association and Pennsylvania Dairy Council.

Like most children attending Ag Progress, Rita, 5, Janelle, 7, and Judy, 11, daughters of Eugene and Becky Kreider, dairy farmers from Richland, fill their bags with freebies.

"DB Pest," Katie Miller, Juniata County, hands out fans printed with information on reducing the risk of West Nile Virus.

"I conquered the corn maze," said James Hall, 13. "It was a bit itchy and mediocre in difficulty. It takes 3 minutes to 5 days," he said of the skill required to maneuver through the maze.



Kid-size demonstrations with machinery competed with those for adults. here Griffin Fulton, 4, and Sean Walmbaugh, 7, try out their newly purchased bulldozers. Griffin is the son of Tom Walbaugh who operates Waterfall Gardens, Mertztown. Sean is the son of Brett Fulton who owns Fulton Landscaping, Sinking Spring.

Delaware 4-H Reorganizes To Expand Programs

NEWARK, Del. — A statewide reorganization of 4-H in Delaware has led to increased staffing and expanded 4-H programs throughout the state.

The improvements were made possible in part through increased legislative funding and county budget reallocations aimed at increasing outreach efforts to young people across the First State.

This reorganization of 4-H, the youth development outreach of the U.S. Department of Agriculture through Cooperative Extension, began last fall and was completed in May with the hiring of a second New Castle County 4-H educator.

"4-H is recognized as a leader in youth development, and not just from an agricultural perspective," says Joy Sparks, state program coordinator for 4-H and youth development at the University of Delaware." As our nation's population has changed from a rural to an urban and suburban base, 4-H has developed new programs and refined classic ones to meet the needs of today's young people. The reorganization in Delaware gives us the resources we need to reach previously unserved audiences and communities."

Sparks, who directed the reorganization, continues, "These changes have allowed us to use the strengths of long-time staff statewide as well as recruit new staff into our system. With the strongest staff ever, we are well prepared to expand our efforts."

Mark Manno, former New Castle County Extension educator for 4-H, has been renamed state coordinator of non-traditional 4-H programs, a new position created by a state budget appropriation. Manno, who has been with UD Extension since 1979, will form relationships with school districts, state and community agencies aimed at augmenting 4-H resources in youth development. He also will seek potential grand funding opportunities for programming. Manno is based at The Wilson Farmhouse on UD's south campus in Newark.

Ted Palmer, a 25-year veteran of 4-H in Delaware, has been named state 4-H Extension educator for volunteer development. His former position was 4-H educator in Kent County. He will focus on volunteer recruitment, development and support throughout the state in an effort to increase 4-H adult and junior leadership, and will coordinate the overnight camping program. Palmer's office is at the UD Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

In New Castle County, two 4-H educators will serve the needs of the most populated county in the state. Mary Slater and Amy Estey will share responsibilities such as 4-H camps, volunteer recruitment and training and program development throughout the county.

Slater, former 4-H associate for volunteer development with the state 4-H office, has been with 4-H in Delaware since 1999.

Estey spent seven years as a 4-H agent in Ohio before coming to Delaware. Slater and Estey have offices in the New Castle Extension office on South Chapel Street in Newark.

Doug Crouse fills the 4-H educator position in Kent County. Crouse, who is new to 4-H in a professional capacity, is a lifelong Delaware resident and a long-term 4-H volunteer who retired recently following a 20-year career in banking. He will continue the expansion of 4-H programming efforts to reach more audiences in the county. Crouse is located in the UD Extension office at the Paradee Center in Dover.

Sussex County continues to be served by 4-H educators Mary Argo and George Pulliam, both located in the Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

4-H HAPPENINGS

8 Bucks County 4-H'ers Attend Conference

Eight 4-H teens represented Bucks County at the recent Penn State Leadership 4-H Leadership Conference at Lebanon Valley College, Annville. The conference workshops focused on career leadership skills, child development, risk management and skill application.

4-H members Melissa Schechner, Erwinna, and Mark Smedberg, Chalfont were selected as Leadership Counselors for the event. They participated in pre-conference training for their responsibility. Schechner, daughter of Michael and Sherri Schechner, is a member of Bucks County 4-H Goat Club. Smedberg, son of James and Immogene Smedberg, is a member of Hilltown and Shooting Sports 4-H Clubs.

4-H participants were Michael Esposito, Chalfont, member of Shooting Sports Club; William Marek, Kintnersville, member of Springtown 4-H Club; Gretchen Sample, Pipersville, member of Bucks County 4-H Goat Club; Ashley Scollon, Perkasie and Melissa Dorner, Sellersville, members of Hilltown 4-H Club; and Emily Suydam, Sicklerville, NJ, member of Bucks United Toward Tobacco-free Students.

Erie County 4-H Livestock Sale

The annual Erie County 4-H Livestock Sale is set for the Waterford Fair Thursday, Sept. 6. The sale will get under way promptly at 6 p.m. with the sale of the grand and reserve champion market lambs, followed by the sale of the balance of the market lambs. The grand and reserve champion market hogs will be sold next, followed by the sale of the balance of the market hogs. The sale will close with the sale of the grand and reserve market steers, followed by the sale of the balance of the market steers.

Approximately 35 steers, 25 market lambs, and 40 market hogs will be offered for sale. All hogs offered for sale will be judged at the Waterford Fair on Monday afternoon, Sept. 3. Lambs will be judged on Tuesday evening, Sept. 4, and the steers will be judged on Wednesday evening, Sept. 5.

Several area auctioneers are scheduled to help with the sale, including Raleigh Chesley, Chesley Auctioneers, North East; Doug Chesley, Chesley Auctioneering, North East; Sherm Allen, C. Sherman Allen, Auctioneer, and Associates, Conneaut Lake; Jeff Bennett, Union City Livestock Auction, Union City; Paul Holtz, Greene Township; Bill Bellis, Venango County; and Gary Shidemantle, of Gary's Sales Service, Edinboro.

Marvin Hall, maze designer, places a sticker on these couples who made it through the maze: Roger and Kathy Duman and Ralph and Mary Farbaugh, Cambria County.

Working together are dairy farm family Daniel and Rebekah Brandt and children, Alicia, 11; Mark, 9; and Zach, 7. They are trying to complete the quiz at the Farm Safety exhibit.

Taking a break are Everett and Jamie Reitz, daughter Casey, 8, and son Andrew, 5. The children entered the giant weed contest. Andrew's weed specimen stumped the experts who could not identify it. The family has a small farm in Emeryville and try to attend Ag Progress every year.

Dave and Florence Prah, Fayette County, thought they had a strange weed growing on their farm. They brought it to Ag Progress and found it is a common weed—purslane. Experts told the Prahs how to rid their land of the weed. Catherine and Rudolph Hynek, Westmoreland, accompanied them.

Cedar Crest FFA Winners At State Events

Seventeen members from Cedar Crest FFA made the three day trip with chaperone Gerald Strickler and chapter adviser Harold Berkheiser to the state FFA career development events (CDE) at Penn State.

Nate Artz, Billie Jo Atkins, Carl Eisenhauer and Gretchen Artz took top honors in the livestock CDE. The team was required to match the official judges placings of classes of sheep, pigs and steers as well as give oral reasons for their placings to the judges. They received a plaque and a check for $1,000 to help pay for their expenses to the National FFA Convention in Louisville, Ky.

Amber Frank, from Cedar Crest won the Zoology section of the Agriscience Fair competition. Her display and research on "The Intelligence of Mice" as well as an interview about the project was good enough for the judges to rank her first. Joel Krall received third place in Zoology and Jeremy Balsbaugh was third in the Food Science category of the Agriscience Fair. Both received plaques for their efforts.

Chet Brubaker won top honors in the Agricultural Sales Proficiency Award Area. This proficiency award area typically involves an extensive work experience in the area of sales and marketing. Chet works at Dutchway Farm Market in Schaefferstown. Chet received $100 and a plaque for first place. Chet also was the second place winner in the Turfgrass Proficiency Award Area and the third place Extemporaneous Public Speaker for which he received $50 and a plaque.

The Commodity Marketing Team — Erik Rheinheimer, Amanda Heffelfinger and Chet Brubaker — was first in the state and received a plaque for their efforts. They had to monitor agricultural commodities on the internet, buy and sell them using several different methods and take a test on general information about commodities.

The Cedar Crest Dairy Judging Team — Hannah Bomgardner, Dan Eberly, Sarah Krall and Jared Zimmerman — won second place. They had to place classes of cows and pedigrees and take a written exam on the dairy industry and give oral reasons for their placings.

The Cedar Crest FFA Chapter is rated in the top 10 percent of the chapters in the country based on their activities throughout the year.

Seminar Prepares Dairy Royalty For Promotional Role

UNION CITY (Erie Co.) — July is a busy month for the new "class" of dairy royalty, but county princesses, alternates, their parents and committee members attended this year's training seminar for a great opportunity to learn more about the dairy industry that they are representing.

Conducted by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., the training session was conducted July 10-13 at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Indiana. Fifty-eight dairy royalty from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, and New York along with 44 adult supporters participated in three and a half days of intensive instruction on the "how to's" of dairy promotion. Nutritionists, industry personnel, dairy farmers, and a fashion consultant conducted workshops on all facets of the dairy industry. In addition, all 58 participants gave speeches for adult audiences and skits for school children, which they were then given helpful suggestions on how to improve these presentations. The speeches and skits are used many times throughout their reign.

Former Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Natalie Welch Morris (1994-95) of Somerset County got the program off to an exciting start Wednesday morning with her keynote address "Living Today." Using examples from her own reign, she related examples of how important living in the present is and how important family, in particular, mothers are to each girl's reign.

Currently reigning, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Melinda Wolfe and Alternates Heidi Miller and Emily Cloninger welcomed the group with a "get to know me" game session and pizza party on Tuesday evening, July 10, and served as helpers, hostesses and workshop leaders throughout the seminar. They also coordinated and appeared as models for the fashion show, which was moderated by Pat Miller of Dauphin County.

Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. is supported by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic, American Dairy Association, Inc. and Allied Milk Producers along with a number of independent dairies, cooperatives, agribusinesses, and Penn State University.

Pennsylvania County dairy princesses will compete for the state title on Sept. 22 at the Four Points Sheraton Hotel, Harrisburg. The Milk Punch Reception will commence at 5:30 p.m., the banquet at 6:30 p.m. and the pageant at 8 p.m. All interested persons are invited to attend. Tickets are $22 and may be ordered from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Clarion, PA 16214.

Another Mini-Seminar For The Record Books

UNION CITY (Erie Co.) — One hundred fifty-six dairy promoters and 56 adult supporters from counties across Pennsylvania assembled at Penn State's Agricultural Science and Industries Building on July 23 for a one-day training session on the how's, and why's of dairy promotion.

This one-day seminar was hosted by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. The participants ranged from 7- to 20-years-old and included a number of young men who are active dairy promoters in their home counties.

Pennsylvania's reigning Dairy Princess Melinda Wolfe and Alternatives Heidi Miller and Emily Cloninger, assisted by former state royalty, Angela Werley Davis, Lori Connelly, Amanda Gilkinson and Rebecca Kilgore, conducted the training seminar. Assisting the royalty in their sessions was the host county's Dairy Princess Ashley Judy.

Sessions were conducted on "The Basics" — Industry Knowledge, Pennsylvania Dairy Facts and Nutrition; "Speaking and Interviewing" — construction, and delivery of a speech and interview techniques; and "My Image" — what to wear, and how to act professional while at promotions.

A special session was conducted for participants, 14 years and older, who had attended the seminar in previous years. A bus tour including The Penn State Creamery, The Bryce Jordan Center, and campus was enjoyed by the attending adults.

The seminar's keynote speaker, Lauren Daubert, 1999-2000 Clinton County Dairy Princess and 2000 Tina Shultz award winner, gave an encouraging speech, "Dairy Cheer."

Sheep Leadline A Hit In The Heat

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — The children smiled, the sheep baaed, the spectators laughed and clapped despite the 90 plus temperatures for the sheep leadline at the Bedford Fair.

There were crowd favorites such as Kateri Bowser who dressed as Cruella DeVillewho led her Dalmatian spotted sheep. Everyone wondered how "Jacob" Bowser got talked into dressing as a pigtailed ballerina and Krista Holly as Raggedy Ann. Creativity was rampid as Amanda Plessinger was the princess and her sheep was the pea.

Amanda Stanton emerged as the first place winner in the handmade wool category. A third grader, Amanda was wearing a fushia wool pants and backless top outfit trimmed in silver beading. Amanda both designed and made her outfit.

Second place in handmade competition was Ashley Knisel, who also won first place in the standard class and Kayla Dull, lamb and wool princess, was second.

In the three and four year old category, it was Kateri Bowser as Cruella who took home the trophy. Kelsy Koontz was second as an artist.

Josiah Koontz as the Lone Ranger and Silver the sheep walked away with the trophy for the 7- and 8-year-old category. Willie Sollenberger as a member of the Adams Family was second.

Among the nine and 10-year-olds was Krista Holly as a lovable Raggedy Ann who received first place, and Christopher Rogers as a football player with a referee sheep placed second.

Krista Holly as Raggedy Ann was a crowd pleaser.

Josiah Koontz was the Lone Ranger and his sheep portrayed Silver.

Kateri Bowser as Cruella DeVille took first place in herage category.

Amanda Stanton won the handmade wool category with the outfit that she designed and made.

You ask ou

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

ANSWER — Paul Cherniski, Unionville, wanted to know where to buy replacement seats and cushions for metal kitchen chairs, approximately 15x15-inches or 16x16-inches and three-inches thick. The seats have a metal bottom, foam interior and vinyl cover. A Lancaster County reader writes that if you are creative and if your seats are like hers, you can remove the bolts on the bottom of the chairs to remove the pads. You or an upholstery shop can make a pattern from the seat and cover with new fabric and foam if needed. Pull the fabric tight, tuck in ends, and refasten the bolts.

ANSWER — The correct address for Square Foot Gardening is P.O. Box 190, Pleasant Grove, UT 84062.

Population Explosion Of Red Admiral Butterflies In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio - State lepidopterists are seeing a population explosion of red admirals, the first time in 15 years the butterflies have been so widespread.

The Ohio Lepidopterists' last complete statewide red admiral observation figure was in 1999 with less than 50 butterflies counted. Butterfly monitors, who have continuously monitored two Lake County sites since 1996, have already recorded over 190 red admiral butterflies this summer, over five times as many as the previous year in the same area.

Observers have also reported high red admiral numbers throughout the state, as well as the entire midwest region. For example, an observer in Franklin County reported seeing over 300 red admirals at Blacklick Woods Metro Park in one month.

Barb Bloetscher, an Ohio State University entomologist, said officials are unsure why red admiral numbers are so high, but speculate that the exceptionally snowy winter may have helped the over-wintering butterflies survive till spring. "Ordinarily we don't have many butterflies that over-winter here. But we had a lot of snow this past year that may have provided enough insulation for the butterflies that did over-winter to survive," said Bloetscher. "Southern states like Kentucky and Tennessee have also reported good red admiral numbers, and the butterflies always tend to migrate north."

Though not as popular as other butterflies, like the Monarch, observers are excited over the high red admiral numbers from an aesthetic, as well as an environmental standpoint. "Well, the butterflies, for one thing are very pretty to look at," said Bloetscher. "But they are also considered a beneficial butterfly, as they eat weeds. They are not considered pests, like other butterflies, such as the American painted lady which has a tendency to feed on herbaceous ornamental plants."

The red admiral has been observed in nearly every Ohio county, and is characterized by its fast and erratic flight. The species is recognized by longitudinal red bands along its dorsal hindwings, and horizontal red bands and white spots on its dorsal forewings. Nettles are the primary host plants for the butterfly and the species can be found along forest margins, roads, open fields, wetlands, parks, gardens and orchards.

The red admiral is currently in its second-generation life cycle. The species will begin to migrate south this month. "Some butterflies will stay throughout the winter," said Bloetscher. "But most will migrate south and if they make it through next year, we could have another good crop coming through Ohio."

Bedford Selects Fair Queen

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Looking gorgeous in a white gown, tall and athletic Stephanie Blackstone was crowned the 2001 Bedford County Fair Queen.

The daughter of Steve and Cindy Blackstone of Everett is a senior at Everett High School and was recently crowned Bedford County's fire queen. She is active in both sports and music.

Receiving her crown from Bedford County's 2000 and first fair queen, Amber Clark, Stephanie hopes to follow in her footsteps doing well in state competition. Amber placed fifth among 47 in state competition last year.

Placing as first runner-up was Kristin Merfin a recent graduate of Everett High School. She is the daughter of Butch and Kathy Mirfin. A licensed insurance agent, Kristen plans to use her insurance skills to help furthur her education. She was extremely proud of the gown she wore for the competition as it was made by her grandmother.

Kristen is a member of the 4-H Chapman's Run Club and has been showing farm animals for the past four years.

"I live on a pig farm," she says. "but, I love showing beef, goats, sheep and swine."

Also in this year's contest were Amanda Feaster, a 2001 graduate of Bedford high School and freshman at Shippensburg University, and Rachel Myers, daughter of Vaughn and Teresa Myers, and a senior at Bedford High School.

Visiting the pageant was Tracy Tasselli, Miss Deaf Pennsylvania of Duncansville.

As the new queen, Stephanie received $500 in prize money while Kristen took home $100. Each contestant was rewarded with a gift bag of goodies from area merchants.

Judges were Jo Ellen Weaverling, a former Bedford County Fire Queen; Sarah Long, a Clearfield County State Fair Queen; and Marlene Duttry.

Sweets Bring High Prices

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A chocolate cake in the shape of a heart brought a $150 at the annual 4-H bake sale auction at the Bedford County Fair.

Held each year to help support the 4-H building at the Bedford Fair grounds, the grand total for this year's sale was $1,502.

Despite high temperatures and sticky icing, the bidding by the jocular crowd remained high with the largest bid being the last.

The top cake had been baked by a family member of Landon Shaw in memory of the donor. It was purchased by Judy Bachman of Clearville, a cousin of both the heart recipient and the donor. "I can't talk about it," she said after the auction. "I get tears just thinking about it." She was willing to bid as high as the cake might go.

High bidder for the evening was local painting contractor Dean Lemley who spent a total of $305 on various cakes, pies, and cookies and gave most of them back to be auctioned again. All but one oatmeal pie. "My favorite," he said. "I would have been satisfied with just one piece, but had to buy the whole pie."

Ben Kendall, local accountant also purchased numerous baked items and gave them to anyone who happened to be passing by.

Dr. Eric Weaverling, a long time supporter of the sale had his arms full as he headed towards the barns to help satisfy the appetites of a lot of young people showing cattle.

Peg Wolfhope of AAI Insurance had a check to spend from the office. "We will sample everything tomorrow," she said as she loaded up the back of her station wagon.

The sale is an annual, looked-forward to event by many. Auctioneers Linda Muir and Stanley Claycomb (father and daughter) keep the bids coming. "We have volunteered for what must be at least 100 years," Stanley said.

Judy Barkman paid $150 for a chocolate heart-shaped cake baked in memory of her cousin, a heart donor.

Edible Bugs?

While not all insects are edible, there are at least some that certain cultures of the world find not only nutritious, but tasty as well. In fact, those in academic circles call edible insects "microlivestock."

On the nutrition side of the question, a 100-gram serving (about 3.5 ounces) of termites contains almost 14 grams of protein. The same size serving of weevils contains almost seven grams of protein, as well as 13 grams of iron and decent amounts of thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. And, 100 grams of caterpillar contain a whopping 28 grams of protein — about the same as you'd get in the same size serving of beef or fish — as well as 35 milligrams of iron — about 10 times the amount of iron in the same size serving of lean ground beef.

Entomologists — the scientists who study insects — tell us that termites, weevils, caterpillars, grasshoppers, house flies, and spiders are all better sources of protein than beef, chicken, pork or lamb, ounce for ounce. They say that insects are low in cholesterol and fat, too.

Many of the world's populations have no problem with eating insects. In Colombia, ants are ground up and used as a spread on breads. Fried grasshoppers are enjoyed in Mexico. The giant waterbug is roasted and eaten whole in Asia. In the Philippines, June beetles, locusts and dragonfly larvae are among the insects that are fried, broiled or sauted with vegetables.

However, not all insects are digestive-system friendly. Some, in fact, are toxic. Any adventurous folks who want to begin expanding their culinary fare should do some research and choose only species that entomologists say are safe.

Iowa State University's entomology club actually hosts a website with insect recipes, with everything from Banana Worm Bread to Corn Borer Cornbread Muffins. See it at http://www.ent.iastate.edu/misc/insectsasfood.html. Or, learn more from an Ohio State University Extension fact sheet, "Insects as Human Food," available at Ohio's county Extension offices or online at http://ohioline.osu.edu/hyg-fact/2000/2160.html.

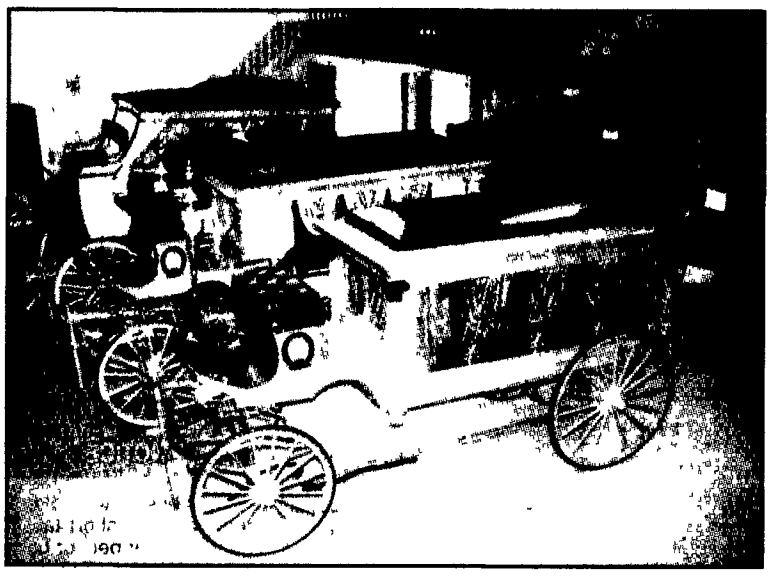
Farm Couple Establish Carriage House, Museum

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Admittedly hearsts are not a typical collectible, but after visiting Corinne's Carriage House and Museum, visitors are often intriqued with the style and history of horse-drawn hearsts.

A 1900 silver hearst gleams with side lamps and beveled glass.

Joe and Barb Tetz started restoring carriages in 1990.



In addition to the antique carriages on display, Tetz made a reproduction, shown in the foreground that matches the antique model beside it.

Barb Tetz points to the original lettering she uncovered while restoring the 1885 touring carriage used at Yellow Stone National Park.

Joe and Barb Tetz combine their love for antiques, horses, and farming in New Tripoli.

That same year they purchased their first two Friesian horses, flown in all the way from Holland.

Unexpectantly, the Tetzs were asked to solve a problem for the nearby city of Bethlehem, and that resulted in a whole new focus for their antique hearst collection.

During street construction, workers had unearthed the skeletal remains of two bodies. From the buttons on the jackets, the bodies were determined to be the remains of Revolutionary War soldiers.

Joe and Barb were asked to provide the horse-drawn hearst to provide a proper burial for the bodies. When Joe and Barb arrived with the horse-drawn hearst, the streets were filled with hundreds of onlookers, Pentagon Color Guard, and dignitaries.

The stately Friesian horses and the antique hearst sparked the interest of many people in the crowd. It wasn't long before Joe and Barb received more requests to use their horse-drawn hearst.

Not wanting to ruin the antique hearsts, Joe and Barb sought to make reproductions for use and save the originals.

From there Joe and Barb went on to design and build custom hearses and carriages, some of the finest to be found anywhere.

Of developing the horse-drawn funeral business, Tetz said, "I took a gamble. It was a sheer desire and a fear of failure that drove me to succeed."

The Tetz's average three funerals weekly. Advertisement is done mainly with fliers and word-of-mouth. Tetz said that someone sees them and remarks, "That's the way I want to go."

Family members remember the request when a funeral needs to be planned.

Although Joe and Barb work mostly with Heintzelman Funeral Home, Schnecksville, they will travel to wherever their services are requested. A truck and trailer is used to transport the horses and the hearst for funeral processions.

Generally the hearst is used in transportation from church to cemetary. Lots of pomp and circumstance surround funerals for public officials, such as the playing of bagpipes. Sometimes, the funeral is a quiet procession, with family members walking behind the horse-drawn carriage.

In 1996, Joe's sister Corinne started a carriage collection and asked Joe and Barb if they would like to house it at their farm in New Tripoli. They gladly accepted the offer and put an addition onto their workshop. They now have a museum with many fine antique carriages and accessories on display.

Joe and Barb do all the restoration and carriage building.

The Tetz's say they know of only one other hearst museum, located in Houston, Texas.

In addition to the 22 carriages, the museum also houses lap robes, carriage lamps, and numerous other items connected to carriages.

"I have rare farming equipment, but no place to display it," Tetz said.

"I'd like to establish the museum as a nonprofit organization and include a farming addition," he said.

"I'd like to have a whole museum from country to city, showing farm (models) to the fanciest coaching," he said.

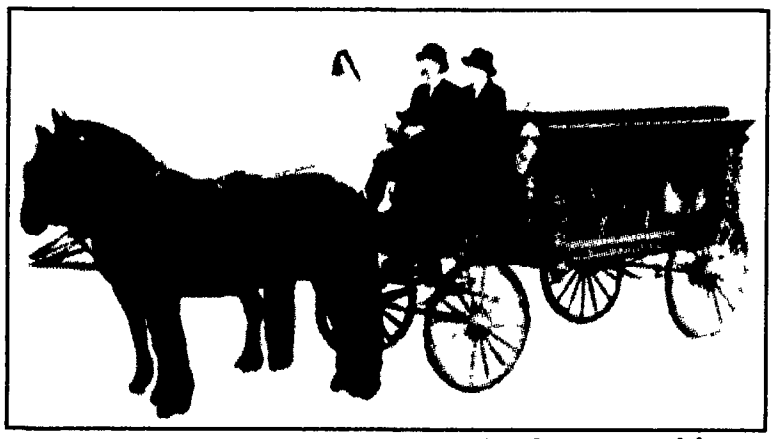
When people see the Tetz farm, they automatically assume one of them was born into money, but Tetz is quick to set them straight. Of growing up in a large family in the Adirondacks of New York, he said, he was almost grown before he realized that "git wood" wasn't his name.

Although Tetz had a limited education, he had a strong inner desire, he said, and a wife that shared his dream. After the couple purchased the property, they built a barn, house, and museum on it, doing much of the work themselves.

In the carriages they restore and reproductions, the Tetz's take great pride in their work.

"We built it all ourselves," Tetz said of a hearst's detailed solid walnut interior made from a walnut tree he chopped down in 1960.

Tetz worked formerly in a machine shop.



Barb and Joe Tetz use their Friesian horses to drive a horse-drawn hearst for funerals. "I took a gamble," Tetz said of starting the business that averages three funerals weekly.

Restoring carriages is a self-taught trade. He said, "It took me six months to build the columns for this. I made four sets before I was satisfied.

The couple's reputation for producting top quality work has brought them lots of work such as restoring a 1918 carriage for the National Arlington Cemetary.

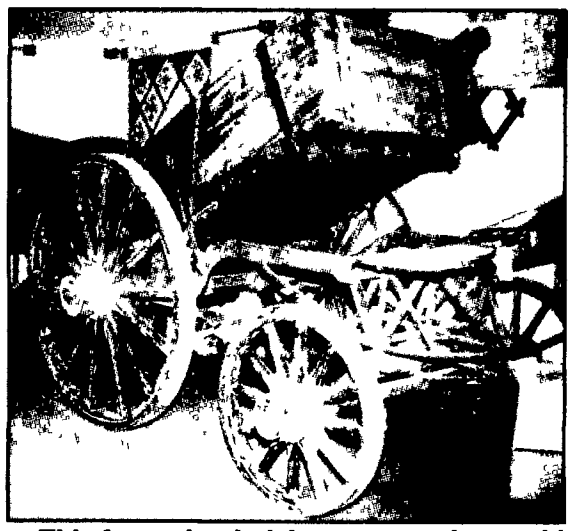
One of the carriages in the museum came with the original papers dated 1890. The paperwork detailed the features ordered, such as an extra set of wheels, trim in green skins and cloth, number seven lace, plain carpet, and other requirements.

"It was just like ordering a new car today," Tetz said.

When working on the carriages, Tetz envisions an earlier era. He said, "I wonder if they (original craftsmen) were under as much pressure from customers to get things done that we are today?"

But when Tetz steps outside the barn, he can see for miles around in all directions. He said, "We love this area. It's my kind of living."

A colorful Website on the Tetz farm and museum is www.horsedrawnfunerals.com



This four-wheeled dump wagon is considered extremely rare. As the body goes up, the tailgate opens so the driver doesn't need to abandon the horses.

This 1845 eastern stage coach is one of three existing in original condition and is valued at $200,000. It was designed to hold nine passengers.

Antiques Questions And Answers

Could you please tell me something about this picture of a woman praying to the Virgin Mary that is painted on tin. Does it have value ?

R.K. - Cincinnati, OH

Paintings on tin have been done since the 18th century in various countries. Yours appears to be 19th century and is highly collectible. It could sell at auction for $900 or more.

This ceramic plate caught my eye at a flea market. The center is shiny like glass and the design on the bright floral motif is edged with gold. It has the word "freelands" at the top and "1929" at the bottom. Someone suggested it was made at the Longwy Pottery in France. I would like to know more about it.

M.J.M. - Cincinnati, OH

The design and bright turquoise inner rim are certainly typical of this pottery's work in the Art Deco period. Not all pieces are marked. The pottery began in 1798 in Lorraine, France. Your plate could sell in a shop for $100 or more.

I inherited two hand-painted heavy faille bedspreads with silk tassels, brought from Italy 65 years ago by my late husbands family. One has cupids, the other figures in 18th century dress. How could I go about selling them or disposing of them?

A.C. - Cincinnati, OH

You might donate them to the textile department of your local museum for a tax write off. Or, send photos, measurements to Ms. Margaret H. Schwartz, European Works of art Export, Sotheby's, 1334 York Ave., New York, NY 10021, for an estimated auction value.

My grandmother, who passed away recently at age 98 left me her music stand, which I know to be 19th century. It is mahogany with a pierced lyre decoration. I would like to insure it and need to know it's replacement value.

G.S.E. - Cincinnati, OH

It would cost you around $1,000 to replace it.

Is silver plate worth anything? I have a silver-plated bird inkwell that is late 19th century, that belonged to my great grandfather.

T.Z. - Cincinnati, OH

It could sell at auction for $400 or more.

At a recent estate sale I paid $25 for a beautiful Irish lace collar made in the early 20th century. I plan to frame it as art. What could it be worth ?

B.G.G. - Cincinnati, OH

A shop price could be $150.

I have had this tea service stamped "Yamasan China", made in occupied Japan, for over 50 years. It includes eight cups and saucers, four serving plates and a jam dish. It is decorated in vibrant gold, red, blue, green against a brown background. The design is of two figures in oriental costume. Any idea of value ?

G.R. - Homestead, FL

Your Satsuma-style, Occupied Japan tea service could sell in a shop for $250/300.

I found these two paints at a local thrift shop. They are oil on canvas and are signed Maurice, Utrillo, V. They are street scenes. Can you tell me about the artist and the value?

B.C. - Miami, FL

From your photo the art is matted and under glass. Oil paintings never are. I think you have two prints. Utrillo(1883-1955) oils sell for thousands of dollars. This French artist also did watercolor priced for a couple of thousand dollars. Check whether these are prints or watercolors.

In the 1920s my mother found this small metal teapot in the sand on the Miami river. On the side is engraved "The Ocean side Magnolia Mass." On the bottom "Mfd. & Plated by Reed & Barton, Taunton, Mass. 1 portion. Pat.Feb.1898." Does it have any value?

B.K.N. - Miami, FL

I think your small silver-plated teapot was made for the resort hotel named. Polished, it could sell in a shop for $40.

This marble top, commode-chest came from old Lyme, CT. I can remember it in a converted barn. It is several types of wood. The top drawer pulls are carved in the form of fruit. Is it valuable?

E.O.L. - Hialeah, FL

Your late 19th century Victorian commode could sell in a shop for $600 or more.

My friend is 96 years old and would like an appraiser for her Hummels and antiques. Can you recommend one?

J.R. - Margate, FL

I suggest you contact a personal property appraiser, listed in the Yellow Pages, as belonging to one of the appraisal societies, American Society of Appraisers, etc. Make sure they charge by the hour, not by percentage. Tell them the type of appraisal wanted; estate purposes, insurance or retail sales. Have another person present at the time of the appraisal and to check the final, written appraisal. Money can be saved if like items are grouped.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

The Whimsical Artistry Of Whirligigs

There is a lawn, just off highway 125 in Williamston, North Carolina, sprouting whirligigs. Figures of birds, and men in a ferris wheel carved in painted plywood whirl when the wind blows.

These whirligigs are the creation and retirement hobby of Andrew Paul Mobley, a true outsider artist.

I stumbled upon his yard of whirligigs a couple of years ago when visiting a relative in this remote North Carolina town. There were birds, bees, and even Uncle Sam moving in the breeze. I thought I had died and gone to folk art heaven. His prices were $15 to $25. Even the mass-designed whirligigs that are all over North Carolina were more than that. I stuffed three large whirligigs with propellers into the back seat and vowed to return. Alas, I never have and Mobley is now terminally ill with emphysema.

Like most outsider art, the whirligigs were made of plywood and materials from dumps and building supply stores. Mobley drew whatever came to mind on scraps of paper then transferred the patterns onto the plywood. And, he signed them. I doubt that he thought of himself as a folk artist, following an American art form dating to the early 19th century. Now they twist and turn on my mountain yard.

The early whirligigs were made by amateurs in the primitive style that collectors love. Subjects, then as now, were everything from soldiers to farmers at work.

There were two types. A single-figure whirligig had rotating paddlelike arms. Usually mounted on a wooden or metal rod that passed through the shoulders of the figure.

Multifugure whirligigs move by a propeller that turns gears and rods that made the figures move. I see many of these in mountain yards with propellers of plastic fan blades. The figures can be silhouette-type or three-dimensional. Since most have lived their lives outside the paint is often faded, if it has survived at all. When these early examples show up at Americana auctions, they sell for thousands of dollars. Even good 20th century examples fetch hundreds of dollars. As an almost forgotten art form prices for the most unusual examples just keep going up.

The origins of whirligigs aren't clear. However, in 19th century Pennsylvania-German communities, religious beliefs forbid children to play with toys on Sunday. The whirligig was one way to keep the children amused. They appeared in almost all rural areas. Few whirligigs made in the early 19th century have survived the weather over the years.

whirligigs are a combination of dolls and the movements of windmills. Originally brightly colored their mechanisms were often complicated. Most desirable are those that still work and combine many figures. Those with metal mechanisms should be oiled. Nevermind if the paint has faded. Heavy-handed restoration is a no-no unless done by a professional restorer.

Clues: There are plenty of fake whirligigs around. When you see one you like, check to see if it still works or in fact ever did. Fakers often haven't been able to duplicate the mechanisms. Next, try and determine the age. Since they were originally meant to be outdoors, there should be signs of weathering and wear marks where movable parts rub against the body. Metal elements should be rusted or corroded. Many contemporary whirligig makers copy old designs that are easily aged when exposed to the elements.

I have a collection of pre-Columbian art, mostly ceramics, from various areas of Latin America. I am curious to know if there are similar collectors like me and if there is a market for such items.

D.J.R. - Coral Springs, FL

There are hundreds of collectors of pre-Columbian art. The problem for all of you is that so many pieces have been faked for the last 30 years. You might want to subscribe to the pre-Columbian art catalogues and auction prices from Sotheby's Auctions, 1334 York Avenue, New York, NY 10021. To find other collectors you could run an add or check the internet.

LIONEL AND AMERICAN FLYER TRAINS SALE

A Lionel and American Flyer Train collection from a Lebanon County Estate was sold at auction on Aug. 3 in Lebanon. As bidders arrived from as far away as Maryland and New York, they were immediately impressed with the quality of the mid 1950s trains and accessories to be sold. "This stuff looks like it was never played with;" "It looks better than new" and "I haven't seen anything this nice for years" were some of the Pre-auction comments that were heard among the potential bidders Almost all the trains and accessories were in like new condition and in the original superb condition boxes. The auction contained over 150 catalogued lots and the auctioneer started with several H.O. trains that were not catalogued. As the bidders anxiously awaited to start the catalogue contained quality and pristine conditioned items, everyone's attention was drawn to lot number 44 consisting of a rare 1954 Lionel #2321 Lackawanna Maroon top diesel locomotive. The bidding rose quickly and hesitated briefly when another bidder made a last unsuccessful attempt to try to win this prized locomotive. When the gavel fell, the auctioneer said sold! For $900. As the auctioneer announced that the locomotive found a new home with a private collector from Pine Grove you could see the relief in his eyes as he finally won the bidding for the prized locomotive. After the auction was over, he informed me that he was looking for one this nice for years. Other Lionel prices realized were: pair of 022 remote switches, $35; a 6436 Lehigh Valley coal car, $45; a 6362 truck car, $75; a 3662 operating milk car, $130; a 6464 Minn. and St. Louis boxcar, $110; a 6446 N&W cement car, $55; and a Lionel Lines Caboose, $100. American Flyer prices: a #293 N.Y. N.H. and Hartford Steam Locomotive, $175; a 905 flat car and a 913 box car, $45 each; a 929 cattle car, $45; a 940 hopper car, $40; a 947 refrigerator car, $50; a 970 car with brakeman, $75; a 977 action caboose, $130; a 336 steam locomotive, $475; a 980 box car, $160; a 981 box car, $150; a 982 box car, $130; a 983 box car and a 988 refrigerator car, $200 each, a 372 Gilbert diesel locomotive, $300; a 770 oil drum loader, $190; a 760 highway flasher, $85; a 30B transformer, $150; a 590 control tower, $140; a 774 floodlight tower, $100; a 600 crossing gate, $130, a K771 operating stockyard and car, $200; a 750 trestle bridge, $140, Rare 792 red terminal and 799 talking station, $350 each; K775 loading platform and car, $275; and a 566 whistling billboard, $100. The auction was conducted by Russell S. Wolfe Jr. Auctioneer from Lebanon.

Erie County Team Celebrated As National Envirothon Champion

MILLCREEK (Erie County) — The North East High School Envirothon team recently won first place in the national 2001 Canon Envirothon competition.

"Pennsylvanians have many reasons to be proud of these five young men first they used their environmental knowledge to set the highest score ever to win the state title, and now they have brought home the national title to Pennsylvania," Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David E. Hess said during a ceremony at Headwaters Conservation Park in Erie County.

The members of the winning team are: Carson Engelskirger; Jeremy Stempka; Justin Pierson; Markus Fish; and Doug Fynan. Team advisors are John Hallenburg and Patrick Coyne.

The team won the 2001 Canon Envirothon the last week of July during competition at Hinds Community College in Raymond, Miss., where they competed against teams from 41 other states and seven Canadian provinces.

Each of members received a $3,000 scholarship and products from Canon. The coaches and the Erie County Conservation District received digital cameras.

"The first challenge for the North East team was competing in the Erie County competition," Erie County Conservation District Manager LeRoy Gross said.

"Conservation districts across the state sponsor the county events. In Erie County this has become very competitive, growing from just a few teams in the first Erie County Envirothon in 1991 to 28 teams this year."

The North East team won the 2001 Canon Envirothon by scoring 554.5 points out of a possible 700.

Thousands of Pennsylvania students in grades 9-12 participate each year in the Envirothon program. The Envirothon tests students' knowledge of environmental resources and their relation to each other and human activities. The teams complete exercises in aquatics, forestry, soils, wildlife and a current environmental issue. The 2001 issue was nonpoint source pollution.

For more information on the Envirothon, contact Pennsylvania Envirothon Chair Lorelle Steach at 814-623-7900 or www.envirothon.org, or visit the Envirothon website through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, or directly at www.dep.state.pa.us (directLINK "Envirothon").

ICBA Congratulates Senate On Passing Farm Aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Independent Community Bankers of America recently congratulated the U.S. Senate on passage of a $5.5 billion farm aid package.

"Now lenders and their farm customers can be certain that needed aid is on its way. Many farmers will continue to struggle even with this assistance, which is why a new and improved farm bill will be so important to our family farmers and ranchers," stated ICBA Chairman Robert I. Gulledge.

"This has been a difficult task but we congratulate the Senate for acting before the August recess, ensuring a known amount of aid will be sent to farm country. With the low prices we've seen in agriculture, farmers are struggling to make their farm operations cash flow. The government farm-aid packages have allowed many farmers to hang on from one year to the next. Enacting a stronger farm safety net in the next farm bill and an aggressive U.S. trade policy are the next steps Congress needs to take to help resuscitate American agriculture," Gulledge said.

Gulledge is also chairman, president, and CEO of Citizens' Bank, a $75 million-asset community bank in Robertsdale, Ala.

ICBA is the primary voice for the nation's community banks, representing 5,000 institutions at nearly 17,000 locations nationwide.

Select Sires Federation Donation To Dairy Foundation Yields $123,000

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — The 10 member cooperatives of the Select Sires federation have pledged contributions that will yield $123,000 for the Holstein Foundation as part of its Future Leaders Campaign endowment initiative. The interest income from these contributions in perpetuity will help fund leadership development for dairy youth, young adults and farm families representing all breeds of dairy cattle. The Foundation's professional-development, education and outreach programs offer a wide variety of grassroots-based opportunities for interested participants.

The cooperatives' pledges total $61,500, which will be matched by funds from Holstein Association USA, Brattleboro, Vt., to total $123,000. The 10 organizations that have pledged to be part of the Future Leaders Campaign in such a significant way are: All West/Select Sires, Burlington, Wash.; Cache Valley/Select Sires, Logan, Utah; COBA/Select Sires, Columbus, Ohio, and Tyler, Texas; East Central/Select Sires, Waupun, Wis.; KABA/Select Sires, Louisville, Ky.; Minnesota/Select Sires Co-op Inc., St. Cloud, Minn.; NorthStar Cooperative, Lansing, Mich.; Prairie State/Select Sires, Hampshire, Ill.; Select Sire Power Inc., Rocky Mount, Va., and Tunkhannock, Pa.; and Southeast Select Sires Inc., Franklin, Tenn.

"The generous contributions from the Select Sires member cooperatives have put us well on our way to reaching the $1 million goal set for the Future Leaders Campaign," says Donna Beal, executive director, Holstein Foundation. "This campaign, which will almost triple the size of the Foundation's endowment fund, will provide a stable source of financial support to maintain long-term program quality. We truly are grateful for the significant contributions being made by industry leaders like the Select Sires federation."

In addition to member-cooperative contributions to the Future Leaders Campaign, Select Sires Inc. has pledged $6,000 to the Holstein Foundation's Family Farm Campaign. It also has provided ongoing financial support for the Foundation's Young Dairy Leaders Institute since its inception in 1994.

"The Foundation's commitment to help educate and train future generations of dairy leaders is benefiting both the dairy industry and rural America," says Dave Thorbahn, general manager, Select Sires Inc. "It's critical that A.I. companies and other agribusinesses join with dairy producers to support organizations like the Holstein Foundation, helping prepare tomorrow's industry leaders. As the largest A.I. organization headquartered in North America, Select Sires is pleased to be part of this positive outreach."

Adam Cramer Joins Country Mortgage Team

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Adam Cramer, a loan specialist for MidAtlantic's Country Mortgage division, has begun servicing accounts in Frederick County according to Cherie Hall, Retail Loan Manager.

Cramer has been employed by MidAtlantic since July 2000. Prior to being hired full-time, he served as an intern working with the retail and secondary mortgage market programs.

Cramer grew up on a small beef farm in New Market, Frederick County. He is a graduate of Walkersville High School and holds a degree in agriculture business from the University of Maryland at College Park. In his spare time, he enjoys mountain biking, motorcycle riding and fishing. He currently resides in Thurmont.

Upon announcing his new responsibilities, Hall stated that adding Cramer to the staff of Country Mortgages to originate mortgages in Frederick County will be an asset to the program and to customers and prospects in the area.

Gehl Introduces Models 1085 And 1285 Forage Harvesters

WEST BEND, Wis. — "Our new Model 1285 is the largest-capacity pull-type forage harvester available today," says Jim Phillips, Gehl product development manager. "Standard equipment includes Gehl's unique Auto-Max™ load management system. Auto-Max lets you push your forage harvester to the limit, without fear of overloading. The result is increased capacity by as much as 20 percent."

Like Auto-Max, Gehl's Metal-Stop™ metal detector is also standard on the Model 1285. Both of these features are optional on the Model 1085. The Model 1285 is designed for tractors up to 300 PTO horsepower, the Model 1085 handles up to 225 PTO horsepower.

Both models can also be equipped with a crop processor unit that processes kernels, cobs and stalks for improved milk or beef production through better feed digestion and utilization.

"With the crop processor, you chop and process corn silage in a single operation," says Phillips. "And for haylage harvesting, it's easy to remove the entire processing roll module."

Both harvesters can be equipped with two- or three-row corn heads or hay heads up to nine feet wide.

For more information, contact your local Gehl dealer at: Gehl Company, 143 Water Street, West Bend, WI 53095; phone (262) 334-9461; or visit the Gehl Website at www.gehl.com.

MidAtlantic Farm Credit Announces Election Results

WESTMINSTER, Md. — MidAtlantic Farm Credit has recently announced the results of their stockholder election, which was held to choose directors and members of the 2002 nominating committee. All stockholders were sent officials notice of the election results on July 9.

Elected to serve as directors were: Millard E. (Jack) Crum Jr., of Walkersville, Md., and Ralph L. Robertson Jr., of Westminster, Md., from the Central Maryland Election Region; Walter C. Hopkins, of Lewes, Del., and Fred N. West, of Frankford, Del., from the Delaware Election Region; and James M. Garber, of Mount Joy, Dale R. Hershey, of Manheim, Wilmer L. Hostetter, of Oxford; Paul L. Kreider, of Palmyra, Kenneth S. Meck, of Willow Street, Mervin Sauder, of Lititz, Kenneth L. Schlegel, of Fleetwood, Kenneth L. Stutzman, of Kutztown and Rodger L. Wagner, of Oley, from the Keystone Election Region. There were no director positions up for election in the Chesapeake and Marva Election Regions.

Elected to serve a one-year term on the 2002 Nominating Committee were: Jesse L. Burall Sr., of Monrovia, Md. and David P. Crowl, of Street, Md., from the Central Maryland Election Region, Raymond T. Harrison, III, of Easton, Md., and William M. Knight Jr., of Church Hill, Md., from the Chesapeake Election Region, Mark J. Davis, of Georgetown, Del., and Christopher T. Kirk, of Laurel, Del., from the Delaware Election Region, Stephen R. Burkholder, of Alburtis, and Dean L. Groff, of Kinzers, from the Keystone Election Region and James B. Beauchamp, of Pocomoke, Md., and Lewis Quinton Riley, of Parsonburg, Md., from the Marva Election Region.

At its board meeting in June, Bob Frazee, CEO of MidAtlantic Farm Credit, thanked those directors who will be leaving the board this year. "Our outgoing board members have guided us through a successful consolidation, not to mention one of our most successful years, and I am grateful for their leadership and insight," he stated. Frazee continued by saying "having the elected board comprised of members of the cooperative is one of the tenets that sets MidAtlantic apart from other financial institutions. The board of directors knows the challenges that other members face in today's business environment, because they face the same obstacles."

The new board will be installed at their July meeting. Headquartered in Westminster, Md., MidAtlantic Farm Credit serves over 9,000 members from 18 branch offices.

Kinze Recognizes Binkley & Hurst Bros.

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. was one of only 28 dealerships throughout North America to receive the "Kinze Merit Achievement" award during Kinze's annual dealer meeting conducted recently by the Williamsburg, Iowa agricultural equipment manufacturer.

Don Hoover, sales manager of Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc., accepted the honor on behalf of the dealership while participating in the daylong meeting at the corporate headquarters in Williamsburg.

Less promotion, and overall management expertise. Four winners from seven districts throughout North America are selected each year.

The theme of the meeting, "Expect Even More," quickly delivered on its promise as Hoover witnessed the unveiling of two major product innovations: the new 3650 Twin-Line® planter with its new bulk fill seed distribution system and the new 1050 Harvest Commander™ auger wagon.

The 3650 Twin-Line® planter (which incorporates many features of the Kinze 3600 Twin-Line®) is designed with a unique in-line folding system for narrow transport, a choice of solid row Interplant™ or liquid fertilizer packages, and features a large bulk fill seed distribution system for the 12-row N and 16-row N sizes. The 3650 will be available in limited production quantities for the 2002 planting season.

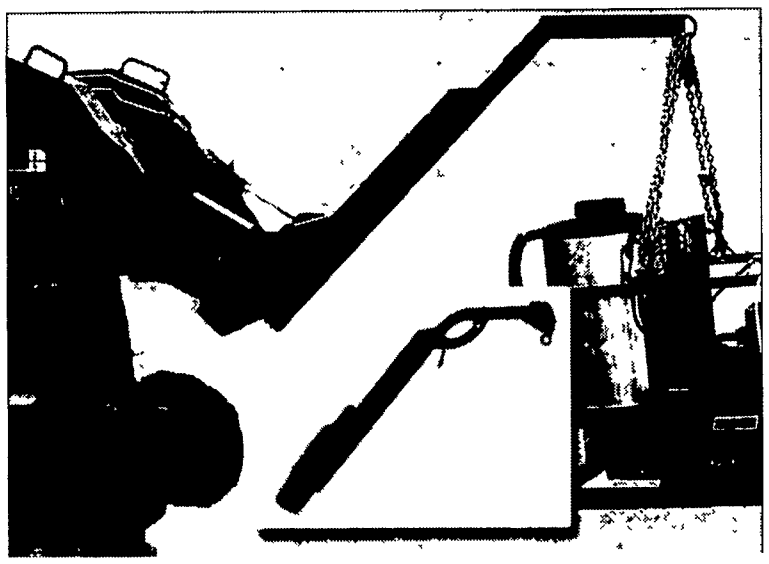
The new 1050 Harvest Commander™ auger wagon holds up to 1,050 bushels and will unload in approximately two minutes (500-600 bushels per minute). First production of the 1050 wagon is slated for May 2002.

Worksaver Constructs Flexible Crane Boom For Skid Steers

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — Worksaver's new crane boom for skid steers is equipped with three lifting points to provide the flexibility needed to move or load hard-to-handle materials. The crane boom fits skid steers with "universal" quick-attach systems and increases the versatility of a skid steer without purchasing additional attachments.

Featuring all-welded steel construction, the crane is strong, durable and reliable. The boom on the crane is constructed from 3-inch-square steel tubing for additional strength and durability. Boom has an overall length of 78 inches (1,981 mm).

The new crane boom lift capacity is rated from 1,700 pounds (771 kg) at the farthest attaching point to 2,200 pounds (998 kg) at the closest attaching point. Actual lifting capacity is based on size and specifications of the skid steer.



Worksaver's New Crane Boom For Skid Steers

Racing Champions® Announces Extension Of John Deere® Licensing Agreement

GLEN ELLYN, Ill. — Expanding the scope of a long-standing licensing agreement, Robert Dods, CEO of Racing Champions (NASDAQ:RACN) confirmed recently that the company has entered into a multi-year extension of their licensing agreement with Deere & Company, the world's leading producer of agricultural, construction, and other work equipment.

The agreement gives Racing Champions worldwide rights to produce and distribute under its Ertl brand, a wide range of toy and collectible products based on both past and present products manufactured by Deere.

"Deere & Company has been one of our most important licensors for years," Dods said. "This license extension is particularly important, given their aggressive business expansion around the world, and it offers big opportunities to us. We've had an extraordinary working relationship with them for years, and we look forward to building with them for the future."

The multi-year agreement makes it possible for Racing Champions' Ertl products to be distributed worldwide through John Deere dealer networks, as well as through independent retailers and traditional direct marketing channels.

Founded in 1989, Racing Champions (www.rcertl.com) is a leading producer and marketer of innovative collectibles and toys sold in multiple channels of distribution and available at more than 20,000 retail outlets.

The company sells American Muscle™ collectible die-cast vehicle replicas, NASCAR and NHRA die-cast racing replic officially licensed die-cast an preschool products of automobiles, trucks, agricultural, heavy equipment and powered-recreational and sport vehicles, AMT™ model kits, Press Pass® trading cards and NASCAR souvenirs and apparel. High-profile licensing partners include NASCAR®, NHRA®, John Deere®, Case Corporation®, Polaris®, Honda®, Caterpillar®, Ford®, GM®, Chrysler®, Texaco®, and Warner Brothers®.

Software Developed For Land Rentals

ST. PAUL, Minn. — If you're a land renter or a potential land renter, you've probably asked yourself "How much can I justify paying to rent that parcel of land?" "What will happen if yields or prices don't meet expectations?" "Do I have the labor, management and machinery requirements in place to tackle more acres, or do I need to consider additional management and overhead charges." FairRent for Windows®, a software decision aid, helps producers answer these questions.

FairRent takes operators through a full decision-making process that includes revenue projections, input analysis, overhead expense estimates, and labor and management requirements for the additional acres. The output includes rent sensitivity tables for variations in price and yield, as well as comparisons between cash and share rent. Users can also do "what if" comparisons of differing rental arrangements.

FairRent is developed and supported by the Center for Farm Financial Management, University of Minnesota, the developers of a number of farm management software tools including FINPACK and Marketeer.

FairRent retails for $95. For more information, write to the Center for Farm Financial Management, 130 Classroom Office Building, 1994 Buford Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108, or call (800) 234-1111, or visit them on the Web at www.cffm.umn.edu.

Jersey Named Supreme At Troy Youth Dairy Show

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) — "I'd be really excited if I was in your shoes," said judge Alisa Fava Fasnacht, Scenery Hill, as she addressed the youth holding the halters of the grand champion cows from each breed at the Troy Fair youth dairy show.

After calling for one more round of applause from the audience, Fasnacht and Terri Packard, of Boonesboro, Md., named the Jersey, Breezy Hollow Aerostar Blossom, a 4-year-old, owned by James Banks, the supreme champion.

"Terri and I both agree that the Jersey is the cow to beat today," Fasnacht said.

The Ayrshire senior and grand champion was Wentworth-Farm Bonoparte Fawn, a 4-year-old owned by Amberleigh Yurkanin. The reserve senior and reserve grand champion wasElm BRook May's Summer, a junior 2-year-old also owned by Amberleigh Yurkanin. Two fall calves took both the junior and reserve junior champion spots. In the champion position was Elm Brook Daria's Destiny, owned by Amberleigh Yurkanin. Dazee View Spectacular Sassy, owned by Monica Franklin, won the reserve junior champion award.

Elm Brook Trouba Paisley, an 8-year-old cow owned by Heather Yurkanin, was awarded grand champion honors in the Brown Swiss show. The Brown Swiss reserve grand champion was CIE How-Mis Even Polly, a 6-year-old cow owned by Renee Shores. The junior and reserve champion Brown Swiss were both selected from the spring yearling class. Abbie Kuhlman's Towpath Star Kara, was named the champion, while Renee Shores' Shoresbrook Ehart Pollyana was the reserve junior champion.

In the Milking Shorthorn show, Samuel Cole showed all four champions. Junior 2-year-old Echo Farm Outlaw Margarita was named the senior and grand champion. Senior 2-year-old GMC SCG Steps took reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors. Echo Farm Conquest Epic, a summer yearling, was named the junior

Results Of Troy Fair Livestock Sale

CAROLYN MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co.) - Sixty-two hogs, 13 sheep and two steers crossed the auction block at the 2001 Troy Fair held recently. Also sold at the combined livestock and milk auction were 12 gallons of milk from the champion and reserve champions from the youth dairy show.

Prices held steady throughout the sale with the 250-pound champion hog commanding $4.75 per pound. The champion was raised by Meredith Hennip and was sold to County Recovery Service.

The reserve grand champion hog was raised by Josh Ford. That 240-pound hog was sold to Keystone Cattle Company for $6 per pound.

Overall, the hogs averaged $2.83. During the course of the auction, five hogs were donated back to be resold to raise money for a youth scholarship fund. The resale of the five hogs raised over $1,800.

Four lambs were also resold to raise money for the scholarship fund. Those lambs, donated back by various business, raised $629.

The 116-pound grand champion lamb was raised by Kayla White. White sold her lamb to Jersey Shore Livestock Sales for $4.75 per pound.

The reserve champion lamb also weighed 116 pounds. That lamb was raised by Monica Kneller and was sold to Wyalusing Livestock Market for $4.5 per pound.

The 13 lambs averaged $2.46 per pound.

Only two steers were sold at the 2001 Troy Fair, averaging $1.49 per pound. Jade Wood exhibited the grand champion, a 1202-pound steer that was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Sea House for $1.375 per pound.

Raya Shores showed the reserve grand champion steer. Her steer tipped the scales at 1408 pounds and was purchased for $1.60 per pound by Williams Oil.

In the milk auction, milk from the supreme champion commanded a high price of $775. Columbia Cross Roads Equipment purchased the milk from James Banks. Proceeds from the milk auction are divided between the owned of the animal, the owner's 4-H Club or FFA Chapter and the dairy promotion program.

Milk from Renee Shores' reserve champion Brown Swiss brought the second high price. John Bennett Trucking purchased the milk for $750.

The average price on 12 gallons of milk was $525.

Three baskets filled with Bradford County products were also sold to raise money for the dairy promotion program. Baskets were purchased by Rockwell's Feed, SPE Inc. and Sunset Ice Cream, bringing in another $1,000 for the organization.

The grand champion steer of the 2001 Troy Fair was shown by Jade Wood.

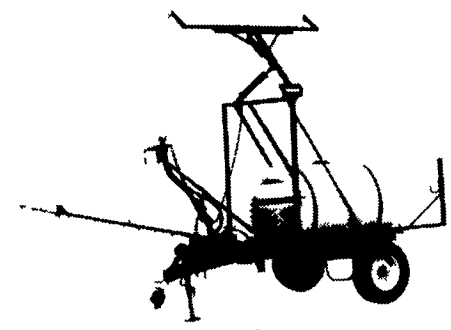
At Last...


...a Boom Sprayer
for multi-crop produce farmer that is affordable and will do the job from sweet corn to melon crops.
With features like...
- 24 ft. one-side boom that allows for 50 ft. coverage between drive rows.
- Easy boom height adjustment from 2 ft. to 7 1/2 ft for sweet corn.
- Hydraulic leveling on the go allows uniform boom height from the crop.
- 280 PSI, 28 GPM 3 diaphragm pump with power shaft for quick hookup.
- Adjustable wheel spacing and tongue height.
- NEW A-spring loaded hydraulic shock to control boom bounce.

Available with 300 or 400 Gallon Tanks
With the high cost of chemicals, the right sprayer is needed

AMERICA'S MOST POPULAR BALERS

John Deere Round Balers are a farmer's first choice because they deliver tight, high-quality bales that stand up tall and stay firm longer than others. Now, with eight models available, you can match your baling needs even more precisely. All eight retain the features that have made John Deere balers America's most popular line. See us for details, today!

Performance and capacity

The "570" New Holland square baler and #72 Thrower brings together performance, reliability and capacity.

- Rotary feeding system adds consistency and bale quality
- Fast plunger stroke – 93 SPM.A Cat.6 drive-line and increased slip clutch setting add capacity.
- Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup. 65" wide to get those big scattered windrows.
- Strong materials in bale case and plunger.
- Gear-driven tying mechanisms – wire or twine

Ask for a demonstration of the New Holland "570" baler and "72" thrower. ..the best-in-class square baler and thrower.

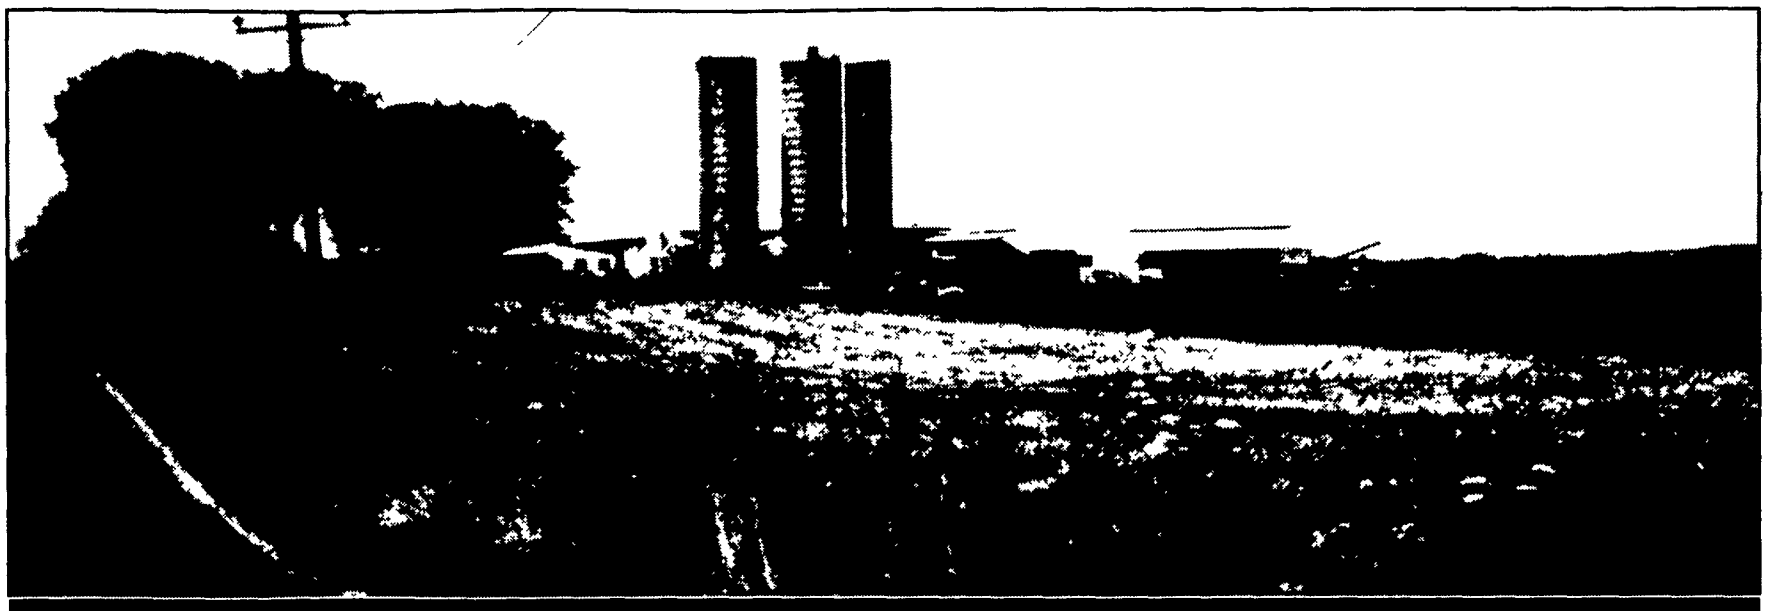
CONSOLIDATED NUTRITION, L.C.



RIDGE HILL FARM

Leonard Greek Family
Delta, PA

"We have been feeding with Service Feed and Supply, Cardiff, MD and Consolidated Nutrition for over 22 years, and have been well satisfied with the service we receive and the performance we have experienced." On our June test day we achieved a 91.7 pound tank average at 235 days in milk, 3.7% butterfat and 3.0% protein! Cows Babar and Bert have achieved 35,464 and 32,251 pound lactations respectively. A third cow Laura, has been between 130 and 160 pounds of milk for the first 6 monthly test days of her current lactation."

July test day update!

Shown in picture are Leonard & Bonnie Jo Greek with daughters, Stormi (17), Stevie (10), Frankie (9), and son, Michael (16).

"Feeding a balanced ration with top quality forages, managing cow comfort, using top genetics, and responding to the cows are the keys to our success. We depend on our suppliers to provide us with expert assistance, timely information, and prompt service. We are well pleased with the job Service Feed and Supply and Consolidated Nutrition are doing for us."

All Sizes of New S&S Silos Available

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

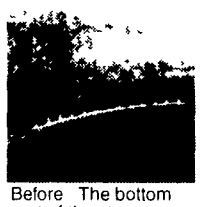
After The surface is reconditioned and a new thick tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made .. quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original



Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

S&S Silo Service Has More than 20 Years Experience Recoating Silos With ShotCrete.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:
- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

BEEF TIPS

Billions of servings

An average of 7.2 billion annual servings of beef by food services compares to 5.2 billion for poultry, 2 billion for seafood and 5 billion pork servings. Within the servings of beef, 76% are for hamburgers and cheeseburgers. The remaining 24% is split among roast beef sandwiches (7%); steak entrees (5%); steak sandwiches (4%); roast beef/prime rib (3%); other beef entrees (3%); and ground beef entrees (2%).

OPTIONS IN FEEDING

Your Dairy Herd

Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency Because your needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals

- Amino Acids
- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

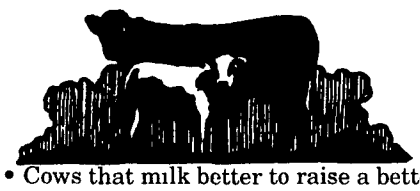
• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients



For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

ROASTING ADDS VALUE TO FARM GRAINS

~ Gives a flavor to the grain that even most discriminating animals will enjoy

~ Molds are destroyed and toxins are greatly reduced to below tolerance levels.

PLEASE READ

Last year, (2000) I SOLD and settled over $3,000,000.00 worth of farms This is contrary to some rumors jealous people are saying. Many have been SOLD in a rather short time from listing to settlement Unfortunately not all farms sell in the time frame some sellers desire That is typical of the business Nationwide Please call me and discuss any concerns you may have as well as to sell your farm I have a list many times longer than my arm.

It takes the right combination of need, desire, wants, financing and timing for a sale and possession Thanks for your past and anticipated future relationship and business transactions.

Sincerely yours; Sanford (Sandy) Leaman, Realtor

Seasonal Dairy Is Good Fit For Family, Pastured Cows

DAVE LEFEVER

NEEDMORE (Fulton Co.) — Ed and Sandy Swope and their three sons used to manage a milking herd of about 100 cows in a conventional free stall and milking parlor setup In the mid-1990 s they decided it was time to make a change "It was a good living " Ed Swope said But we had absolutely no time to do anything else The Swopes now run a seasonal dairy in which all of the cows freshen over about a two-month period roughly March and April This allows all of the cows to go into their dry period in mid January giving the Swope family about a month and a half break from milking

The clustered calving also matches the time of peak pasture production with the high point in the cows milk production

Ed and Sandy Swope of Merotal Farm in Fulton County switched from a year-around confinement dairy operation to a seasonal, pasture-based approach in 1999. They are shown with neighbor girl and "horseheand" Chelsey Berkstresser The Swopes have three sons, ages 12 to 21, who also help on the farm.

Careful Planning Results In Pasture Producer Award For Byerly Brothers

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — When Don and Jeff Byerly decided to implement an intensive grazing system six years ago they had three goals in mind — none of which was receiving a statewide award But careful planning, implementation and management of their permanent pastures earned these brothers the 2001 Outstanding Pasture Producer Award which they accepted recently from the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council

Our goals were to change highly erodible ground from cultivated row crop production into permanent pasture to extend the grazing

Brothers Don and Jeff Byerly of Lewisburg, Union County, accepted the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council's Outstanding Pasture Producer Award for their careful management of 50 acres of permanent pasture

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Duane E. Pysher
Grassland Management Specialist
Natural Resources Conservation Service

Hello from your president as well as all of the board of directors of the PFGC

We recently conducted one of our regular board of directors meetings in order to conduct and carry out the business of PFGC At that meeting we discussed many important issues one of which was the 2001 summer picnic

This annual event brings forage producers and leaders from across Pennsylvania together in an informal atmosphere to enjoy a fun filled evening highlighted by good food and very pleasant surroundings at Evergreen Farms along the beautiful Spruce Creek

Don t forget to send in your reservation and money as soon as possible so you don t miss out I will be handling reservations this year as Dick Hann will be taking a well deserved vacation I am looking forward to seeing you there

One of the other items we discussed was the fact that for years PFGC has had a line item in the budget for sponsorship of local forage meetings and field days In the 2001 budget we have continued that same line item I asked board member Craig Williams to serve as chairman of the Research and Education Committee Part of
